Governor Hopes To Reverse Park Decision

ASTRO-ADVICE

By Raymond Williams noted Virginia Beach astrologer

Don't Read Your Own

QUESTION: I am living in Los Angeles and have been getting second hand copies of the Sun from a friend. I was particularly interested in your September 24 column in answer to Libra. The same situation exists in my life. I would like to know if there is a good book that deals with compatibility or lack of it in two people's charts? Signed DF.

ANSWER: The letter was considerably more detailed but I shortened it because of space problems. I want to answer your question by telling you of an experience that happened to me recently. It is the sort of thing that happens to any practicing Astrologer all the time and is especially sad I think. Not more than three weeks ago a lady walked into my office in tears. She had learned to set up her horoscope out of a book. She had also set up her husband's horoscope as well and was sure that something terrible was going to happen to him. All she wanted to know was if it was something that she could bear. I could not help setting his horoscope up. Even though other astrologers get a great deal of money for this, and I often charge, I had to see if she was correct. She was really in a state of panic. After setting up the horoscope I decided that something rather bad was about to take place, but before I tried to determine the exact nature of the event I decided to rectify the horoscope. I usually begin by checking the date of birth. Either she gave me the wrong birth date or I copied it wrong and there was some difficult aspects that could be cause for concern. After erecting the horoscope again (and checking again) I was very happy to be able to state positively that there was nothing to be concerned about. I tell you this to show you the danger in trying to be your own astrologer without years of study. It is just not possible. I have been studying astrology (seriously) for years, and read a great deal before I became serious and learn something new with every horoscope I study.

It is for this reason that I will never recommend books for this purpose. My advice is that there is an excellent school in Los Angeles and I will be happy to direct you to some of the teachers there who are friends, and they will see that you get started off on the right foot. I strongly advise against anyone studying on their own, or trying to interpret for themselves. It is as dangerous as trying to "doctor" oneself.

Aspects Not Favorable

QUESTION: I have been married for twenty five years. The first twenty three of these years were very happy, but the last three have been one argument after another. What is happening? Can Astrology explain this? Signed MES.

ANSWER: It is in cases like this that I really enjoy answering inquiries. The answer is spelled out so clearly that any beginning student of astrology could spot it. The problem lies in the fact that either you or your husband may not be able to accept the explanation and therefore not benefit from it. It is this area, trying to help people to understand, that presents the most difficult chore to the Astrologer. If I could explain things like this and then you understand the explanation I could help a great deal of people who can not be helped in any other way. The fact that planets affect our lives is very difficult for most people to understand.

Let's take each of the elements one at a time. Mars, to begin with, in your husband's horoscope is making a rather difficult aspect to his natal Mercury and the Moon. The planet Mercury governs the mind, and as I have said many times, Mars is the planet of tremendous energy. In bad relationship it simply means that at this time he is receiving an unusual amount of malefic or destructive type energy to his Natal (or natural mind). The Moon is the emotional nature and in the horoscope it indicates our emotional responses to others. Now when we consider all the pieces together we have a man who, to put it quite simply, mentally and emotionally irritated most of the time.

It is almost impossible for either of you to understand that this is something that is happening to him rather than something that he is doing. Remember, he is receiving energy and would respond to it the same as if it were electric current from the wall plug. Would you, or he for that matter, expect him not to react to that type of energy? I feel quite sure that he has realized he is acting un-naturally, but has been unable to resist. The important thing is this: it seems to me, is that in a close family relationship this is sure to create confusion. If he were living alone he could easily go for a walk when he gets to feeling like this, and it would bother no one but himself.

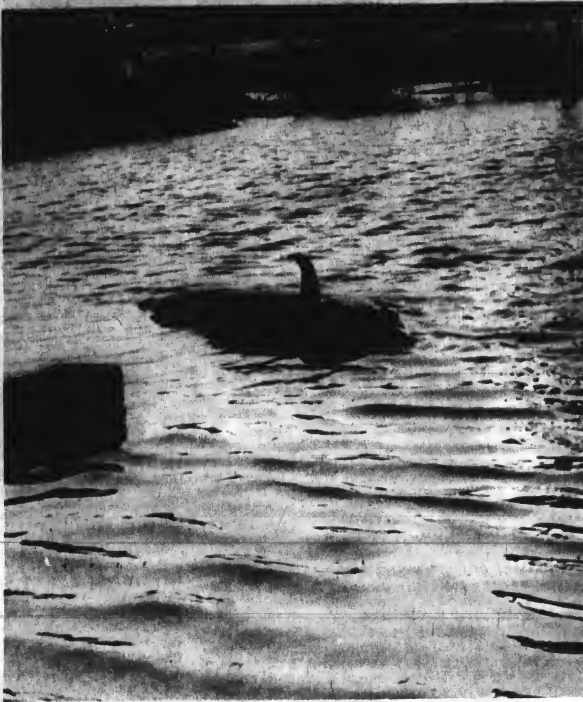

To add to the confusion, you are going through an equally difficult aspect at the same time. This is the most interesting part of astrology and is the thing that usually makes the non-believer a believer. How could your husband go through a difficult time like this and not have it affect your life strongly? It is not possible, since you are normally a very close couple, and I'm sure you love each other a great deal.

If you were acting normally you would be able to understand his problem much better than you now do, but you are also receiving a difficult aspect from the planet Mars to your Natal Venus. Venus governs the feeling nature. I prefer the affectional nature but the standard text books use the feeling or love nature. The combination between Mars and Venus in bad relationship is that you are not "feeling" very many good feelings. This is very elementary but I think you can understand the point I am trying to make. The strong feelings of affection that you normally have for your husband are being short circuited now. Taking into account what is going on in both charts, it would seem that nature or Karma is saying "I'll test you to see what this marriage is made of." Only through understanding can it succeed. One thing is certain: You belong together and if you can get through this period you will have built a fortress of understanding that will be indestructible.

Wants Children

QUESTION: I have been married for three years and want to have children. So far I have been unable to do so and am very confused and unhappy. Should I go back to work and forget the

A Pathetic Demise

Most porpoises are able to live their lives frolicking in the warm waters of the Gulf Stream, occasionally coming northward during the warmer months to enjoy fresher waters and play, much to the delight of young children and to the fascination of those a little older. But with that trip is a risk, one this poor porpoise took and lost. Wednesday afternoon he was found in the flooded parking lot of an abandoned store on Baltic Avenue, apparently having been washed inland by a recent nor'easter. How he got there has confounded both the Police Department as well as passersby. Thus he dies as he lives, an object of fascination.

Man Seeks Commendation

The couple, perhaps in their late 50's, were enjoying a late-in-the-season vacation. It was early October but the sun was warm, the wind was brisk but not too cool; it was a perfect day to enjoy the beach.

It was the noon hour but John N. Nichols of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, decided to take a swim before eating. His wife sat in the sun on the beach, watching her husband.

In a matter of seconds Nichols was in a life and death struggle with the Atlantic Ocean.

What happened for the next hour or so will long be vivid in the minds of at least four people, Nichols, his wife, and the two men who saved the swimmer from certain death.

This week a grateful Nichols recommended to the American National Red Cross that his rescuers, Robert Newman and Edward Pankowski, be cited for "their unquestioned bravery and willingness to risk their lives."

Nichols said, in his letter to the Red Cross, that he was caught in a strong outgoing tide that carried him out faster than his strength was able to overcome. He signaled his wife that he was in trouble.

"I knew that I could not return to shore without assistance," he said. A person who has participated in Red Cross programs on first aid and lifesaving for over 40 years, Nichols knew to conserve his strength and not panic. He began floating and treading water in hopes that help would arrive in time.

Mrs. Nichols, frightened beyond words, ran into the office at the Marshall's Motel, where she and her husband were staying, and screamed for help. "I have never seen a more frightened person," said Mrs. Audrey Butler, the reservations clerk, who first saw the stricken woman. "Her eyes were filled with terror. I will always see those eyes."

Newman is a young employee of the hotel and was working in the dining room that day. He answered Mrs. Butler's call for help and ran toward the beach.

Pankowski is a maintenance man at the Association for Research and Enlightenment, across the highway from the motel, and usually eats lunch in the motel dining room. He was there that day. He, too, answered the call for help, grabbing a rubber mattress as he ran toward the beach.

"As I ran for the water I looked at Bob," Pankowski said Tuesday. "He very calmly removed his bow tie and his red waiter's jacket, then hit the water."

Newman reached Nichols first because the mattress slowed Pankowski down. It was a struggle to get there because of the strong undertow which also continued to move Nichols away from them.

"It looked as if he were going right on into the shipping lanes," Pankowski said.

The two rescuers estimate it took them at least 30 minutes to reach the exhausted man. "He was just as calm as he could be. He said to us 'give me a minute to get my strength back and I'll help you all that I can,'" Pankowski said.

Nichols was some 400 yards or so off shore when the duo reached him. Their problem then was to get all three back.

"While I clutched the air mattress, one got on either side and attempted to swim the three of us back to safety," Nichols said.

By this time the Virginia Beach Rescue Squad arrived with its DUKW and the craft made its way to the three men.

"It hit the water with red lights blazing. You should have seen the startled expression on Mr. Nichols' face as that thing came toward us. But it was a life saver. I don't think we would have ever made it if the rescue squad hadn't come after us," Pankowski explained.

Nichols told the Red Cross: "It is my belief that without the assistance given by Robert Newman and Edward Pankowski it is very probable that I would not have been able to maintain myself for approximately 45 minutes until the rescue squad got to us or that I would have been so far from shore as to be lost from sight."

He also credited the rescue

Word Received By Virginia Beach Friends

Governor Linwood Holton has indicated to friends here that he hopes to reverse the decision on leasing a portion to Seashore State Park to the city for construction of a school. The governor's intent is mentioned specifically in a letter from Mrs. Holton to a young Virginia Beach couple who are long time friends of the Holtons. The letter was presented to the Sun in its entirety. The couple prefer not to be identified.

Mrs. Holton said she is "really disturbed" about the lease which was brought to her attention in a letter from the Virginia Beach woman.

"As you know," Mrs. Holton states, "one of Lin's greatest long-time interests has been the conservation of our natural areas."

"He tells me that he signed the lease on the recommendation of the State Park authorities because they said that the isolation of that portion of the park by the highway made it unusable for park purposes."

"In view of the interests shown by you and so many other responsible citizens, however, he is discussing the whole situation again with the park authorities in the hope that perhaps the decision can be reversed."

Gov. Holton signed the lease on the park site on June 12.

School Supt. E.E. Brickell said Wednesday afternoon he knew nothing about the Governor looking into school site situation. "I haven't talked to the Governor and the Governor hasn't talked to me."

Brickell said on Tuesday that "we don't want to have controversy stirred up over the schools", in response to a suggestion that an alternate school site be found.

He said it would be impossible for him to recommend a North Virginia Beach school site be found.

He said it would be impossible for him to recommend a North Virginia Beach school site to the School Board that is not free. The site in question would be leased to the city for $1 per year but has been actively opposed by the Citizens' Committee for Seashore State Park.

Beach Goes Byrd

As expected, Virginia's incumbent Senator Harry F. Byrd Jr., who despite his change of party from Democrat to Independent carried a large Democratic vote here, swept the city with 11,787 votes or 50.4 per cent of the 23,413 votes cast.

Byrd's nearest opponent was liberal Democrat George C. Rawlings Jr., who drew 8,434 votes or 36.0 per cent of the vote, while Republican candidate Ray L. Garland garnered a meager 3,192 votes or 13.7 per cent of the total.

Byrd's victory here was attributed to the same factor which carried him across the state--Democratic party members crossed the party line to vote for a conservative candidate, even though he was an independent, rather than vote for a liberal Democrat.

Statewide, 55-year-old Byrd received 502,915 votes, Rawlings got 282,605 votes, and Garland 144,628 votes.

The total vote--2,373,773--was considered surprising to many because there were no other major political conflicts outside the Senate race that would draw voters to the polls.

Incumbent First District Rep. Thomas N. Downing, who was among 45 Democratic Congressmen running unopposed, nonetheless drew 19,003 votes in the city.

Other items on the ballots which drew response were four constitutional revision proposals, the first since Virginia's last revisions were approved in the 1920s.

In Virginia Beach, the first proposal for general revision of the body of the constitution was approved by a vote of 17,872 to 3,490 negative votes.

The second proposal, which removes prohibition of state lotteries and allows approval by the legislature of pari-mutuel horse race betting, was passed with a vote of 16,320 to 4,895 votes.

The third proposal which permits the state to borrow for capital improvements, was passed with a vote of 15,150 to 5,055.

The last of the revision proposals, which would allow the state to put its full faith and credit behind revenue bond projects which are self-liquidating, was given the green light with a vote of 15,241 to 5,000.

The first precinct to report a vote total was Sigma, with 139 votes cast, 80 for Byrd, 11 for Garland, 66 for Rawlings, and all of the revisions approved, while the last precinct to report was Cape Henry at about 9 p.m. where Byrd received 638 votes, Garland 191, Rawlings 163 and all of the revisions passed.

Cape Henry is almost traditionally the last precinct to report and there was a tall in tabulations in the Clerk of Court's office for about 20 minutes waiting the last call out.

Normally crowded, the city people at the office were the necessary officials, newsmen, and a few representatives of the candidates, testifying to a general lack of interest in the outcome.

Rawlings carried the Sealack and Bayside precincts with sizable vote majorities but failed to receive much more support of note from any other precincts.

Byrd's largest support came from the Cape Henry precinct, where he drew 838 votes to Rawlings' 193 and Garland's 191.

Throughout the city, there were only four write-in votes, two in Windsor Woods, for Bob Furniss, one in Virginia Beach for Rose C. Wilson and one for Sam Houston Jr. in the Princess Anne Plaza precinct.

In addition, 21 ballots cast in accordance with the new ruling concerning Virginia's one year residency requirement were recorded at the Courthouse precinct on a separate voting machine.

The votes were not included in the unofficial tally and will not be included in the final vote tally until the Supreme Court rules on the constitutionality of the lower court decision allowing six-month residency.

The official canvass will be made today.

New Bank Dedication Is Tues.

Opening ceremonies for First & Merchants National Bank's new Princess Anne Plaza Branch will begin at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The open house will last until 6 p.m. and will feature refreshments, free gifts and registration for a chance for a free color television set.

The new building is an approximately 3,000-square-foot, free-standing structure adjacent to the shopping center. It features its own parking facilities and three drive-in teller windows. The full-service branch opens for business November 9.

Mayor Donald Rhodes cuts opening ribbon.

New Employment Office Dedicated

Rep. Thomas N. Downing was the featured speaker at an open house Friday dedicating the Virginia Employment Commission's new Virginia Beach office at 3820 Virginia Beach Boulevard.

VEC Commissioner William L. Heartwell Jr. reviewed the area's economy and the VEC's contributions to the area's growth. He will discuss projections of the area's growth developed by the agency's Research, Statistics and Information Division and plans for new and expanded manpower services for the city.

Mayor Donald H. Rhodes cut the ribbon officially dedicating the 6,400-square foot office located in the first building in the planned four-phase Birchwood Office Center being developed by Larasan Realty Corp.

The highlight of the brief program was brief demonstration of the equipment which will be used in the new office to operate Virginia's first Job Bank, an automated system designed to increase the employment commission's capacity to bring job seekers and job openings together. Job Bank is scheduled to go into operation in VEC offices in Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Portsmouth and Chesapeake shortly after the first of the year.

Herman H. Feldman, state coordinator of Job Bank for the VEC, demonstrated the microfilm scanner devices which will be used by trained interviewers in each VEC Job Bank office to find appropriate job applicants to fill job orders and employment opportunities for job seekers in the VEC's files in seconds.

He's link with missionaries

R. J. Red Bashford is a little closemouthed when it comes to talking about himself or his accomplishments.

As a matter of fact, you have to corner him in his ham radio room to get him to mention himself. Even then, he'd probably forget to tell you about the note he received from fellow radio operator King Hussein of Jordan. It was signed, "Your sincere friend, Hussein."

Bashford, whose strawberry red hair is a dead giveaway for his nickname, would probably sidestep all of the emergency messages he's passed to missionaries in the Congo. And you'd probably have to read the multitude of certificates and plaques on his wall just to find out that he's not only been a radio operator for 41 years, but also an exceptional one.

Red Bashford and his Dalmatian sidekick, Rinky, spend a good portion of their days in the compact radio room adjoining his home at 1500 Watersedge Road. Surrounded by more than $4,500 worth of electronic parts, Bashford provides a link in the communications chain for missionaries in the Congo and their churches in the states.

"Since retiring four years ago, I have time to talk with them quite often," Bashford said. He spent 30 years in the electronics department at Naval Air Station Norfolk. W4IN, Red's radio name, makes contact with more than 20 Congo outposts every week.

"Some of these stations are 300 or 400 miles apart," Bashford said, "and the mail runs pretty slowly." That's why missionaries call him on the radio and ask him to write loved ones or call their churches for them. Last week Bashford received a letter from a missionary's relative. The relative, recuperating from gall bladder surgery, asked Bashford to inform the missionary.

He provides support for missionaries from Lymnham and King's Grant Presbyterian Churches. But his Congo Net includes all religions including Baptists and Methodists.

"I also deliver birth notices, travel plans and everything else," Bashford said. Many messages contain lists of much needed supplies unavailable in the Congo.

Recent turmoil in the Middle East has resulted in traffic from Israel, he said. Earlier, during the Cuban conflicts, Bashford's radio was carrying messages to Americans at Guantanamo Bay. Natural disasters such as tornadoes and hurricanes find Bashford standing by on an emergency status.

Operating with the Maritime Mobile program, Bashford also makes "phone patches" for military and commercial ships enabling their crews to talk to relatives back home.

Parents and wives of service men stationed throughout the world have talked to their men in uniform through Bashford's "patches." Recently, Captain J. E. Bonds, commanding officer of the cruiser USS Newport News, sent Bashford a letter of thanks.

"You (Bashford) provided the vital link to our loved ones while we were gone and I can't tell you how much this meant for the morale of the crew," Captain Bonds wrote.

But all of Bashford's messages aren't just supply lists and morale boosters. Like the one from a Congo missionary who was working against the clock to save a case of serum from spoiling in an African customs office. "The officials wouldn't release the serum because it didn't have enough invoices with it," Bashford said.

"The serum was supposed to be refrigerated and it was just setting there going bad," he said. "There were people out there who were depending on that serum." Bashford contacted a medical firm in New York. The additional information was relayed and the serum was saved.

"The hobby has been good to me and it gives me a good feeling knowing that I'm helping someone," Bashford said.

There are a lot of missionaries and servicemen who would have to agree with that.

12% Gain Reported By Colonial

Colonial Stores Incorporated, 429-store southeast and mid-west supermarket chain, reports that sales in the first 40 weeks of 1970 were 12.1 percent ahead of the same period last year while net earnings were up 19.7 percent.

Earnest F. Boyce, president, said sales in the 40 weeks which ended Oct. 10, totaled $505,532,915 compared with $450,873,738 in the same period of 1969 and net earnings were $6,116,445 versus $5,110,255.

Earnings per share of common stock were $2.14 for the 40 weeks in 1970 compared with $1.79 in the like 1969 period. The earnings are based on 2,334,716 shares outstanding in 1970 and 2,829,080 in 1969.

PUBLIC NOTICE

PROPOSED HIGHWAY PROJECT

The State Highway Commission wishes to advise that a Location and Design Public Hearing will be held by a representative of the Department of Highways on November 30, 1970, at 7:30 p.m., in the Point of View Elementary School Auditorium located at 5400 Parliament Drive, Virginia Beach, Virginia, for the purpose of considering the proposed location and design of Newtown Road from 0.208 mile north of the intersection of Virginia Beach Toll Road (Route 44) to 0.011 mile south of the intersection of Virginia Beach Boulevard (Route 58) in the Cities of Norfolk and Virginia Beach. This hearing will be held in accordance with State and Federal statutes, including provisions of Section 128 of Title 23 - Highways, United States Code, and Policy and Procedure Memorandum 20-8.

Maps, drawings and other pertinent information are available for public inspection and copying in the Department of Highways District Office at Suffolk, Virginia, located on Route 460 just north of Suffolk, in the Department of Highways, Norfolk Residency Office, located at the intersection of Routes 13 and 168 in the City of Chesapeake, in the office of the Director of Community Services for the City of Virginia Beach and in the office of the Director of Public Works for the City of Norfolk. A representative of the Department of Highways will have this information available in the Point of View Elementary School Auditorium from 3:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. on November 30, 1970, for viewing by interested persons.

Written statements and other exhibits relative to the proposed project may be presented in place of, or in addition to, oral statements at the hearing. Such written statements and exhibits may also be submitted to the Virginia Department of Highways at any time within ten days following said public hearing date.

At this location and design public hearing, relocation assistance programs and tentative schedules for right of way acquisition and construction will also be discussed.

Heed Own Experts

Some months ago representatives of the fire departments recommended to the city that additional firemen be employed to relieve the volunteers during working hours. They also recommended that the city provide some new fire fighting equipment.

The city has now paid over nineteen thousand dollars for a fire study to back up what the firemen recommended.

The study is, of course, more elaborate and goes on to point out that for about one million dollars the city could, and should, completely revamp its fire fighting system. This could be cut down to around eight hundred thousand by modifying the revisions.

Virginia Beach has a most effective fire fighting system. Hundreds of manhours annually in providing the city with protection that few cities could afford to buy. They need more equipment and more paid men to help them. And that they deserve.

In fact, nineteen thousand dollars or so would have gone a long way in providing what they requested.

One million dollars, even eight hundred thousand, would also go a long way in soothing some of the city's growing pains....correcting some of the sad sewage problems, building cultural facilities, providing school needs, repairing streets, better serving the taxpayer.

The day may come when a more extensive fire protection system is needed. When the city has outgrown the volunteer concept. But that day has not yet come.

The city would do well to listen to its own experts. They take their recommendations from every day experience rather than from textbooks as this study seems to have done.

Too late to yell

VEPCO is certainly drawing its share of controversy. Customers are firing public potshots at the firm on everything from its advertising methods to the fact that it has employed nonunion labor for a new plant.

The real bone of contention, of course, is the increased rates. The public many times won't speak up until the pocketbook is pinched. And there's little doubt that pocketbooks are hurting from recent electric bills.

But the time to yell was when the increased rates were proposed. Where was all this activity then? Why didn't the public make its objections heard, march with dissenting women, protest to City Council, or do something... even if it was wrong?

A VEPCO commercial claims the electric consumption in this area has doubled in less than seven years, not only because of the rapid increase in population, but also because of the excessive use of electricity.

Apparently the only economizing one can do is eliminate the use of the clothes dryer, stove, heater, hot water, blankets, dishwasher, mixer, blender, toaster, etc., etc. May be revert to candle light.

It doesn't present a very pretty picture. Maybe next time the public will yell louder--a head of time.

'No Strings' Necessary

In a speech to Old Dominion University students, Ralph Nader, a public crusader for consumer reform, advocated the development of "citizen action arms," groups of citizens who would act as consumer-oriented vigilantes, constantly on guard for activity to defraud the public.

Nader, a Washington-based lawyer famous for the decline and demise of the General Motors Corvair, continued by saying that these groups have some great effectiveness in other areas of the country, but that Virginia has not yet felt the changing winds.

That may well be true, but in the state's metropolitan areas citizen's advisory committees have been set up, not strictly along the lines of Nader's suggested "citizen action arm" but as groups whose function is to advise the local government as to what is best for its citizens.

In Virginia Beach, the move for such a group was made in September by newly-appointed councilman Robert H. Callis Jr. In fact, it was Callis' first order of business, a move that drew criticism from several other councilmen.

The criticism, engendered because Callis did not discuss his proposal with his fellow councilmen, was aimed toward the composition and direction the proposed CAC would take.

In council sessions later in September and again this month, several officials said they would rather the committee's membership be limited in number and that the direction it might take be completely defined. That action, however, may dilute the effectiveness of such a body, now that it has been approved.

As Councilman Callis envisioned the CAC, it would travel throughout the city, visiting different areas and talking with the citizens, learning what problems and potential solutions the citizens are confronting and have.

"It's necessary," Callis says, "because they (the citizens) aren't willing to talk with us sometimes." On several occasions, Callis says that his close friends are afraid to discuss city matters with him because he's now a councilman.

"Before, we used to sit around and talk about all of the issues, now I can't even get an opinion."

And if Callis can't get an opinion from his friends, he says he's afraid about the rest of the citizenry. "They just have no way to reach us," he said.

The CAC is Callis' answer. If that group can travel about and listen to the people's voice, and then relay the message to Council, it would advance the cause of participatory democracy.

City Manager Roger M. Scott told council that according to a study done on citizens advisory committees, too often the groups begin to believe themselves experts on municipal affairs and when their recommendations are not followed, tend to develop animosities toward the City Council.

In addition, said Scott, the membership of such a group should be limited in number and term.

Scott's second point has a great deal of validity. If the committee is to represent a wide spectrum of the populace, it should have a membership that reflects the composition of the population, ethnically, as well as politically. And that may pose a problem for council as it appoints the members.

It's generally accepted that whether the city elects its officials on the basis of political party or not, it still is riddled with partisan and politics.

That ailment will soon become a disease if it infects the proposed CAC, for unless partisan politics remains apart from the group, the decisions made may not be in the best interests of the citizenry but those of a select few.

Thus, the appointive body must realize that in order for a CAC to be effective in seeking out the problems and accompanying solutions to problems of a growing city, it must be completely non-partisan.

THE END OF THE TRAIL!

Surfing Group Speaks Out

To the Editor:

The Virginia Surfing Association Board of Directors at a special recent board meeting has decided to strongly oppose a recommendation made by the Governor's Management Study Committee that Camp Pendleton, after its abolishment, be sold to the highest bidder.

The VSA and its membership are very apprehensive about the ultimate use of this 450 acre tract of publicly owned land should it be sold and are fearful that it may eventually result into a maze of hot dog stands, concrete, and wall-to-wall motels. The surfing community across the state has been eyeing the Pendleton Beach area for a long time as a possible all-day surfing spot.

The fact that the 1970 East Coast Surfing Championships were held at Pendleton in August was primarily due to the efforts of the Virginia Surfing Association in conjunction with the Virginia Beach Jaycees. This event was looked upon by the Governor's Office as a "two day experiment" to evaluate the possibility of opening a portion of the reservation for surfing on a full time basis. The general consensus of those attending, including the Governor, the local press, the military, the city officials, and the general public, was that the two day experiment passed its test with flying colors. Furthermore, the VSA was amazed at the ridiculously low price tag of $1 million supposedly placed on the property by this committee.

This in itself is alarming for it implies that someone is already laying the ground work for a possible steal of 450 acres of beautiful trees, meadows, lake, and beachfront which is presently owned by the citizens of Virginia.

The VSA likes the thinking of Councilman Reid Ervin who has proposed that the property be maintained for general public use as a recreational facility and that the total 450 acres be held in perpetuity for the use of the taxpayers, and that it not be put on the auction block that the Governor's Committee has recommended.

The VSA would welcome and recommend that a comprehensive study be performed by a "professional planning group" such as the Virginia Beach Planning Department and/or the Department of the State so as to determine and insure the maximum utilization of the publicly owned land for the benefit of its present owners.

This study should eliminate the possibility of private ownership at the very beginning and concentrate on how the area should be developed into a first class recreational facility either by the state of Virginia or the City of Virginia Beach. Consideration should be given to the possible combination of two or more of the following: community college, a convention center, a sports coliseum, a mental health facility, a horse racing track, a state or city park, a municipal zoo/marine land, and all day public swimming and separate surfing area utilizing the entire beach area.

The VSA hopes that the silent majority of our citizens whether they are surfers, parents of surfers, or simply concerned citizens, will realize that each one of us are stockholders in the Pendleton land area and that if we just sit idly by and do nothing, someone is going to try to take it from us for their own profit-making use.

Do something--by voicing your opposition to this ridiculous recommendation that Pendleton be sold to the highest bidder--call or write your councilmen or state representatives: Bev Middleton, Ned Caton, or Richard Guy, and express your opposition to the recommended sale of publicly owned land to private enterprise for private profit-making purposes. Since the Virginia Beach Planning Department and/or the Department of the State are the ones to determine and insure the maximum utilization of the publicly owned land for the benefit of its present owners, they should eliminate the possibility of private ownership at the very beginning and concentrate on how the area should be developed into a first class recreational facility either by the state of Virginia or the City of Virginia Beach.

Corrects Survey

To the Editor:

The following has reference to your comment in the column on the weekly survey that I have suggested selling Camp Pendleton for industrial sites.

I requested in May that the Governor have a study made. I cited the various reasons, with which we are all familiar, why the property in question should not continue to be used for military purposes.

When the probable recommendation of the Governor's study committee were released, I again communicated with the Governor, requesting:

1. That the military use be phased out as soon as possible once the decision is made.
2. That the beach be made available for surfing at least on a temporary basis.
3. That the ultimate use of the property be decided by the City of Virginia Beach--acting through the Planning Commission and the City Council.

I have never advocated the sale of this property as industrial sites. I have suggested, tourist-oriented development--public golf course, public tennis courts, possibly a race track (although this land may be too expensive for such a use), a first-class amusement park, etc.

The important thing at this time--and this should be emphasized as much as possible--is that our efforts should be directed at: (1) Encouraging the Governor to cancel the use apparent recommendation to cease the military use of Camp Pendleton and (2) seeing that the decision as to what the ultimate use will be is made here in Virginia Beach rather than in Richmond.

Sincerely,
Richard D. Guy
P.S. I don't recall seeing anywhere that the Governor, his consultants or anyone else has suggested that the land be sold to the highest bidder.

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

By W. A. Leavell, Ph.D.

If you are one of the millions in this country who feels the "LAW and ORDER" issue is just another cry of "WOLF," you should share with me the experience of reading a shocking report by F.B.I. Director J. Edgar Hoover, just out (Crime in U.S.-1969, $1.50, Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, DC. 20402).

This annual report (185 pages) is shocking. If I did not know the reliability of the F.B.I., I would find the statistics in this report hard to believe. Let me share some of them with you.

During the past ten years our country has had a 13 per cent increase in population but crime has increased 180 per cent. The number of offenses per 100,000 population during the past ten years (1960-1969) for crimes of violence (rape, robbery and aggravated assault) have increased 104 per cent and crimes against property (burglary, larceny and auto theft) have gone up 123 per cent.

It seems that the property of others is no longer safe. If this keeps up, this alarming increase in crime, we might see a redistribution of wealth on a basis of one group stealing from another. Nothing or no one is safe. Street robbery increased 186 per cent. Robbery of gas stations is up 214 per cent. Robbery of banks is up 296 per cent.

I can remember when the nighttime was the period of danger for burglary in the home. No time seems to be safe today. While burglary of residences at night went up 108 per cent, the burglary of residences in the day time went up 286 per cent.

To relate this to dollars and cents, in 1969 alone, property owners suffered an economic loss of $680 million, with an average of $318 per burglary. This is just from one type of crime-burglary.

How many of the thieves are caught? Not many. Less than one out of every five. The odds are with the thieves.

During 1969, 871,900 automobiles were reported stolen. This is up from 777,800 in 1968 and an increase of 138 per cent in the past 10 years. The enforcement agencies were successful in solving only 18 per cent of auto thefts last year. Of those arrested for auto theft, 77 per cent were under 21 and 58 per cent were under 18 years of age. Last year, an automobile was reported stolen on an average of one every 36 seconds, twenty four hours a day.

Of the crimes against property during 1969, the arrest rate is very low. Only 18 per cent of the larceny cases resulted in arrests, 19 per cent of burglary and 27 per cent of robbery cases. The young people, the very young, are becoming more involved in crime. While the persons in this country age 10 to 17 represents 16 per cent of the population, they accounted for 32 per cent of all those arrested last year. Those under 25 accounted for 51 per cent of those arrested for crimes.

Our courts and the dedicated "Do-gooders" keep plugging for probation, suspended sentences and help for the guilty. These soft on crime people should look at the rate of persons rearrested within six years. The "Repeaters" amount to 65 per cent and those under 20, where leniency is a way of court life, have a repeat record of 74 per cent.

Of those persons released in 1963 for auto theft, 82 per cent were rearrested by 1969. Narcotics rearrests were almost as bad at 72 per cent. Turning the guilty out just doesn't seem to be such a good idea when you see the results.

Law and Order is a serious problem. It is becoming more of a national disaster every year. It can not be swept under the rug any longer. If something is not done to change the tide, no one will be safe.

It seems obvious that the permissive society of the past 25 years has broken down law and order in this country. The more we try to repair and rehabilitate the criminals, the higher the crime rate goes. It simply is not working.

We seem to be on the wrong track. If we are to protect ourselves and our property, something must be done and it must be done NOW!

Since leniency has proved to be ineffective, lets try the bitter medicine of harsh penalties for crime. If we go after the criminals, arrest them, give them a fair and speedy trial and then put the guilty away for a long time, we can soon clean up the repeaters. This alone will help the problem. We better become involved and do something, while we can, or the criminals will soon take us over. When we become unsafe, our person or our property, we are no longer free. Democracy doesn't work when the people become afraid and that is a serious danger today.

from drowning by an unknown rescuer. He is an exceptionally brave and modest young man and his identity should be known.

He is Robert Newman, an employee of the Marshall's motel. At great risk to himself he responded to the desperate appeal of my wife and offered to come to my aid. He was joined by Ed Pankowski, an employee of A.R.E. who grabbed an air mattress on the way.

These two men swam to where I was floating helplessly in the outgoing tide and supported me until the Rescue Squad arrived. I will be forever grateful to these two men for their fearless and unselfish act on my behalf.

I would also like to express my appreciation to the men of the Virginia Beach Fire Department Rescue Squad for their skilled and solicitous handling of the rescue. The City of Virginia Beach can be justly proud of them. They were great.

To the citizens of Virginia Beach and the many who came to the aid of strangers in their midst, Mrs. Nichols and I are most grateful.

Sincerely,
John N. Nichols,

'Yes' Unanimous

Last week's question proved to be another lively one: "Do you think the city should obtain Camp Pendleton, if it becomes available, for recreational facilities rather than industry?"

It was an overwhelming "YES" from the moderately strong response. We say "moderately" because the 600-or-so answers to the State Park question has put stars in the editor's eyes and a considerably smaller number seems nothing in comparison. Even though we recognize, of course, that not all issues are so controversial.

And speaking of that State Park question--"Do you think a school should be built on the donated 15 acres in Seashore State Park?"--the answers are still coming in. Several more this week. All of them against it.

The Camp Pendleton question provoked a number of very well stated letters to the editor, all of which appear on this page. Others may yet arrive for next week.

Drugs Big Problem But Lack Concern

A member of the governor's council on drug abuse was there to issue an appeal to parents.

The head of the police department's juvenile division discussed the drug pusher.

A former addict who once literally ate marijuana for breakfast explained a drug rehabilitation program.

And a delegation of civic leaders on the Drug Focus Committee told about significant inroads into the drug problem at Virginia Beach.

But no one was there to listen.

That's the story on the Drug Focus Committee's first open meeting to the public at First Colonial High School. Only 15-20 people attended. The second meeting was held last night at Plaza Junior High.

Mrs. Mary Russo, a member of the governor's drug committee, pointed to the empty auditorium and told the sparse crowd that parents are afraid to confront the drug problem and "want to stick their heads in the ground."

Mrs. Russo, wife of Judge Phil Russo, told the group of a telephone warning recently which indicated her daughter would be arrested for possession of narcotics. The report, later proved false, "makes a parent realize the importance of the problem," Mrs. Russo said. "When are parents going to wake up?"

Lt. Henry Capps, head of the police department's juvenile division, told the committee that drug use among youths is steadily increasing in Virginia Beach. "Youths are buying not in joints, but in pounds," the policeman said.

Capps said the police currently are more concerned with the drug seller than the drug user. "If someone comes in and voluntarily turns in drugs to us, chances are that we won't arrest him," Capps said. "But the man that we have to bird-dog up and down the streets to catch won't get the same consideration."

Members of the Drug Focus Committee got a firsthand look at the problem they're fighting through Saul Greenberg, a 27-year-old former drug addict who said he used drugs for seven years.

Greenberg, in Virginia Beach, to persuade officials to release an accused drug user to his rehabilitative organization, spoke briefly at the meeting. He is an executive director of Encounter, an organization that has shown to be effective in reforming drug addicts.

A former elementary school teacher in the ghettos of New York City, Greenberg told the committee and audience that he began smoking marijuana when he awoke at 7:30 a.m. each morning and even soaked up marijuana residue with bread and ate it for breakfast.

He said his roommate was a medical student who got drugs for him by prescription. Greenberg, currently of Yellow Springs, Ohio, said Virginia Beach's Free Clinic, Mother's Clinic, Public Education System and 24-hour drug hotline are "definite steps in the right direction," but he also emphasized the need for rehabilitative measures.

The Drug Focus Committee, working with United Drug Abuse Committee, is made up of civic leaders in Virginia Beach who are concerned with illegal drug use. The committee earned the city council's official sanction February 9.

The clinics and the 24-hour telephone referral service were set up by the committee. Mrs. Doris Young, chairman, told the audience that several other steps currently are being considered.

Local Girl In Program

Susan Laurie Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Marshall of 4187 Ewell Rd., is enrolled in the interdisciplinary honors program at Wake Forest University.

The program is for a limited number of highly qualified students and is designed to supplement the regular college curriculum. Participation is by invitation only. Faculty participants are drawn from various academic departments. Fifteen students are in the program this year.

Miss Marshall, a sophomore, is taking part in a seminar on "Approaches to Human Experience." Participants are studying the works of the Austrian psychiatrist Sigmund Freud, the Spanish painter Pablo Picasso, and the French philosopher and writer Jean Paul Sartre.

Loss Control Proves Worth

Three years after it was started, the Virginia Beach City Schools' Loss Control Program proves to be a tremendous success.

In 1967, when the Loss Control Program for bus operations was started, the School Board's debt was 108 percent on the primary coverage. The success of the Loss Control Program has reduced this debt to a credit of eight percent on the primary coverage and a credit of 16 percent on the excess limits for the current school year.

The School Board's current premium is $36,000 but had the Board continued to operate under the high debt, the current premium would have been $85,000. This program constitutes for the current school year a direct savings of $49,000. No one could estimate the indirect costs of accidents over the direct costs. The National Safety Council has proven that the indirect costs for accidents run approximately five times the direct costs.

Based on premium reductions since the beginning of the program, the School Board has saved approximately one-quarter of a million dollars in indirect costs by reducing the number of accidents, and the severity of these accidents.

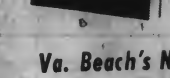

Indirect costs of accidents to any school system involve the salary of employees lost because of injuries received in the accident, the loss of the use of the vehicles damaged in accidents, the loss of productive time of the employees investigating and doing the paperwork on these accidents, plus of course, the cost of the repair of damaged vehicles and the time lost for those employees doing the repairs.

The recent analysis of accidents of Virginia Beach school buses has shown that the majority of the accidents which have occurred, occurred in the parking lots of the schools. The few serious accidents which have occurred during the past three years have been non-preventable in regard to the drivers.

The report on the bus operations stated that the company doing the report lauded the operations such as the Virginia Beach bus operations for cities and counties in Virginia and neighboring states and that none of these operations come even close to the excellent program of the Virginia Beach School Board.

The Virginia Beach School Board's Program of Loss Control is used as a guide in preparing similar loss control programs for school bus operations for other school divisions in the State of Virginia and in neighboring states.

Artist Is Exhibiting

A local artist is presenting an art exhibition at Virginia Wesleyan College during the month of November.

Mrs. Sandy Miller Lapchick of Virginia Beach opened a showing of her creative stichery, paintings and sculpture Tuesday night with an informal reception in the Henry Clay Hofheimer, II Library. The showing is open to the public.

Mrs. Lapchick is the wife of Richard E. Lapchick, assistant professor of political science at Virginia Wesleyan College. She received the Bachelor of Arts degree in artistry from Colby College in Maine and has attended the graduate school of the University of Denver.

Mrs. Lapchick is also the creator of "Tingles", miniature jigsaw puzzle for Springfield Editions, Inc., which have been featured in various national publications.

Substitute Site Sought

School Supt. E.E. Brickell, who says "we don't want to have controversy stirred up over the schools," said Tuesday it would be impossible for him to recommend a North Virginia Beach School site to the School Board that is not free.

This was in reference to the suggestion that an alternate school site be found to the free one on 15 acres of Seashore State Park which is cut off from the rest of the park. The park site is opposed by the Citizens' Committee for Seashore State Park.

"No public body can carry on a battle with private citizens in the newspapers," said Brickell.

Although he has the results of an ecological study the School Administration had made of the park last month, Brickell said he will not release it until it is requested by an "official body."

Brickell added that an alternate site would not only have to be free, it would have to be within a mile and a half of the proposed to serve the area for which the school will be built.

"That area is growing," said Brickell, pointing out that Alantown is becoming overcrowded, a situation partially caused by the increased number of multiple housing units in the area.

An alternate site within the boundaries of Ft. Story is under consideration. However, the federal government would have to agree to give the property to the schools or lease it at a minimum price.

"There's plenty of land available in Creeds," said Brickell. "But we don't need another school in Creeds."

Funds to build the proposed 900-pupil school will be included in the coming $18.4-million school bond issue.

Management Group Picks Mgr. Scott

City Manager Rodger M. Scott was notified Wednesday that he has been formally accepted into the International City Management Association.

Scott, who has been with the city for two years, said his acceptance as a full fledged member came after he completed his second year as the city's manager.

Previously, he held an assistant membership in the organization, but now holds full membership and is eligible to hold office in the organization and have a vote.

In order to gain membership, a manager must have been with a city for at least two years and have three years' managerial experience.

Contest Seeks Book-Mark

The Virginia Beach Public Library System is sponsoring a "Design a Book-mark" contest to commemorate National Children's Book Week, Nov. 15-22.

Children in grades 1 thru 5 are urged to submit an entry. Eight prizes will be awarded; two from each library. A prize will be given to the best entry from grades 1 thru 3 and another to the best entry from grades 4 thru 5.

The eight winners will then be judged to select the best design in the entire contest. The final choice will be printed and the book-mark will be distributed at the circulation desk of each library in Virginia Beach.

Contest rules are:

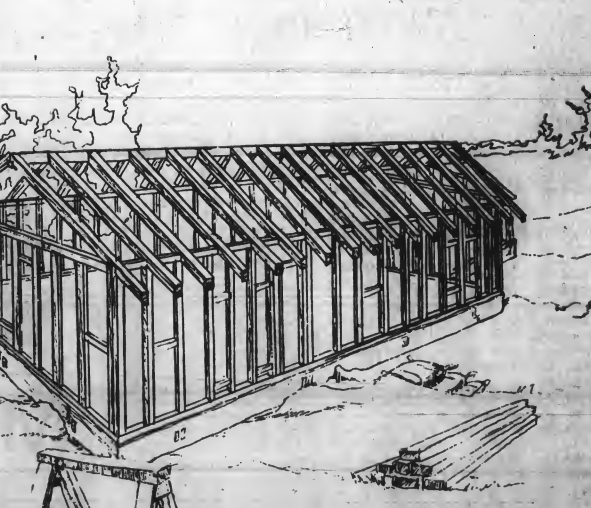

1. Design or draw an original book-mark.
2. The book-mark may be submitted on your choice of paper but must be 8 1/2 inches long and 2 1/2 inches wide.
3. On the back of the entry, write your name, grade, school and phone number.
4. Return the completed work to your nearest branch library.
5. The contest begins on Nov. 3 and ends Nov. 17.
6. Prize winners will be notified by phone and the prize awarded on Nov. 24th at 4 p.m. at your branch library.

Program Helps Kids Learn

Approximately 100 children are participating in an after school study program being conducted at the Seateck Community Center for Virginia Beach public school students having difficulty in staying abreast of other students in their classroom work.

The program was organized by women connected with the Seateck STOP Program who discovered that a number of children, despite their own efforts, were unable to meet required public school standards.

These women are being assisted by priests of the Star of the Sea Catholic Church in administration of the program and by members of the Tidewater Home Builders Association Ladies Auxiliary who donate instructional material for the program.

This specialized tutoring is conducted from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Seateck Community Center and includes students from public school grades four through nine.

The program includes personalized instruction in such subjects as mathematics, reading, spelling and history. Instruction is conducted by a number of teachers from public schools, interested adults and senior high school students who volunteer their time.

Those children who take part in the specialized training are usually recommended by their public school teachers who feel the students will benefit.

Plans now call for the Public Library Bookmobile to make regular visits to the Community Center on Tuesday afternoons to afford the children use of library books which will be beneficial to them in the instruction.

Those connected with the program say they are extremely pleased with the manner in which the children are responding to the training and their intense interest in wanting to further their education.

Although the program is operating on a sound footing at the present time, a need does exist for additional training material and individuals who might participate as instructors.

Persons who want to assist in obtaining instruction materials or wish to devote their time to the program may obtain additional information by calling the "school" at the Seateck Community Center, phone 428-0782.

Drug Abuse Charged

Police investigators say they arrested Joseph L. Heffernan, 21, of West Lynnhaven Court early Saturday morning on charges of violating drug abuse laws.

According to officials Heffernan is facing charges of possession of marijuana with intent to sell, and possession of hashish with intent to sell. Authorities said Heffernan was arrested when approximately one pound of marijuana and 14 grams of hashish were allegedly found in his truck as he was driving it near the intersection of Independence Blvd. and Bonney Road.

Police also said they confiscated Heffernan's truck.

Council Asked To Aid Heart Victims

If Federal funding is forthcoming, Virginia Beach will become the first city in the country to use an all-volunteer force to stem the high mortality rate caused by heart attacks.

Members of the Emergency Coronary Care Committee told City Council Monday that if a $215,000 grant application is approved, members of the Virginia Beach rescue squads will be equipped to handle potential heart attacks at the scene, thereby reducing the death rate.

Dr. William A. Dickinson told council that the greatest cause of death in the United States is the heart attack, that because victims can't receive immediate treatment, and that about 60 per cent of them die unnecessarily away from a hospital.

Dr. Dickinson said that many times the victims die because they haven't received care within a five or six minute time limit. Rescue squadmen, because they are scattered throughout the city, can reach the victims but can't treat them due to lack of knowledge and equipment.

If the federal grant is approved, that problem will be remedied.

The majority of victims die due to ventricular fibrillation, which Dr. Dickinson explained as an out-of-rhythm pulsing of the heart. Through the use of electric shock, the heart is returned to its normal pattern, he said.

Under the proposed system, rescue squadmen would be equipped with a defibrillator and an electro-cardiograph (EKG), a device which records the rhythms of the heart.

The squadmen, once notified of the location, could be at the site within the five or six minute limit. At that point, they would hook the patient to the EKG and transmit the readings to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach, where they could be interpreted by a staff physician.

"At no time would the rescue squad be making any decisions that they should," said Dr. James P. Charlton, a member of the committee.

"The doctor gives the order to shock if it's necessary," he said. "They are extensions of his arms."

Dr. Charlton said the effectiveness of the project was based on the fact that the units could reach a victim immediately while a hospital-based unit might take 40 minutes or more to reach a person in outlying areas.

The equipment, he said, was simply operated after a period of training and could greatly increase the chances for life of a coronary patient.

Each unit would have a two-way radio unit, which would relay voice messages to and from the hospital as well as transmit the EKG readings. The defibrillator would be battery-operated and portable.

Dr. Dickinson said that several other cities have used the same system, such as Miami Beach, Jacksonville, and Hartford, Conn., among others.

But the difference is that these cities use paid firemen or ambulance personnel.

In order to enact the program, Dr. Dickinson asked the Council for:

- * Provide an additional repeater voice-communication system for dispatching fire and emergency vehicles. The present non-repeater system would then be used as a standby system for personnel working a fire.

- * Obtain a frequency from the Federal Communications Commission in the 450 megacycle range that would be used by squads for EKG signal relays.

- * Enact a resolution endorsing the application, which has been approved by the Virginia Regional Medical Programs group, to the effect that after completion of the federal subsidy three years from now the city would seriously consider taking over the program.

- * Donate time on the city-owned computer for storage of information pertaining to the program for later evaluation.
- * Require all policemen, firemen and lifeguards involved in city sponsored programs to undergo training in treatment of heart attacks. The training would be carried out at no cost to the city.

Mayor Donald H. Rhodes said he felt the council would pass a positive resolution supporting the committee's efforts at its formal meeting November 6. Dr. Dickinson said if federal funding was not available, the group would still implement the program through another method of funding.

In other matters, Council was told the Chesapeake Bay Bridge under the Long Creek Bridge has been seriously eroded, and that strong currents through that waterway may have undermined the bridge piling. City Manager Roger M. Scott said steps must be taken to prevent the weakening of the bridge and to protect the northern bank of the canal.

Was briefed on the activities of the Auxiliary Police Force and requested that a study be made of the funds provided that group by the city. Col. William T. MacFarland said the only thing the city provides the force is a pair of pants, a shirt and badge, the remainder of the equipment is provided by the individual officers, he said.

Council will investigate the case to see if financial relief can be given to the men through the use of city purchasing.

* Decided that it would wait until the present engineering project in Rudee Inlet was completed before it made any comment on the effectiveness of the Erosion Commission in resolving the clearing of the Rudee Inlet channel.

New Zealander to Visit

Stanley Utting, an educator from Hamilton, New Zealand, will be a visitor to the Virginia Beach Schools Nov. 18 through 21.

Utting is on a tour of desegregated American school systems as part of his participation in the 1970 International Education Program sponsored by the United States Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Utting is a graduate of Auckland Teachers College and the University of New Zealand. He is currently the District Senior Inspector of Secondary Schools.

While in Virginia Beach, he will consult with the school administration staff and will visit in the City's junior and senior high schools.

Referendum Poses Tax Increase of 34-Cents

City Council learned Monday that a 34 cent hike in the assessed rate per $100 valuation of real estate spread over the next three years will be necessary if a proposed $18.4 million school bond issue is passed.

Lawrence B. Wales Jr., the city's financial expert from Wheat & Co., said the increase was based on the assumption that there would be no increase in the ratio of assessed valuation of real estate.

Wales, who appeared before the informal council meeting along with School Supt. E. E. Brickell and School Board Chairman J. W. Buffington to discuss the import of the bond referendum and taxes, said the tax rate was based on the assumption that the sale would be approved in the first quarter of 1971.

The proposed tax increases would be 20 cents the first year, 12 cents in 1972 and two cents in 1973, based on real estate valued at $655,000,000. City officials said they were amazed at the hike, since they had expected it would be more in the range of 40 to 46 cents.

Wales said the hikes were based on the sale of the bonds over three years, with $9 million sold the first year, $7 million sold the second year and $2.4 million sold the final year. The sales would be at an debt interest rate of six per cent and amortized over a period of 15 years.

Thus, the $18.4 million bond issue would eventually cost the city $27.4 million when the interest on the issues were paid. The 1970 rate in Bayside, Kempsville, Lynnhaven, and Princess Anne mosquito tax districts is $2.05. It would increase to $2.25 in 1971, $2.37 in 1972, and $2.39 in 1973. In Blackwater and Princess Anne Boroughs the tax rate is $2 and would increase to $2.20 in 1971, $2.32 in 1972, and $2.34 in 1973.

Virginia Beach Borough's present rate is $2.45 and it would increase to $2.65 in 1971, $2.77 in 1972 and $2.79 in 1973.

Brickell said the low tax rate increase indicated that the city has an excellent reputation for financial management and the approach it utilizes.

Brickell and the rest of the group appeared before council to explain the increase and respond to questions concerning why the referendum couldn't be split into two issues.

Councilman George R. Ferrell said he had received calls to the effect that the people wouldn't mind paying for the schools but not physical education facilities, also a part of the bond issue.

The issue is to finance the construction of one high school, three elementary schools, and additions to 15 schools; among the additions are 13 gymnasiums.

Brickell said the gymnasiums were a part of a new approach to physical education and reflected a new attitude with respect to the board's educational philosophy.

He said the package should be accepted as a total concept and not broken down into several issues for consideration.

Brickell said the schools could teach home economics without a kitchen, agriculture without farms and science courses without laboratories, but "we can teach it a little better with the proper facilities."

He said the swimming pools included in the proposal are part of a plan to better educate the youngsters in the City about water safety, and was questioned by Ferrell as to the necessity of the pools as opposed to more instruction in reading and writing.

Sgt. Beane listens attentively during one of his classes in the specialized "firearms instructor" course at the FBI National Academy.

Sgt. Beane Is First To Complete Course

Sgt. M. E. Beane, police Training Aide, has become the first Virginia Beach police officer to attend the specialized "firearms instructor" course of training at the FBI National Academy in Quantico, Va.

The two weeks course qualified Beane to instruct other law enforcement officers in the use of various firearms and to qualify other police officers as instructors in firearms training programs.

A number of other officers in the police department are qualified to conduct firearms training, but Beane is the first to ever receive this particular type of instructors training. Capt. D.W. Simmons, police Training and Personnel Division C.O., elaborated on the importance of Beane's training at Quantico by saying that "due to his qualifications in this area we'll be able to qualify several men in this department (as firearms instructors) and alleviate the pressure of having to rely on outside agencies, such as the FBI, for instructors."

Simmons added the department will still rely on outside agencies for training fundamentals, but Beane's training will mean the Virginia Beach police department will now become more self sufficient in the field of firearms training.

Beane's training at Quantico also included a course in gunsmithing. Simmons pointed out this will enable Beane to make minor repairs of police department firearms and train other officers in this work thus removing the necessity of sending police weapons back to a factory for repairs.

Beane's training was conducted by the FBI under the provisions of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, which enabled local law enforcement officers to receive this specialized training at no cost to the officer or his department.

Burglars Hunted

Police continue their search for suspects in the burglarizing of the Jeanette W. Malbone home on Indian River Road last Monday.

Officials quote the woman with saying her home was illegally entered by forcing a door.

More than $1,000 worth of personal belongings and household items, including television sets, a assorted jewelry, watches, a coin collection and firearms, were reported taken during the break-in.

Autograph party planned Friday for local writer

Eloise Franco of Lake Drive, wife of Norfolk Symphony composer Johan Franco, has written a new book which is geared to children of all ages.

The book, "Little Stories," is a collection of 11 short stories, individually illustrated by Rein Bredius, repeats simple truths of life and helps children accept what they are instead of what they want to be. For instance there is a story of a forlorn little button in the button box who never gets chosen, and who has no history of adorning party dresses or uniforms, but who finally becomes the cute button nose on a child's doll. Or the smallest piece of taffy, left alone and unchosen in the candy dish, who is finally selected for the most important task of all; pulling a small boy's tooth and helping him be visited by the Tooth Fairy.

Mrs. Franco will be at the Ragged Robin Book Shop, 327 Laskin Road on Friday, Nov. 6, from 2-5 p.m. to autograph copies of her "Little Stories."

written while she was librarian's assistant in the Children's Department on the Virginia Beach Public Library. She is presently receptionist at a local dance studio where she is constantly surrounded by children.

She has written several adult books and in collaboration with her husband has written the words to numerous children's songs, a children's play, "The Prince and the Prophecy," a series of projects, "Making Music," designed to encourage children to make up their own songs, and Easter Cantata and a Christmas Oratorio.

As a writer and lecturer, former editor of "The Searchlight," the magazine of the Association for Research and Enlightenment, Eloise Franco is listed in "Who's Who in American Women."

'Great Brown Owl' lands at Oceana

Scouting and Scouts have changed like everything else since Edna Ballinger's book over leadership of the first successful Brownie Scout troop in the United States 47 years ago.

the national convention to explain the Brownie program and what to expect of Brownies. "I went home and wrote the handbook." This was the first Brownie handbook.

Small wonder that Miss Price became known as the "Great Brown Owl of Scouting."

The salute to former Scouts took place last Thursday at Oceana Officers Club and included a luncheon. Mrs. R.L. Smouse, area chairman, was presented with a monogrammed pin during the program.

Miss Price was not by any means the only "old timer" at the meeting. Another was Miss Buck Harris, first District Director of Virginia Beach.

Miss Price was not by any means the only "old timer" at the meeting. Another was Miss Buck Harris, first District Director of Virginia Beach.

Another was Mrs. Margaret Hedley, a former Sea Scout who is one of the few holders of the Golden Eagle, formerly the Girl Scout equivalent of the Eagle award of Boy Scouts. It is no longer given. She was also Princess Anne District Chairman.

Mrs. George Boush was the first Girl Scout Captain in Tidewater in 1916 and brought a charter signed by Juliette Low, founder of the Girl Scouts, for the original troop in Portsmouth.

Mrs. Emmett Kyle has 36 years of Scouting experience as a leader.

Mrs. Helen Smith was leader of the first Brownie Troop in Virginia Beach in 1945, and Mrs. Evelyn Clarke became the Virginia Beach Scouting organizer in 1949.

Special tribute was paid to Mrs. V. Hope Keilam, who was unable to attend the luncheon, but was the first trained Scout in this area. She is also known for the history of Princess Anne County she wrote some years ago which traces not only the County's history but also the old houses here.

Also discussed at the meeting was the Girl Scout but near Oceana which Area IV is trying to preserve. It has been suggested that it be used as a museum of Girl Scouting, however, approval from the Tidewater Council is needed before this can be done. A committee of men was appointed to find sponsors for the but.

Dough means Christmas 'dough'

While most girls their age are rolling out cookie dough, Kim and Terrie Landeck are rolling out Christmas tree ornaments.

The girls, Terrie is 11 and Kim 10, are presently going door to door in their Lynwood area with boxes of samples of their wares and taking orders with the promise of delivery in time for Christmas. So far they have orders from nine people for more than 50 of the brightly decorated ornaments.

"We made some for our Christmas tree last year," said

Kim. "This year we wanted to make money for Christmas presents."

The dough is made from flour, salt and water, then rolled out like cookie dough. Next the girls use Christmas cookie cutters to form the ornaments. Then they are allowed to dry for about two days.

The girls paint them with poster paint—some of them in great detail—and decorate them with sequins, rick rack, glitter, etc. Shapes include Christmas trees, angels, a full Santa Claus and a Santa Claus face, stars, Christmas balls and even a donkey. Prices vary according to design.

They have also made some ornaments out from plastic meat trays then covered with colored burlap and decorated, but these are too time consuming to make for sale.

Their mother, Mrs. Thomas F. Landeck Jr., said that four dozen ornaments don't take any more material than four dozen cookies.

"I think it's great they're this ambitious and industrious,"

Let's tar 'n feather Santa Claus

Things are in a pretty bad state of affairs when the only way people can get their kicks on Halloween is to put pills or razor blades into an innocent child's apple.

My kids had gotten the word in advance. They said before they went trick or treating that they weren't going to take apples from anybody this year.

Pretty soon the five-year-olds will have to carry switch blades with them to defend them selves on Halloween from "pranksters."

What's really bad is that the kids are beginning to accept it as a way of life. Their parents are the only ones that are still shocked.

We live in what is supposed to be a "nice" neighborhood.

Our kids got their pumpkin early. They nursed it along in the garage so that it would last until Halloween. Their father carefully cut a smiling face into it the night before. We put a candle inside it.

They could hardly wait to put it out on the front porch.

And the neighborhood "fiddies", who were perfectly willing to come by to get their candy despite the fact that they were somewhat large or old for that anymore, carried off the pumpkin and broke it in the gutter down the street.

The little ones who had come by earlier were the ones who said "thank you" for their treat. The older ones expected it and turned away without a word of thanks.

Maybe Santa Claus will bring switches and whips this year.

Grapes dress chops

The French has a word for it, Veau Cotelettes aux Raisins. French cooking always stresses the proper blending and delicacy of flavors in every dish. Veal chops, tender and brown, in a sauce golden clear flavored with wine, lemon, parsley and chives, made more delicious and colorful with the addition of red grapes.

Cook the grapes very little to preserve their lovely red color and crisp texture. Halve the grapes and with the flick of a knife remove the seeds. Drop the grapes into the sauce and heat only until sauce bubbles. Serve this dish with duchesse potatoes, petit pois and champignons and a salad of endive and olives. Add a dessert of lemon sherbet topped with a gaudette wafer or perhaps for the grape lovers, serve small bunches of grapes and wedges of camembert of brie.

VEAL CHOPS WITH GRAPE LEMON SAUCE
6 veal chops, about 3/4 inch thick
Salt, pepper, garlic powder
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup flour
1 cup white wine
3/4 cup chicken broth
2 tbsp. lemon juice
1 tbsp. chopped parsley
1 tbsp. frozen chopped chives

Sprinkle veal chops with salt, pepper and garlic powder. Heat butter in a skillet and brown chops on both sides. Cook over low heat, turning occasionally until chops are tender. It may be necessary to add a few spoons of water from time to time to keep chops from sticking. Remove chops to a platter and keep warm. Add flour to pan drippings and stir until smooth. Gradually stir in white wine, chicken broth, lemon juice, parsley and chives. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until sauce bubbles and thickens. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Stir in grapes and reheat until sauce bubbles. Spoon sauce over chops. Serves six.

Program to be on Christmas

Mrs. Malcolm H. Todd Jr. of Virginia Beach will present a program on "Christmas All Through the House," from 9:30 a.m. to noon on Nov. 12 at the Norfolk Federation of Garden Clubs Garden Center at 745 E. 22nd Street.

A "ding" donation will be made at the door. Ladies may contribute anything that will ding in the metal pot at the door, although bills won't be refused.

SHOT-GUN WEDDING

As Margaret approached her wedding day she was aware that her eleven-year-old brother, Harvey, was getting more and more upset, but didn't put too much emphasis on his obvious determination to stop her from getting married to Bill.

Three days prior to the wedding Bill came by and much to Margaret's surprise, out came Harvey with a rifle pointed at Bill telling them in no uncertain terms that there wasn't going to be a wedding!

After much persuasion, Harvey finally gave them the rifle even though he was still an unhappy young man over the prospect of his older sister getting married and living away from home.

Thank goodness he was a child who could be reasoned with, but I'm sure Bill and Margaret were even more grateful that the only weapon in the house belonged to Harvey; that weapon being an AIR rifle and not a shot-gun.

BLACK IS FOR MOURNING

A young lady recently came to me asking for the most appropriate attire in order for she and her husband to "get married again". Couldn't help but ask why.

It seems that plans for a wedding became so involved and caused such friction as to where they would be married - Virginia Beach, Florida (home of the bride), or California (home of the groom) - the young couple decided it would be best if they were married in another state and solve the debate.

They drove to North Carolina, got their license and were married in a local church by a minister. However, the young lady only took two dresses with her. One white (to be married in) and the other a black basic.

They took time to find a motel room where the bride could get dressed just before going to the church. When she put on her pretty white dress (she had worn it once before), the cleaners had stretched it so badly she couldn't wear it, the stores were closed and she was unable to do anything but wear her black dress. She says she was so uncomfortable taking her vows in a black dress she just knew she would spend the rest of her married life "in mourning". Consequently, they called their parents, had them come to Virginia Beach where they remarried "proper-like" in church, with parents present and with the bride in her lovely white dress.

MAID OF HONOR.... should be someone close to the bride.... a sister, very close friend, favorite cousin or sister-in-law. It is not mandatory to ask the fiancée's sister to be the honor attendant unless she is a close friend. As maid of honor she can assist in addressing invitations or take charge of recording and displaying wedding gifts, attend all pre-wedding parties given in the bride's honor and may give her one herself. She signs the marriage certificate, attends the bride during the ceremony and will assist in helping her change into her going-away outfit.

Help break in a bank. November 10.

It's our shiny new First and Merchants bank building in Princess Anne Plaza, just a few yards down from our old building. In fact, it's so shiny and new, we've felt sort of guilty about using the ash trays, or walking on the rugs. And it shouldn't be that way. So we decided to have a Break-In free gifts. Be sure to register for the free color TV to be given away the following week.

There'll be pretty hostesses serving tasty refreshments and giving out lots of

Drop in on our Break-In Party November 10 from 3:30 to 6 P.M. And please feel free to use the ash trays and walk all over the rugs. How else are you going to break in a bank?

Cox breaks no-win streak

Larry Stepney, Norview's All-Tidewater tailback, probably didn't like the remarks coming from the sidelines at Bayview Stadium any more than he did being behind 3-0.

As the Patriots lined up for their second play of the last half, several Bayview supporters pelted Stepney: "Hey, man, you don't look like any All-Tidewater football player tonight -- you're already three points behind."

Stepney, Tidewater's leading ground gainer, looked knowingly at the hecklers, then raced along the sidelines to the front of the Marlin bench where he snared one of the most remarkable catches of the season. Eighty-two yards later he was standing in the end zone with Norview's first of three touchdowns of the night.

And, by the time the final gun sounded, Norview had subdued the hopeful, but hapless, Marlin 22-10.

In other grid action involving Beach teams, amazing Kempville smashed powerful Indian River 20-0, Cox edged Booker T. Washington 6-0 for its first win of the year, Kellam fell to Granby 16-0 and First Colonial's visions of an upset over top-ranked Maury were smashed, 36-14.

Bayview's season record dipped to 4-3-1 via their losing effort. Stepney accounted for all of Norview's scoring with runs of 10 and 13 yards in addition to the 82-yard pass play.

The Marlin drew first blood on a 27-yard field goal by Bill Petree, the only effective place kicker in Tidewater high school ranks. The Marlin fought back after the Norview pass play to lead briefly after a two-yard plunge by quarterback Tom Chipok.

Across town at Cox High School, the Falcons' Al Williams tossed a 17-yard pass to Calvin Petty to break a 0-0 deadlock that had lasted three quarters. Then the Falcons--thanks to a timely pass interception by Buddy Byrd--held on to take their first win of the season.

Booker T. outgained the Falcons by 70 yards, but defensive play by Cox made the ultimate difference.

But Cox wasn't the only Virginia Beach team that had to rely on a stout defense for its victory. When the fourth quarter ended at Princess Anne, the Cavaliers had a 12-6 margin, but the Titans from Lake Taylor were resting on the PA 2-inch line.

Jerry McGrath, second only to Stepney in yardage, carried the ball 39 times for 189 yards in the winning effort. The first Cavalier tally came on a one-yard plunge by McGrath. The second touchdown covered 18 plays with McGrath carrying the first 17. Kenneth Ahles went the final yard to pay dirt after McGrath left with an injury.

Lake Taylor had tied the game at 6-6 on a 12-yard pass from Robert Mansfield to Donnie Marshall.

Kempville evened its season at 4-4 by outgaining Indian River, a team with a 5-2 record. Mike Shea came in for injured quarterback Bill Paschall and added the momentum for victory, hitting on nine of 13 passes for 170 yards.

The first Chief score came on a 52-yard pass from Shea to Don Hawk. Teammate Julius Hurdle, who totaled more than a 100 yards for the night, ran through the Braves for a 57-yard touchdown. Rich Deglow, a defensive halfback, picked off an Indian River pass and ran it in for the final Chief score.

Granby's Comets exploded for 16 points in the second quarter, then played an excellent defensive game to keep Kellam scoreless. Jim Oliver recovered a Kellam fumble on the one-yard line to set up the first score. The Knights fell victim to a 15-yard pass for the final tally.

Mrs. Grace Harrell Dies

Mrs. Grace George Harrell, 62, supervisor of Virginia Beach elementary schools, died Saturday. She was the wife of Joseph H. Harrell and the daughter of Mrs. Jane Davis George and the late William Waller George.

Mrs. Harrell had been associated with the Virginia Beach school system since 1940. She was a member of the Virginia Education Association and many other professional educational associations, as well as a lifetime member of the Parent Teacher Association.

She said the agency could not involve itself with noise, odor, or other nuisance conditions that might exist. "That's not under the purview of the board but up to the city health department," he said.

City Opposes Rate Raise

By JAMES TURNER

The County Utilities Corporation, a privately owned sewerage treatment facility, will find itself with opposition when it appears before the State Corporation Commission November 10 with a proposed rate increase.

Joining an attorney retained by private citizens will be City Attorney J. Dale Blinson, who will represent the city at the hearings. In addition, a State Water Control Board representative will appear at the SCC hearings.

The corporation, which provides sewage treatment for Birchwood Gardens, Kings Forest, Malibu and Thalia Manor, was charged Monday with operating a plant which doesn't provide competent service for area residents by P. H. Tunstall, president of the Birchwood Gardens Civic League.

Tunstall said the residents have been receiving "unsatisfactory service" and charged that County Utilities has been operating its plant above the prescribed level for safe operation.

He said the plant was originally designed to handle sewage for 3,000 persons, and that it later received permission to increase its service area to include 8,000 persons.

"We're going to do a house-to-house survey of the areas, and we've got a sneaking suspicion that we'll find they serve more than 8,000 people," he said.

Tunstall said the group would not be against the rate increase if the corporation would provide service comparable to those offered by the Hampton Roads Sanitation District (HRSD).

Many of the privately owned sanitation corporations have sold their sewage lines to the city or to the HRSD, thus providing the families in the service area with larger system service.

But City Manager Roger M. Scott said that County Utilities and Kempville Utilities, both of whom are requesting rate increases, have "steadfastly refused" to link up with the HRSD system. Scott said that County had offered the city its facilities, including its treatment plants and sewage lines, but that the city was not in a financial position to buy them.

"If we bought the system, we would abandon their treatment plants," he said, "and use the lines. They're the most valuable assets."

County Utilities presently charges customers $10.50 per quarter, and is requesting that the figure be increased to $15 per quarter. The HRSD charges customers $4.50 for sewage treatment, and the city charges the consumer $6 per quarter for use of the lines.

County executive Stanley Waranch, who along with Warren Baxbaum is a principal in the corporation, said the proposed increase was a matter of economics.

"We've been losing money," he said, "and been faced with inflation since 1956 when we began the facility, but we've kept the rates the same." Waranch said the problem would not be as severe if the SCC had approved a rate increase to $12 in 1965, but they refused.

Waranch said the monster in the playlet was not his firm but the city.

He said that in 1955 the city encouraged private developers to provide sewage services, so the city could expand, and terminate the use of septic systems.

"We asked Hampton Roads to provide a service when we started, but were told it wasn't economically possible," he said. At the urging of the county planning department, Waranch said services were provided for Thalia Manor and Malibu.

"They lauded and applauded our efforts, but now the company is operating at a deficit and can't get any help," he said.

The proposed increase, if approved, would represent a three per cent increase each year over a 14 year period, since the rates have been the same since the corporation's inception, he said.

Waranch said the all the company was asking was to be allowed to operate at a reasonable profit, and added that County was willing to talk with the city or the HRSD about the acquisition of the facility.

But County is not interested in hooking its facility to the sanitation district's lines without its complete sale. Waranch said the company believed that hooking up would constitute a "taking of property without compensation," and that the customers would be charged a greater fee by the HRSD than if they remained with his firm.

He said his survey of 111 homes in Princess Anne Plaza, Kings Grant, and Windsor Woods areas showed that the residents were being charged an average of $7.44 by the HRSD for treatment and $9 by the city for the use of the sewer lines.

Waranch said his rates would be lower than those charged by the HRSD if they are approved, but that he would not hook up to the HRSD treatment system because of the loss of money in the deal.

Waranch estimated that the two treatment plants are worth about $500,000.

"We don't think that the city should turn around and decide that after 14 years they want to extend their lines. You wouldn't have Pembroke Mall or Princess Anne Plaza if it hadn't been for the private sewage groups," Waranch said.

"The city's development is related to the risk that the developers took a risk when the time came," he said. "Now they say, 'We've got everybody else, why not get you.'"

He said that the number of people served is not an issue. "That's a non-scientific criterion. What counts is the number of gallons per day our sewerage treatment plants handle, and we're well within the limits."

"It doesn't smell like a perfume factory, but then we're not making perfume out there," Waranch said, adding that the firm uses about $800 a month for masking agents.

The two holding ponds used by the firms, which have been a point of contention for the residents, are not necessary, he said. "The effluents in the ponds have been treated and are chlorinated."

"What we put in the Lynn haven is a hell've a lot more pure than the water they're talking about using for drinking water from the Northwest River in Chesapeake," he said.

Waranch said that if anything is at fault for pollution of the Lynnhaven and its fingerlets, it's the septic tanks in the area. "We're not polluting."

An area supervisor for the State Water Control Board said that pollution from the facility is a "yes and no" issue.

The plant as a secondary treatment plant is doing a good job, said Gerald T. Yagel. He said a secondary treatment plant's job is to remove secondary solids and maintain the biochemical oxygen demand (BOD).

Yagel said the state requires that the efficiency be at least 85 per cent or greater. "The plant is within that range," he said.

But what concerns the water control agency is the heavy algae growth. And to control that, the company needs a tertiary treatment plant.

Yagel said what caused the algae growth are the high degree of nutrients that present themselves in human solid waste in the forms of nitrates and phosphates and the BOD.

Yagel said the algae grows on these nutrients, and that they must be controlled or the algae will become so overgrown it will present a pollution problem.

"But the pollution can't be attributed to County Utilities alone," he said.

Yagel said the board, which has requested the firm apply tertiary treatment, isn't concerned about the money. "What we're concerned about is water pollution."

He said the agency could not involve itself with noise, odor, or other nuisance conditions that might exist. "That's not under the purview of the board but up to the city health department," he said.

A WEEKLY PICTORIAL

MUSIC CLINIC

NEW ART GUILD

POPPY DAY

Above
BILL SUMMERLIN, well known local artist and president of the Chesapeake Art Guild, felt that there were too many prospective artists among the youngsters of Tidewater that were not being encouraged or recognized. He did something about it. The results—"Young Artist of College Park". This new organization of budding artists limits the age of members to 17 and the dues are only two dollars a year. The club meets on Saturdays at College Park in a building, the use of which is, donated by their sponsors, Larrymore Foundation. Membership is open to any interested party, 17 years old and under, in the Tidewater area. Prospective new members are especially invited to the first and second Saturday meetings in the month.

More pictures on pages 8 and 9.

Left Above
Virginia Beach Elementary school teachers gathered at Alanton Elementary last week for a music clinic. Teacher CHARLOTTE CARWOOD of Thalia Elementary played the finger cymbals in an impromptu orchestra arranged by clinic instructor MRS. GRACE NASH.

1970 VFW BUDDY POPPY CAMPAIGN
Members of Beta Sigma Phi will be selling poppies in the Princess Anne Plaza area on November 7 and 8th. The sorority will be assisting with the 1970 VFW Buddy Poppy Campaign to raise money for the widows and orphans of deceased veterans. DON GARCIA, area-wide chairman of the campaign, gives instructions to members of Beta Sigma Phi members MRS. D.C. MCWATERS and MRS. R.C. JONES.

Virginia Beach Elementary School Music Clinic

Clinic instructor was MRS. GRACE NASH, top advisor and clinician in the creative approach to elementary music education, representing Kitching Educational Division of Ludwig Industries. "MRS. NASH, prominent American authority on pedagogical principals and approaches of Orff and Kodaly, has a wide experience in working with children, both as a classroom teacher and music specialist. Her seminars for teachers have gained nationwide attention from many colleges and administrators as a revitalizing force in elementary music curriculum planning. She is a leader in innovative and creative techniques, principals and approaches to provide "peaks" learning experiences in the music class. Achievement of music skills and music literacy are among the natural results but academic subjects such as literature, language arts and social studies are also drawn into their relationship with music which becomes the core of the curriculum."

DIANE SANDERLIN, Plaza Elementary, plays the guitar in a way we've never seen a guitar played before. The INSIGHT photographer was so engrossed in taking the picture that he neglected to find out the reason for the unorthodox way of playing.

LEKIES METHODIST CHURCH

Making Santa Clauses for Christmas tree ornaments are MRS. JOHN KORDULAK and MRS. BURTON B. RUSSELL.

Lekies United Methodist Church, on Virginia Beach Boulevard near Newtown Road, will hold its annual bazaar on Saturday, November 21st, from 10 A.M. to 6 P.M. The ladies of the church have been working for several weeks preparing for the bazaar so the INSIGHT photographer stopped by one night recently and found this group busily cutting, sewing, gluing etc. Men of the church have also been working but were not available the night the photographer was there. Displayed here are some of the items which the ladies of Lekies United Methodist Church have been making to be sold at their bazaar.

Pre-School Halloween Party

Instead of the Children's Story Hour last Thursday, the Windsor Woods Branch Library gave a Halloween party for the boys and girls. Also attending was a Halloween witch.

The witch was a bit late arriving and blamed the delay on "broom trouble". One young man said he was a good mechanic and offered to fix the broom.

Come see a car with an engine in the front, the back,
and the middle.

The Audi 100LS

The Porsche 914

The car with the engine in the front is called the Audi.

It stops differently, turns differently, moves differently, even uses gas differently than just about every other car in the world. (Sixty-one years of German engineering experience has taught us a few things.)

The car with the engine in the rear is the Porsche 911.

A true classic in sports cars. And a classic in engineering. In fact, over the past twenty-one years Porsches have proven to be so well engineered, so precise, that they've won more than one thousand major races.

And the car without an engine in the front or the back is the Porsche 914.

We put the engine in the middle so the 914 would hold the road better, corner surer, and brake smoother than almost any other car.

At the auto show we'll be glad to show what our cars look like in real life. We're very proud of them.

And we'll show you something we're even more proud of than the way they look:

PRINCESS ANNE RURITAN AUCTION

Princess Anne Ruritan Club held its annual auction last Saturday on Holland Road. Anyone who doesn't attend auctions is missing out. Not only on some good buys but many people, like the IN SIGHT photographer, find them fun even if you don't bid or buy. Auctioneer Maury Riganlo kept things moving right along and yet, even though the auction started at 10 A.M., it was still going strong when we left around 4 P.M.

Youngsters Hold Garage Sale and Bazaar

With garage sales and bazaars being so rife at this time of year it's no wonder that the youngsters are also getting into the act. With two garages and a playhouse stacked with merchandisable items at the R. MILTON WARREN home on Cherry Lane in Old Alanton, the WARREN youngsters and neighborhood friends decided to have their own garage sale and bazaar last Friday and Saturday.

PEMBROKE MALL BAZAAR

Pembroke Mall hosted many clubs and organizations at their annual bazaar last week. Each of the non profit organizations set up a booth at the mall and raised money for their favorite projects. The Linkhorn Park Garden Club, beside having several items on sale, accepted donations toward the drawing for this granny afghan which their president, MRS. J. JAMES DAVIS, made and donated to the club.

Manning the Camp Fire Girls booth, to sell the many items made by the girls and their mothers, were MRS. CAROL COX and MRS. AURELIE DEIBERT.

At the Pembroke Meadows Garden Club booth were MRS. T. A. HEAD, librarian, and MRS. E. E. SCHNETZLER, president.

Oceana Exec. Retires

CAPTAIN JOHN LAVRA, Executive Officer of Oceana Naval Air Station since July, 1969, retired last Friday in ceremonies held in hanger 500 at the station. CAPTAIN LAVRA and his wife, MAROLYN, plan to settle in the Virginia Beach area with their six children. CAPTAIN LAVRA, a reserve, began his naval career in 1944 as a combat crewman. On October 10, 1947, at Pensacola, Florida, he was commissioned as an ensign and designated a naval aviator. During the Korean conflict CAPTAIN LAVRA flew 68 missions and was shot down twice, the second time 30 miles behind enemy lines where he was rescued by a helicopter. Official U.S. Navy Photo.

Navy-Owned Pendleton Tract may be Released

By JAMES TURNER

Shown in black, the 27.5 acres in question.

The Navy has indicated unofficially it is willing to relinquish control of a small portion of land that juts into state-owned Camp Pendleton in order to solidify 1200 feet of beachfront with the remainder of the 450-acre site the city wants to buy.

In a meeting Tuesday with several Virginia Beach citizens, officials at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base said they would transfer 27.5 acres if the city would allow them ownership of a portion of South Birdneck Road.

The city would have to build another road parallel to South Birdneck Road as its accessway to its oceanfront property, a citizen's spokesman said.

At present, the existing road acts as the southern boundary of the federally-owned land in question but continues back into state-owned land.

The parcel of land represents a peninsula jutting into Lake Christine inside National Guard boundaries, and is held by the Fifth Naval District command for use by the Fleet Amphibious Force.

In order for a transfer to be approved, the Department of Defense and other military and governmental agencies would have to agree to the relinquishment.

However, the citizen's spokesman said he felt sure the Navy and other commands would go along with a transfer that would solve the Navy's as well as the city's problems.

Jaycees Speak Out On Camp

The Virginia Beach Jaycees said Tuesday that Camp Pendleton "should not be used for any commercial development now nor anytime in the future," and conveyed those sentiments to Mayor Donald H. Rhodes by letter.

Jaycee President Robert L. Warren said the membership, after its regular meeting, felt that it was time to go on record. "We fully support the development of Camp Pendleton as a multi-purpose recreational facility," Warren said, but stands firm against commercial encroachment.

Warren noted that the development would benefit not only the residents but also thousands of citizens who comprise this metropolitan area.

"The Jaycees firmly believe that this relatively unspoiled, 450-acre natural area should be held in perpetuity for the recreational use of the public," Warren said.

He said the Jaycees would like to see an immediate study of the Camp Pendleton area done by a professional land planning group, with consideration given to a municipal zoo and/or aquarium, an additional golf course, horse stables and riding trails, jogging and bicycle trails and surfing and bathing areas.

In addition, he said, planning should be given to a multi-purpose recreational park for all outdoor sports.

The area which the Jaycees refer to is currently owned by the state and the federal government, both of whom are being asked to relinquish their proportion to the city for recreational development.

If the state turns over the land to Virginia Beach.

Thus, the city would not have to worry about two divided areas for development and two different means of access for development, the spokesman said.

A Navy spokesman said the land has been leased to the state for the past 11 years, the lease being renewed every five years.

The Navy spokesman agreed that the land represents a barrier to development which is considered so vital by the city. "Everybody's looking into it," the officer said, "but I can't tell you what's going to happen." He said that in addition to the land, the Navy has its bleachers set up on state beachfront and uses them for landing observations.

"This is a very sensitive subject," said another Navy official, who added that the land has been Navy property since the late 1940s. "This covers more than my responsibility," the officer said, and indicated that a formal answer to the citizen's move to gain the use of the land would have to come from a higher source.

But the military response, although guarded, was favorable, said the citizens' spokesman.

For several months numerous citizen groups have been trying to acquire Camp Pendleton for city recreational use, among them, the Virginia Surfing Association, several drug rehabilitation groups, and others.

If the city uses the land for recreational purposes and does not turn it over to private developers, Mayor Donald H. Rhodes said he could see no reason why the government would fail to turn the land over.

When asked what the city might offer for the land if it's for sale, Rhodes chuckled and replied, "One dollar would seem like a good figure if we could get that price."

The Navy has not commented on the value it places on the parcel, nor has indicated what it would accept in lieu of money.

In a letter to Governor A. Linwood Holton, Rhodes asked that "ownership of the camp (be) vested in the City of Virginia Beach."

He noted that the state has just purchased oceanfront property below the Department of the Interior's wildlife refuge for state park uses, and added that "Our city has greater need for the property than does the Commonwealth."

Rhodes said the entire parcel should be kept together and not divided "piecemeal into a multitude of uses at the present time," that it would require long-range planning to determine the best use of the entire site.

However, he said, the site should be considered as a temporary site for a proposed community college in Virginia Beach until a permanent site can be developed in the Green Run development off Holland Road.

There are other uses of the land that can be considered, such as a location for drug treatment, an enlarged area for surfing and so on, Rhodes wrote.

But "I would personally oppose any 'temporary' use of the land, since, like taxes, they can so easily become permanent," he continued.

If necessary, Rhodes said the city might consider buying land for a drug rehabilitation center since the need for such a unit was high on the city's priority list, rather than permanently commit a portion of Camp Pendleton.

The mayor said recreational use of the area would probably be most desirable, but that he was completely open to any suggestions.

He noted, however, that if the city leased the land to private developers it might not be able to derive any taxes from that real estate since it would be city-owned.

Although not a clear question, Rhodes said he had asked the city attorney's office for advice on the possible implementation of a lease holding tax, allowing the city to tax land it would lease.

This, he said, would allow the city to receive benefits from the land in terms of a tax base as well as the additional revenue it could possibly generate.

Rhodes said there were also possibilities that a convention center, horse race track, marina and several other projects could be developed in and around the site.

Already, the city has used about 250 acres of the land to build an 18-hole municipal golf course. Rhodes indicated there might be an additional need for another course.

"But again, you have to realize this is my personal thinking and that it can change at any time and is subject to other ideas," he said.

1st Triplets

Born at

V.B.G.H.

Virginia Beach General Hospital can boast of having its first set of triplets. Mother, father, and threesome all are reported doing fine.

The babies, two boys and a girl, were born Tuesday morning to Mrs. Deborah Dye, wife of John Dye of 1817 Ashley Drive. The couple were aware several months ago that triplets could be expected. They have no other children. According to the new father, these are "the first and the last."

The babies, unnamed at press time, were near full term and is obvious from their weight. Designated A, B, C, in order of birth, they are A, a boy, 4 lb. 15 oz., born at 9:36 a.m.; B, a boy, 6 lb. 5 1/2 oz., 9:38 a.m.; C, a girl, 4 lb. 11 oz., 9:41 a.m.

Insurance Crisis Faced

Citizens of Virginia are faced with the possibility of not being able to obtain automobile and homeowners insurance policies in the near future, according to a contingent of insurance agents from Virginia Beach and the Tidewater area who called on Governor Linwood Holton to outline the problems confronting the industry and offer possible solutions.

According to Barry Gidley, President of the Virginia Beach Association of Insurance Agents who participated in the conference with the governor, "The availability of insurance and the number of companies offering insurance to residents in the area are diminishing rapidly." He added, "Unless some method of solving the problem is devised more companies will pull out and we will be unable to obtain insurance coverage."

on existing rates, are becoming highly selective of the applicants they approve. As Gidley put it "The Agents of Tidewater are fighting for their lives in an effort to place insurance for their clients. It is safe to say that they spend one-third to one-half of their time trying to get the companies to continue policies which we have in force. And it is becoming more difficult all the time."

He pointed out that anyone with even a minor traffic accident which may not have been their fault, or a minor traffic violation, has considerable difficulty renewing their insurance.

Those who are cancelled become "assigned risk" and automatically pay higher premiums, and in many cases to companies which are considered high risk, sub-standard companies. This means many reliable customers wind up paying higher premiums than they ordinarily should.

A statement issued by the representatives who called on the governor states that "We as agents, certainly do not like increases in the cost of insurance any more than the consumer does, but we realize

(see Crisis Pg. 12)

A survey of the agents in Tidewater revealed twenty-eight companies are no longer accepting any new business in the personal lines of automobile or homeowners or both. And those companies which are writing new business indicate that severe underwriting restrictions for the acceptance of new policies have been instituted. These restrictions have resulted in many applicants, such as victims of non-fault accidents or minor traffic violations, not being able to renew their policies.

Agents point out that these same policy holders would have had no problem with renewals a couple of years ago but now the insurance companies are becoming so highly selective in the policies they write that minor incidents cause cancellations.

John Shinholser, a representative of the Virginia Association of Insurance Agents says the problem has been created by those who have so vocally championed the cause for "consumer protection". The association points out that while consumer protection is a popular cause, such action will lead to economic disaster for the insurance companies if, at the same time, price controls are not placed upon repair costs, medical expenses and legal fees.

One agent said that those who champion the consumer cause are in effect, harming the consumer. Gidley explained that the insurance companies, in an effort to operate at a profit

The First Name

Mrs. Peggy Skinner waits in line as husband Dr. Emmett C. Skinner Jr. signs the first petition being circulated throughout the city by the Committee for Control of Visual Pollution, a group formed to combat the possibility that billboards may be approved along the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway and other major arteries in the city. Looking on is VPC secretary Mrs. Paul S. Courson Jr. The petitions will be presented to City Council at its December 21 meeting.

Mayor To Carry Names To Paris

Mayor Donald Rhodes and Norfolk Mayor Roy Martin will leave Saturday for Paris carrying well over 100,000 signatures of area residents urging the release, or at least information on, the men being held or missing in Southeast Asia.

The trip is being sponsored by the Virginia Chapter of National League of Families of American Prisoners in Southeast Asia. Two other representatives may be added at the last minute but there was no confirmation Wednesday afternoon.

The two mayors were selected to make the trip because they represent the entire population of this area.

"This will be a people-to-people move, a humanitarian project," said Rhodes Wednesday. "We will carry with us the names of well over 100,000 people who are asking the delegation for information on the men missing in action, for assurance that the Geneva Convention is being followed with out prisoners and for permission to allow the Red Cross to visit the camps."

He said they would specifically ask for information on the 21 men from the Virginia Beach-Norfolk area. There are nine known prisoners of war and 12 missing in action.

Rhodes said he is encouraged that he and Martin will get in to see the delegation in Paris. They will spend Monday and Tuesday in Paris, returning to this country late Wednesday.

"If after two days the delegation won't see us," he said, "our chances will be pretty dim."

If that happens, the mayors will at least leave the petitions in the proper hands.

The League has solicited signatures, but not funds for the trip. There was a little trouble at the last minute, a spokesman for the wives said, but the men at Oceana Naval Air Station took up a collection Tuesday and added $500 to the fund. A private citizen, Mrs.

Sun Plans News Training

The Sun, through its In-Sight pictorial, has initiated a program designed to stimulate more interest in journalism in the local high schools.

The journalism classes in the six high schools have each been offered one page in the weekly tabloid for coverage of school activities with the students themselves in complete charge of content and lay-out.

First Colonial High School is the first to take advantage of the offer and that school's page appears in today's edition. The program allows the student-on-the-job training in writing, composition and make-up.

Students are selected by the journalism instructors to participate in the program. Those selected may compile and write their school's news, submit it to the Sun to be set, then do the complete lay-out paste-up for printing. They may even editorialize under the direction of their supervisor.

Schools wishing to participate in this program are asked to contact John Griffin, general manager of the Sun.

Members of the Virginia Beach Exchange Club apply the finishing touches to a replica of a "Vietnamese Prisoner Cage" and constructed from bamboo in connection with a program assisting American P.O.W.'s and M.I.A.'s.

Last performances are this week-end

Final performances of the Virginia Beach Little Theatre's presentation of the Robert Anderson drama "I Never Sang for My Father" will be Friday and Saturday nights at the Bay Harbour Room of the White Heron Motel. The touching and challenging play has been widely acclaimed by local critics and special praise has been awarded the four principle characters: Foy Shaw as the middle-aged son with Becky Russell as his martyred mother; Beth Kruger as the disabled daughter; and John MacArthur as the tyrannical father. A shrimp 'n' beer buffet will be served from 7 to 8 p.m., followed by the play at 8:30 p.m.

Sebastian Cabot

Charm best describes this 'gentleman's gentleman'

He walked into the room at the Mariner Motel, the epitome of the English gentleman, neat in a conservative blue business suit, a friendly hello, a warm handshake and a genuine smile behind that oh-so-familiar beard.

He relaxed in a chair—Sebastian Cabot, star of television's "Family Affair"—and for an hour or so made delightful conversation, and a few caustic remarks, on subjects ranging from nudity, sex and violence on the screen to his own personal problems of being type-cast as a "gentleman's gentleman".

Censorship is a particular bone of contention:

"I was in a show once where a young boy was supposed to pretend he was shooting at Indians. 'Bang! Bang!' went his imaginary pistol. Then down came the directive from upstairs....cut the scene, it was too violent. So it was changed to show the boy punching away, supposedly fighting the bad Indians. 'Pow! Pow!' he boxed his invisible foe. Again came the directive....cut the scene, it was too violent! Now that is ridiculous!"

"Parents are responsible for their children. They should be the ones to make the decision on whether or not a show is too violent for their child to see. Are they so pamper-pamby that they can't send him into another room, or upstairs to watch another channel on his own T.V. set? No. Television doesn't even allow the parent to make this decision. It is made for them. It's ridiculous!"

With a twinkle in his eye, knowing full well that his views would raise a few eyebrows, he tackled the question of "skin flicks" and sex.

"Nudity on the screen is all right if it is applied in the right sense. I have no objections to sex in the movies or on television as long as it is in good taste. There is nothing wrong with a nude man and woman in bed, carressing each other, but the scene should fade out at that point....I don't care to see the actual act on the screen.

"And, of course, I can hardly picture myself in a nude scene. I've been filmed stripped to the waist a few times but that's about as far as I care to go."

And while on the subject of sex, the star bemoaned the fact that the producers never see fit to introduce a little sex in his show.

"If Brian Keith or myself are ever pictured with a woman, she's usually a dog! I had one scene once where a woman—she must have been 900 years old—put her hand on mine. And they cut the scene!"

Cabot, who was here Monday for the Rotary Club's Virginia Beach Forum, is highly successful in his role as Keith's manservant on the comedy series, a fact which doesn't necessarily please him. He fears, as most actors do, that the series will type-cast him. "I will always have the image of a fat Arthur Treacher," he said.

His fears are well founded. After only two years of "Checkmate" he was typed as a British criminologist. With five years of "Family Affair" already behind him, his apprehension can be appreciated. He took the role of the manservant, in fact, because the "Checkmate" image had kept him from getting another job. "It was simply a matter of money," he laughed.

Sebastian Cabot, the actor, is a versatile performer whose talents range from Shakespearean drama to reciting "Winkle the Pooh." And it somewhat amuses him when fans express surprise at his ability to portray something other than an English butler. "That's what one character does for you. An actor becomes that one character in the eyes of the public and it's difficult as hell to get rid of that image!"

While Sebastian Cabot's man-servant may be slightly cool and aloof on television, Sebastian Cabot the person is far from that. There is considerable warmth and sincerity about him. And great English charm.

He is not as rotund as television would have you believe. Nor is he as old, either in years or attitudes, as the character he portrays. He is an enthusiastic story teller, as his audience learned Monday night and a remarkable conversationalist.

Cabot is apparently a patient man. He unhesitatingly answered the interviewer's questions, despite a pressing time schedule. And despite his anxiety to get away for a visit with his long-time friend, Noel Langely, who now lives near Sandbridge.

"What about Sebastian Cabot, the man? Who is he?" the actor was asked. "His wife, would probably tell you he's a s.o.b.," Cabot laughed. "But basically he's a man who enjoys the easy life, fishing, flying his own plane, and visiting the friends he seldom gets to see. He hopes someday he can do just occasional shows and spend the rest of his time being lazy. That's the man."

Want Entertainment? Then See 'Madam'

Once upon a time, in the mythical land of Lichtenburg, there was a robust lady ambassador from America whose only interest was giving elaborate parties and giving away one hundred million U.S. foreign aid dollars.

In Lichtenburg a country "too small to be a city and too big to be a town," there was a most charming and debonair man of great influence—sometimes the foreign minister, sometimes the prime minister, depending on the status of the Cabinet that week—whose pride would not allow him to accept the money for his country.

And wouldn't you know it! He fell in love with the flamboyant ambassadress.

To complicate things a bit more, the ambassador's young and handsome American aide fell head over heels for the beautiful but lonely Lichtenburg princess....a match hardly conducive to good international relations.

Now, pull all these little complications together with some delightful music and you have the Cavalier Dinner Playhouse's production of Irving Berlin's "Call Me Madam".

The show is an adaptation of the book by Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse and came off Broadway and the silver screen as pure Ethel Merman. Her enactment of the Mrs. Sally Adams role, the "hostess with the mostest," was in usual Merman fashion—strong, Theresa Worrall's interpretation of this role at the Cavalier has more gentleness. It is, in fact, a completely different Mrs. Sally Adams. And the change is most welcome. Mrs. Worrall displays her tremendous voice, and her flair for comedy, to its best advantage in this production. It is always a treat for the audience when a versatile performer finds an instrument to fit his or her talents and that is what Mrs. Worrall has in the role of Sally Adams.

Josh Barry as Cosmo Constantine, the prime minister, etc. fits his role to perfection. Just enough dignity to his bearing to make him a believable European political figure and enough warmth to his character for the audience to see why the lady ambassador becomes so infatuated with him. Amazingly, his intriguing accent stays with him throughout the entire show and adds its own touch of charm to his musical numbers.

There are a number of other familiar faces in "Madam"... James Welch, Jim Rankin and Richard C. Frederick, for instance....and they turn in their usual good performances; but the show belongs primarily to the four leading roles.

Jon Dawson, who seems always to have the magical touch with a musical, directs this one; the choreography is quite good under the direction of Susan Stinson; and the accompaniment by Diane Sanderlin, backed-up by Bernie Chapel and Jake Huff, is certainly what the familiar numbers need.

The overall production is good. The staging is excellent and the pace is lively.

"Call Me Madam" is nothing more than just plain enjoyable entertainment....and who could ask for anything more?

The new TAHB building will be dedicated today.

TAHB Building Dedication Set

The Tidewater Association of Homebuilders' new home at 5665 East Virginia Beach Boulevard will be dedicated today at 2 p.m.

Invitations have been extended to mayors of the four cities, other city officials, and FHA and VA chief underwriters. The building, designed by the architectural firm of Brundage, Cohen, Holton, and Kroskin, is the realization of a program which started in 1958 when a fund was established for the construction of a new office building.

Organized in 1953, TAHB first met in the Monticello Arcade in offices shared with the Norfolk and Portsmouth Real Estate Board. Later meeting places were at a one-story cinderblock building on Granby Street at 22nd Street, and at the Larrymore Professional Building.

The building occupies 2600 square feet of office space. The brick and stone structure contains three private offices, an office for bookkeeping and office-machine functions, and a small kitchen in addition to the reception room and boardroom.

Mrs. Nancy Clark and Mrs. Judy Spadea, of the TAHB Women's Auxiliary, were in charge of the interior decorating which

Assn. Picks Lumberman

George H. Burton, president of Burton Lumber Corporation of Chesapeake, is the new treasurer of the National Lumber and Building Material Dealers Association. The Association, which represents the nation's lumber dealers from its Washington, D.C., offices, held the elections Oct. 20 during its annual meeting in Miami Beach, Fla.

Burton, whose home is in Virginia Beach, has been active in industry affairs for most of the 24 years he has been in the lumber business. In addition to serving on the Budget and Executive Committees of the National Association, he has been president of the Virginia Building Material Association and of the Virginia Chapter, Architectural Woodworking Industry.

UCI Manager

Carmen Cernigliaro, 30, has been appointed manager of data processing by United Consolidated Industries (UCI). It was announced by Milton Dubrov, president of automotive parts warehouse network.

Cernigliaro will be responsible for systems design, programming and operation of the UCI in-house computer center headquartered in Norfolk. The company intends to utilize computer inventory control, billing and purchasing at all operating units in Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia and New York.

Cernigliaro resides at Virginia Beach with his wife and three children.

There will be handmade items for sale and games and prizes for the youngsters.

First & Merchants Plaza Bank

Showers failed to dampen the smiles of bank officials Al Craft, left and Floyd Waterfield, right, as Stuart Materne cut the ribbon Tuesday opening the new First and Merchants branch in Princess Anne Plaza which replaced an existing branch there.

It might have been schools rather than banks that were the topic of conversation for School Supt. E.E. Brickell and former Supt. Frank Cox, but they both were among dignitaries and interested persons attending opening ceremonies of the Plaza First and Merchants Bank.

Humanitarian Mission

Mayor Donald Rhodes will leave Saturday, along with Norfolk Mayor Roy Martin, for Paris, carrying with him the names of some 117,000 residents who are pleading for aid for our prisoners of war and those missing inaction in Southeast Asia.

With each of those names goes a prayer that the Paris delegation will listen to the people of Virginia Beach and Norfolk, and heed the cries for fair treatment of the prisoners, release if possible, and some word on the fate of those so long missing in action.

The people of these communities have done the one thing, in most cases the only thing, they could do to help the wives of these men who have so diligently struggled to help their husbands survive their plight. The POW-MIA Wives have faced rejection at the Paris peace talks, have faced apathy among their fellow Americans, have faced financial burdens to further their efforts to help their men.

Now, at last, they have the people behind them. They have shown the world, through these signatures, that Americans, specifically Virginians, do care what happens to the men in Southeast Asia. They have proven to the Paris delegation that they do have the interest and support of the country their men serve.

With Mayor Rhodes and Mayor Martin go the prayers of those of us here that they will be allowed to appear before the delegation, that they will make some progress in getting help for these men, that they will in some way ease the burden so long borne by a handful of gallant women.

Hire A Veteran

Calling attention to the hiring of veterans is a year-around responsibility but once a year seven days are set aside to focus attention on "Hire A Veteran Week". Governor Linwood Holton has declared this week to be that special observance. Governor Holton has stated that the economic situation and the increasing number of Vietnam veterans being discharged each month have caused a problem in the employment of veterans in Virginia. Either no jobs are available to them or the jobs are not suitable.

The problem is not another area's concern. It exists right here in Virginia Beach. The local Employment Commission reported that between November 1 of last year and the same date of this year, one thousand two hundred and twenty-six veterans applied for employment. Only three hundred seventy-eight were placed.

The state already has over half a million veterans in its civilian population and each month it jumps by another fifteen hundred. There will be no let up in this employment problem unless concerted efforts are made by local business, organized labor, veterans organizations and state and municipal government agencies.

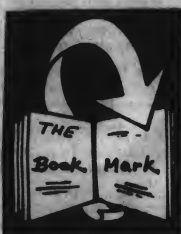

This week is "Hire A Veteran Week" but the problem won't end Saturday at midnight.

CHOCOLATE DAYS, POPSCLE WEEKS, Edward Hamblin, Boston, Houghton Mifflin, 1970. $6.95.

This is the story of John (Fitzie) Fitzpatrick, an Irish boy from Boston who makes good on Madison Avenue and then wonders why. The title recalls Fitzie's summer working at an ice cream plant, where chocolate ice cream bars meant one more vat to clean, while popscles meant an easier production line, cleanup, and life in general. After the ice cream plant and Boston College came marriage and Army for Fitzie, then a break with the traditional pattern as he decided to try New York rather than go back to Boston.

Along the way this is the story of Fitzie and Janice and their love and marriage, which is very up at times and floundering at others; children appear at intervals but are never real characters, and it isn't clear why Fitzie wants more of them. Fitzie's success as an adman parallels his failure or disinterest as a husband until a death in the family and a good deal of introspection lead the Fitzpatricks to their personal solution.

SEXUAL POLITICS, by Kate Millet, New York, Doubleday, 1970. $7.95.

A highly intellectual and interesting book showing how sexual politics have played an important role in society for centuries. There has always been a struggle between the sexes with women losing in a patriarchal society. Kate Millet traces the beginnings of the sexual revolution which lasted from 1830 to the 1920's. It was during the Twenties, contrary to popular belief, that women began to lose ground as the counter-revolution gained strength. Until some radical changes take place, women are bound to the shackles of sexual reaction. During the last fifty years the doctrines of the Communist and National Socialist parties have done much to keep women confined to their inferior status. The male prejudices of Sigmund Freud and a number of writers of the period have done much to shape cultural attitudes. Kate Millet considers D.H. Lawrence, Henry Miller and Norman Mailer as "counterrevolutionary sexual politicians." In their writings, women are regarded only as animals or as instruments of male pleasure. The works of these writers as well as several others are thoroughly investigated and sharply analyzed.

This book, on a subject causing much concern in today's society, is well written and well documented. It uncovers many aspects of sexual politics, or the subordination of women to men, that both sexes will be shocked to recognize.

FAREWELL TO THE KING, Pierre Schoendoerfer, Stein & Day, N.Y. $6.95.

Pierre Schoendoerfer, a French film director, wrote this prize winning novel of war-time Borneo and Xan Fielding translated it into English. It is an exceptionally fine piece of descriptive writing.

The action is centered in the dense jungle of Borneo during the second World War. The special agents have parachuted into the interior, to persuade local tribes to help the Allies root the Japanese from the coastal area. To their amazement they find a red-haired American who claims he is "king" of the Muruts. He is Sergeant Leary, who has become the leader of the tribe, and is married to the daughter of one of the great leaders. The two agents & Leary organize the natives to harass the Japanese.

There is a startling contrast between the earthly beauty of the jungle and the unbelievable atrocities committed there. The story covers only a small segment of the total war picture, but the vivid descriptive passages make you realize what devastating effects war has on man.

For our youth, we have talked much of finding a place for youth activities in our community life, what better way is there than providing a much needed surfing area away from the other established beaches. The decision of what to do with Camp Pendleton, when and if it is available, will ultimately be made on the basis of dollars for the business interests who always seem to see apartments, motels, hotels, and commercial buildings in almost every open area on the beach. Let us hope that those who make this decision will, at least for once, recognize that the making of money is not the only way to measure progress or to provide a happy and full life for a city. Our City Council may be on the spot here, and we will find out where their primary interest lies.

Praises Little Theatre

To the Editor:

Recently it was my pleasure to enjoy the opening production of the Virginia Beach Little Theatre at the Bay Harbour Club. The performance given by the entire cast of "I Never Sang For My Father" was an excellent testimonial of the dedicated and excellent talent available in this area. The evening consisted of delightful entertainment and excellent food.

How fortunate we are to have such a sincere and talented group to provide our city with this much needed culture. I urge everyone to give their continual support to future productions. Hopefully, Virginia Beach will eventually have its own Theater Building.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Henry O. Pezella

Education Plus

To the Editor:

Have we Americans arrived at the point where we think Education is a panacea for every human ill and short-coming? If any of us harbor thoughts of this kind we are indeed short-sighted.

I have been an Educator throughout my entire working years and have an almost worshipping attitude toward the Profession. But I am fully convinced that education linked with a bad habit-behavior-pattern, can produce an enemy of human rights and freedoms.

It takes quite some doing, on the part of parents, teachers, social workers and friends of growing youth to prepare an individual to accommodate, advantageously, an expanded education.

Any training program of youth, that separates child-life from "The great God of the universe", weakens the human values, that build a foundation for a useful education. A person who has lived his or her life with a true concept of a God of compassion and love, learns to love and seldom misuses an education.

It would be well for America and its people, if America's Supreme Court considered the relative values of worship and education.

School Issue

To the Editor:

To answer your question about what I think of the school being built on what you refer to as "donated land"—15 acres I believe you said—it will cover 50, not 15, to being with—and it is land that belongs to me and the rest of the people of Virginia. And to say I disapprove of putting the school or anything else on park property is an understatement.

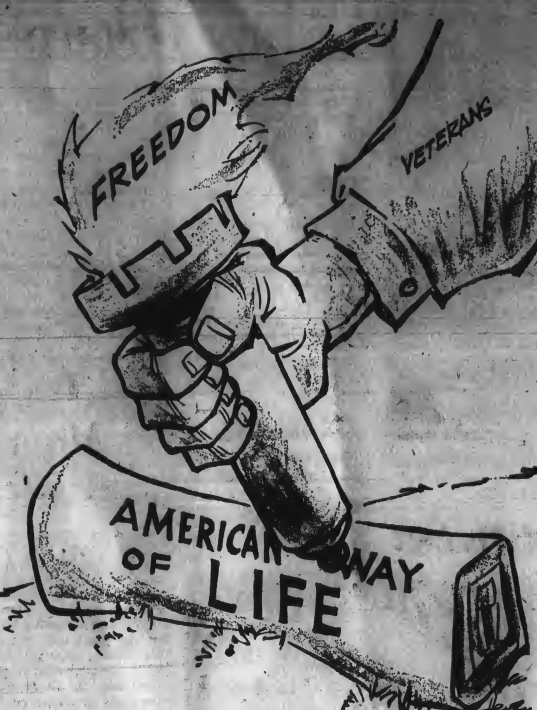

Far from thinking this part of the park is useless land, I beg you to take a walk through these acres and see for yourself, it is one of the most varied and interesting parts of the park. Surely its value to the city, helping pollution, teaching our young people, just being a pleasant place to grow and learn in is vitally important. Why destroy one of the most unique spots on all the East Coast?

May I suggest the City Council stick to their plans that developments will have to give land to build schools to accommodate the children they will bring in.

As for the swimming pool, Mr. Aragona offered the city a pool and they turned it down. They were also given a chance to acquire 100 acres from the Jewish Community with nature centers all built, a marvelous pool, acreage to build a school, place for adults, etc. Why not a pool at the NIKI site? Just as easy to bus children there.

Virginia Beach could have the best opportunity to become famous (worth thousands of dollars in free advertising) if they would admit they have made a mistake, and give these acres back to the people of Virginia again, to whom they belong. If I sound like I feel strongly about this, I do and will appreciate anything you can do to stop this tragedy.

EDITOR

KEEP OFF

By W. A. Leavell, Ph.D.

We have been told over and over by our glorious leaders that we are the greatest, the most intelligent, the inventors of everything worth having, the wealthiest, and so on and so on. Most people in the U.S.A. have heard this so often and they see so many wonderful achievements that are truly American, they just assume we are the greatest in all things.

If this were true, we would have wiped out illiteracy in America long ago. Right? Well, we haven't wiped out illiteracy by a long shot. While we have been doing some very outstanding things, in many fields, education for the average American is not one of our great successes.

The usual American response to something we haven't been able to do is to write it off as something that can't be done. Not so in this case. In Denmark, for the past 10 years they have had no mentally normal adults who are illiterate. If they can do it, why can't we?

Let me explain something. If you listened to our glorious leaders, or the flock of birds in our so-called educational system, they will swear up and down the United States has no illiteracy. They would have you believe we are all smart. If you believe everything our glorious leaders tell you, that just proves we have an illiteracy problem.

When it became obvious that illiteracy was thriving in America, what did Big Brother do? Simple, he changed the rules so no one qualified to be illiterate. According to the authorities, you do not have to be able to read and write to be literate. All you have to do to get out of the illiterate class and become literate is to "Claim" that you have completed the fifth grade. Who couldn't do that?

Let's see how that works. Now that we have had compulsory school attendance in this country for the last half century, we have few, if any, people who can not claim a fifth grade education. Still, more than a sixth of all draftees scored so poorly on the Army general classification test, which is a basic test in reading skill, that they can't be accepted as soldiers. They are illiterate. In some large city junior high schools, 25% of the seventh graders score so low on reading tests that it is obvious they can't read. If we used the old type test of having to read and understand something, a good guess would be that one adult in ten is functionally illiterate in America. Among Negroes, the number is closer to one in four.

Many of the hard core/unemployed can't read or write well enough to complete even the simplest application forms. They can't be trained for good jobs until they can read and write.

Can illiteracy be licked in this country? Sure it can. During WW II the Army trained over one million men to read and write. Many of these went on to be not only good soldiers but fine citizens after the war.

Several years ago the Army started accepting 100,000 men a year who flunked the test and were classified as unfit due to illiteracy. Some 80% of these were trained and went on to become good soldiers.

Many of our immigrants who came to this country in the past could not read or write or even speak English. They went to night school and learned. It is not impossible at all.

If it can be done, why isn't it being done? What happened? If we have compulsory school attendance why can't everyone read and write? No doubt a number of reasons can be given but when you get right down to the nitty-gritty of the matter, you face the cold hard fact that our educational system and its methods have failed.

In the mad rush to build a financial empire, build great buildings, secure unlimited money, solve all man's ills, redesign the basic educational system to please the liberal pretentious elite, we bowed down to the educators and gave them our children along with a blank check. With such a wonderful opportunity, they failed!

The method of teaching adopted in the 1940's and 50's, the "Look-Say" or "Whole-Word Recognition", failed. This is an established fact. Still, about 70% of the school systems still hang on to it as if it were something great.

How long will the American people put up with a system of education that does not work? How long will we continue to pay people who are failing us and our children. It has been too long already.

Responses Continue

The same situation exists this week as existed last week—three questions were answered in the Sun Survey.

First, there were the responses to the current question: "Do you think Camp Pendleton should be considered as a site for the proposed North Virginia Beach School?" There were some interesting comments on this question: "A very sound idea; but it should be part of a package which uses Camp Pendleton as a city-state public recreation area." Several other readers agreed. Another disagreed: "Decidedly not. Nor should the State Park. These sites belong to the state. They are not the property of Virginia Beach."

The opposition went the tally... it was five to one against using it as a school site. Response also continued to come in on the previous week's question "Do you think the city should obtain Camp Pendleton, if it becomes available, for recreational facilities rather than industry?" There were only a handful but they agreed it should be used for that purpose. One reader commented "Maybe a school would be better."

Another attached a suggested question concerning a lobbyist. The exact intent of the question is not clear. If that reader will send in a more clearly defined question, or call the editor, we will be glad to use his suggestion. Needless to say, much of this week's response continued to be that everpopular question "Do you think a school should be built on the donated 15 acres in Seashore State Park?"

An entire civic league, each questionnaire signed, sent in its opposition to the school. Others joined in for a total of over 50 responses to this question, bringing the response to date to well over 600. And more may still be in the mail next week. The school situation has obviously become highly charged issue. Schools usually are. But this week we are going to take a reader's suggestion and approach an entirely aspect... the dress code of the school.

A number of comments regarding the ruling against pants suits have been made to staff members of the Sun and it apparently is much discussed among the school personnel. This week we offer the chance to air the issue.

North End League Proposes Two New Alternate Sites

BY HOWARD SWINDLE

The North Shore Civic League, a small group formed recently to battle construction of an elementary school at Seashore State Park, disclosed this week an alternate site for the proposed facility on land already earmarked for construction of a school.

Mrs. J.W. Sills, one of the group's organizers, told the Sun that the city already owns a 52-acre tract near Great Neck Road on First Colonial near the hospital. "According to the Planning Commission, the site is a part of the Great Neck Plan and has already been earmarked for the construction of an elementary school."

Tim Barrow, assistant director of the city's Planning Department, confirmed the existence of a tract and said a portion of the site has been officially designated as the location of a future elementary school. The Great Neck Plan has been approved by City Council.

"Although the site is not located in the Northern area," Barrow said, "it would relieve pressure in the Eastern portion." He said construction of an elementary school at the Great Neck site would "buy time until a long-range solution" could be found.

Mrs. Sills said the civic league also has another alternate site that would cost the city no money but the exact location is being withheld for various reasons, she said.

The North Shore Civic League was formed soon after the School Board announced plans to build an elementary school on 15 acres at the State-owned Seashore State Park.

The State's Department of Conservation and Economic Development agreed to lease the 15 acres to the city for $1 per year.

Since its inception, the civic league, along with several other organizations, has fought the proposal and initiated several studies by ecological experts. The group claims support from residents throughout Virginia.

The alternate site is located near First Colonial High School, which currently claims many students from the North End of Virginia Beach in its enrollment.

At a recent meeting at Gallie Episcopal Church, the civic league denounced the "giving away of public parks" and revealed possible plans for legal action.

Attorney Stanley Sacks, who recently defended suspended Norfolk State students, said he had met with representatives of the group and was "researching the facts."

Sacks said a substantial legal question is involved concerning "whether or not land that is priceless is going to be used to build a school when other land could be found."

"There may very well be legal ways of preventing the school from going there," he said.

Mrs. Sills said legal action would be a last resort. No litigation was underway at midweek.

At least one person attending the meeting disagreed with the group and accused the civic league of making "a concerted effort to deprive my child of a school."

Robert M. Fanney of 207 64th Street said he had been trying to get a school built at the North End for 24 years. He also charged that the civic league doesn't represent the feelings of most North Virginia Beach residents.

Mrs. Ann Ramsey, also an organizer of the civic group, showed the audience several petitions which stated the signers were "unilaterally opposed to construction on park land of a school in North Virginia Beach."

She claims support of 44 presidents of area garden clubs and the Environmental Council of Students at Old Dominion University.

Mrs. Sills and Mrs. Ramsey told the audience they "are now getting through to Governor Holloman" and he is studying and considering their information. Mrs. Ramsey also said members of the School Board were considering alternate sites.

An ecological study was introduced which stated the dunes and contours of Seashore State Park make the area unique to the East Coast.

Lobby Group Formed For Financial Relief

With Virginia Beach among them, twelve urban localities within the state banded together Monday in Richmond to form the Virginia Urban 12, a lobby group they hope will be effective in providing state relief for urban areas.

According to City Manager, Roger M. Scott, who attended the formation meeting along with Vice-Mayor Earl M. Tebault, the areas nine cities and Arlington, Fairfax and Henrico counties are not able to keep financial pace with the needs of their communities.

Scott said the group will appear before the 1971 General Assembly and address its committees on the need for new means of financial support.

The first appearance of the Virginia Urban 12 before a committee will be made by Mayor Ann Kilgore of Hampton Nov. 16 when she addresses the House Appropriations Committee, Scott said.

In addition, Scott said the Urban 12 will also appear before the Benheim Committee, which he said was a legislative study group investigating local finance.

The Urban 12 represents about three-quarter million voters and 46 per cent of the state's population, as well as a $10 billion economy and half the state's gross economy, Scott said.

But despite the sizeable economy, the cities have not been able to maintain an even monetary flow because they can't adjust their tax bases every year, he said.

The state, on the other hand, does not have to consider inflation since it is the nature of an income tax base that it corresponds to the inflationary taxable base.

"What we hope to do is indicate the financial plight of the city," Scott said. "We plan to show the General Assembly what methods they can use to best assist us." He would not elaborate further.

Up to now, there has never been a concerted effort but the past fiscal year proved disastrous to several of the cities that an immediate solution must be sought, he said. But Virginia Beach is fortunate, he added, because the city is about ten years behind other areas in terms of development and demands on city-provided services.

And if the city remains "behind," it will be able to progress at a normal rate without having to confront the budgetary squeeze faced by other urban localities, since there will be solutions to the problems, Scott said.

He expressed great favor with

Student Is Main Ingredient

"The Bayside student is the most important ingredient of the educational formula at Bayside Junior High."

That's the way the school board introduced its newest and most modern school Sunday to a large turnout of parents, city officials and educators.

But several other ingredients, including the latest technological developments, modern educational slides and sophisticated communications equipment, make the Newtown Road school the flagship of Virginia Beach's school system.

Dr. Woodrow W. Wilkerson, state superintendent of public instruction, delivered the keynote address in the school's new auditorium. Though the school was officially dedicated Sunday, it has been in use since the beginning of the current semester.

William D. Gilliam is the school's principal. Assistant principal of instruction is Joseph R. Hassell, and G. Ray Smith is the assistant principal of administration.

Court Square Bank Has Georgian Architecture

Virginia National Bank opened its 107th office in the state Tuesday at 2539 Princess Anne Road.

This newest addition to the statewide system — named Court Square Office — was designed by the Virginia Beach architectural firm of Waller and Sadler. Its Georgian exterior and an interior furnished with Colonial Reproductions were selected to conform with historic Princess Anne Court-houses, built in 1824. The court-house site was the geographic center of old Princess Anne County and is now the centerpiece for the area which contains all the civic offices for the City of Virginia Beach. The new banking house is located five blocks to the west.

An additional feature of the office is that it will contain a collection of contemporary art which includes works by several local, noted artists.

Previously named as manager of the Court Square Office is Waldo P. Bornemann. His assistant manager is Buford Davis.

82 Awards Presented

Eighty-two awards were presented at the Court of Honor for Troop 378, and almost every boy earned an award or received a promotion. Four scouts were advanced to Tenderfoot, three scouts advanced to Second Class, and one to First Class.

Charles Early, Steve Carpenter, and John Irish earned the promotion of Life. The Golden Ax award was presented to Charles Early, Steve Carpenter, Richard Koch, and Douglas Koch. This award is given for the scout attending every camping trip during the past year.

New school was dedicated Sunday.

The names of three more men have been added to the duty roster of the Beach Borough Civil Defense unit. The new volunteers include W.W. Davis, Jr., Steve Wray and Rex Gurley.

Fire Chief E.B. Bayne informs us three more men have qualified for service with the volunteer firemen working with the Beach Borough Fire Department. They include Carlen Hayden, Norman Davis and David Johnson.

Sgt. F.R. Scarborough, attached to the police Traffic Division, is beginning a course of instruction in safe boat operations this week for young people of the resort city. Scarborough indicates he intends to "kick off" the program at the Virginia Beach Junior High School.

Attendant Hit, Robbed

Police continue their search for two suspects in the strong armed robbery and assault of a Northampton Blvd. service station attendant early Tuesday morning.

Officials quote George Begley with saying two men drove into the station to purchase gas. While Begley was pumping gas into their car the men reportedly entered the station building and purchased a sandwich from a vending machine. As Begley was checking the car's radiator, according to police, he was struck on the head and dragged behind the service station where he was tied up by the men.

Indications are the men fled from the scene with approximately $225 in station receipts and Begley's money.

officer G.K. Vick, attached to the 3rd Police Precinct, for the delivery of an 8 pound 7 ounce baby girl. At last reports Vick, his wife Linda, and daughter Susan Michelle were all doing fine.

Men of the Plaza Volunteer Fire Department will be staging a turkey about this weekend and next weekend to raise funds for unit projects. The shoot is being held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays and from 12 noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays in the 100 block of Rosemont Road.

Game Warden G.C. Fentress this week informed us that activity was at a peak in the Back Bay region as hunters were putting the finishing touches on "blinds" in preparation for this Saturday's opening of the duck season. Hunters are reminded of the "daily bag limit" of four ducks per day. This includes limitations on no more than one "Canvas Back" or "Redhead", two "Wood Ducks", or two "Black Ducks" and/or any combination of these. Hunters this year have been allowed a bonus in that during the first eight days of the season hunters will be permitted to take two "Blue Wing Teal" in addition to the daily bag limit on ducks. Hunters are also advised to obtain a pamphlet regarding regulations this season on water and migratory fowl from their local sporting goods headquarters for any changes which may affect them this season.

Indications are the "Blue Fish" are moving through this area in their annual southern migration. Sgt. N.C. Morse, attached to the 2nd Police Precinct, informs us he and a friend landed 12 of the "choppers" weighing up to 18 pounds during a one day outing off the Beach coastline.

Virginia Beach police officers listen attentively to Det.'s Vitali and Pritchard in a new program to "crack-down" on illicit drug trafficking through the resort city.

Police Get More Drug Instruction

BY LES LEHIGH

The Virginia Beach Police Department is taking additional steps to combat the increasing illicit drug traffic through the resort city.

The move follows reports that arrests on charges involving drug abuse laws this year have increased nearly 300 per cent over the rate of last year. Thus far this year, according to police, 499 charges have been placed for violations of narcotic and/or drug laws, while a total of 163 such charges were filed by police during 1969.

Officials said these arrests indicate an increased flow of "hard drugs" through the resort city.

The latest tactic is aimed at reaching those responsible for bringing narcotics and drugs into Virginia Beach, and those taking an active part in the movement of drugs through the resort city.

The new program centers around increased utilization of uniformed police officers in combating the movement of narcotics and drugs. Heretofore this situation has been the primary concern of the police Detective and Juvenile Divisions.

Special training sessions were conducted this week to acquaint all sworn members of the police department with the various types of narcotics and drugs which might be found in Virginia Beach, the methods by which they move through the city, and the type of individual who might be associated with the illicit drug traffic.

Det.'s J. P. Vitali, Jr., and J. W. Pritchard, police vice squad members with an extensive background of coping with drug trafficking, conducted the training sessions.

During the instructional periods Vitali and Pritchard employed samples of drugs which are being found in the resort city in order to familiarize uniformed police officers with materials they will be looking for in suspected drug law violations.

Officers examined samples of marijuana, heroin, hashish, amphetamines, barbiturates, and hallucinogenic drugs such as mescaline and LSD. The men were also instructed in the methods by which these drugs are used and the equipment needed in their use.

"The training included the effects drugs have on individuals and how a person under the influence of drugs may act or appear," Pritchard said.

The one fact which perhaps might illustrate the importance of this new move on the part of the Virginia Beach police department is contained in a sobering police statistic which denotes a continuing increase in "hard core drugs" movement through the resort city.

Authorities indicate that the first drug law violation involving heroin in Virginia Beach was recorded two years ago, while last year ten drug law violations involving heroin were recorded in the resort city.

Girl Gets 2 Charges

Police officials said they have charged Susan A. Cummins with two counts of possession of stimulant drugs during an investigation this past week.

According to police Miss Cummins, 19, whose address was listed as the Ball Hall Motel in the Beach Borough, was arrested during an investigation in the area of 22nd Street and Atlantic Avenue.

Investigators said at the time of her arrest she allegedly had a quantity of stimulant drugs in her possession.

Dr. Karagulla, who has degrees from Edinburgh and London, is at present president and director of the Higher Sense Perception Research Foundation in Beverly Hills, Calif.

These lectures are open to the public. Further information may be had by calling the Association.

Officer Guertin and his partner "Fritz".

'Fritz' Plays Bloodhound And Sniffs Out Suspect

The value of the police K-9 Corps was proven again this past week with the apprehension of a 16-year-old juvenile on suspicion of grand larceny of an auto.

According to officials the apprehension of the suspect was due primarily to the efforts of officer A.J. Guertin, Jr., of the 3rd Police Precinct, and his German Shepherd partner "Fritz".

Investigators said an auto fitting the description of a stolen vehicle, and containing three juveniles, was sighted by a police patrol unit in the Chinese Corner area. The driver of the car ignored police officers' signals to stop and fled along Grayson Road with police units in pursuit.

When the car reached the Kempsville section of the City, according to officials, the juveniles abandoned the car and fled on foot into surrounding woods.

K-9 Officer Guertin was summoned to the scene, and within moments "Fritz" had picked up the scent of one of the suspects and began tracking through the woods and dense underbrush.

"Fritz", according to Guertin, followed a criss-cross trail through the underbrush for about 45 minutes for a distance of approximately one mile. The trail wound back into the area of the County View Trailer Court, on Bonney Road, where officers apprehended the juvenile suspect as he was seen running among housing units in the trailer park.

Officials indicate their search continues for the other two juveniles being sought in connection with the auto theft.

Secretaries Head for Classroom

The Virginia Beach School System's secretarial and clerical staff, this week, found themselves going back to the classroom for a refresher course.

On Wednesday, all of the System's secretarial and clerical employees started a series of in-service classes revolving around six general areas of instruction.

Members of the central administration and supervisory staff, in cooperation with the Virginia Beach Association of Educational Secretaries, have outlined a series of six areas to be discussed in a twelve-hour period of instruction. The six instructional areas to be covered in the in-service program are: business psychology, communications, record keeping, bookkeeping, school or educational law, and office machines.

Secretaries will meet in staggered groups for two hours a day for 12 sessions. Five instructional centers will be used for this in-service program.

Mayor

Taxwell Taylor, had contributed $600 earlier last week.

"We would have been in trouble if it had not been for these donations," the spokesman said.

A send-off for the mayors will be held Friday at noon at Military Circle Shopping Center. Rhodes and Martin will be presented the petitions and will give a short talk. The other two members, if they go, will also be introduced.

Taylor Johnson, president of the Virginia Beach Exchange Club will present to the communities a replica of a cage such as the prisoners are confined to in Viet Nam. This visual aid is designed to generate interest in the plight of the men in Southeast Asia.

With fuel costs going up, you want to keep your heating bills down.

We want to help.

This is the winter to do everything you can to cut your heating bills. Because this winter some combustible fuel costs will be higher.

We're facing the same problem you are. The cost of the coal we burn to generate electricity has gone up 35 to 40% this year.

So we understand the problem. And we want to help.

If you heat your home electrically, we have good news. The cost of electric heat will actually be lower this winter. That's right, lower. Even though rates went up in July for the first time in 16 years, our average electric heat customers will find that the new winter rate will result in heating costs that are reduced by as much as 16%.

Whether you heat your home with oil, gas, coal, or electricity, there's still a lot you can do to cut your heating bills. By making sure your heating system works as efficiently as possible. And by preventing unnecessary waste.

Here are four suggestions that will help:

1. Make sure your home is properly insulated. It takes twice as much fuel to heat an uninsulated home as it does to heat an insulated one.
2. Install storm windows and doors. They can reduce heat loss by as much as 10%. Sure, it costs money. But it's an investment that will pay for itself over the years.
3. Make sure your entire heating system is cleaned and checked at the start of the season. That includes furnace, flues, filters, and thermostats.
4. Caulk around windows and eaves. And weatherstrip doors. Every opening and crack wastes fuel.

Will all this insulating, checking, cleaning and caulking really make a difference in your heating bills? It really will. By a significant amount.

And that could go a long way toward keeping the rising cost of fuel from hitting home.

THE WOMEN

VIRGINIA BEACH SUN

Thursday, November 12, 1970

Some other Christmas decorations made by Mrs. Gresham.

These Christmas arrangements were made and displayed by Mrs. Horace Jordan, a member of Thoroughgood Garden Club which is planning Christmas open house at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Middleton.

Competition for names emerges between groups

Mrs. Betty Gresham holds up an angel made from cloth dipped in wallpaper paste and draped. She advised using acrylic medium to maintain a bright gold color on such figures. In front are decorated egg shells. She prefers goose eggs because they are larger. Mrs. Gresham gave a special decorations program at the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs meeting Wednesday.

Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs members were warned in a letter yesterday to be wary of petitions about billboards.

The letter, from Bob Stanton, a chairman of the Visual Pollution Control Committee which was formed to fight billboards along the Expressway, General Booth Blvd. and Northampton Blvd., included a copy of a petition in favor of billboards which Stanton says is now being circulated by paid workers. He said they are being paid (he didn't specify by whom) a dime per name.

Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher, president of the Council of Garden Clubs, said that she was approached by a woman with a billboard petition when she voted Nov. 3. Mrs. Gallagher said she told the woman she ought to have a petition against billboards in her other hand. The woman replied that she was neither for nor against billboards but was "making her Christmas money."

Council members were urged to attend the City Council meeting on Dec. 7 when current billboard applications will come against billboards before City Council for action. They are also circulating petitions.

Mrs. P. S. Courson, Jr., the Council's representative on the V.P.C.C., noted that "It is up to our committee to convince the City of Virginia Beach that we cannot be bought for ten cents."

The Council also took up Pembroke Meadows Garden Club's cause asking that the Council's name be added to the club's petition for an ordinance which would require persons found guilty of littering to clear a set area of litter in lieu of a fine.

The Council announced plans for their money making project for the year—a spring fashion show to be staged by Sears at the Civic Center on Feb. 24. Tickets will be $1 and in return everyone attending the show will receive a coupon for a free pair of stockings. There will also be a $100 wardrobe as a doorprize.

The theme for the flower show which will be staged by the Virginia Beach Council, the Portsmouth Council and the Norfolk Federation of Garden Clubs along with Tidewater Allied Florists in March will be "Language of Flowers." The show will be at the Civic

35th bazaar is Nov. 21

"Christmas Is Coming, The Geese Are Getting Fat." The old English Round seems an appropriate introduction to the annual Oyster Roast and Bazaar to be held at Old Donation Episcopal Church on Saturday, Nov. 21 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The historic church, dating from the early 1600's, is presently becoming surrounded by literally hundreds of modern suburban homes, but the old-time country flavor remains. "Fixin's & Doin's" are all from "scratch," a tradition and point of pride with the women of Old Donation. Formerly called the Oyster Roast and Country Fair, the first Bazaar was held 35 years ago, and devotees come from as far as Suffolk and North Carolina.

Besides the food, which will also include Smithfield ham sandwiches and hot dogs along with the oysters, there will be needlework, dried flowers, pickles, bread, white elephants, pony rides, space walk, bowling, Christmas Boutique and Little People's Shop. Babysitting will also be furnished.

H.D. Club turns 21

The London Bridge Home Demonstration Club celebrated its 21st birthday at the home of Mrs. W.K. Hunter on Rudee Avenue recently.

A partial history of the club was read to give present members some idea of things the club has done over the years, bringing many chuckles from some of the older members.

Among current activities reported was the club's participation in the "Good Neighbor Ways" held at the London Bridge Shopping Center. The ladies sold handmade articles and made goodies from scratch. Some recipes used were 75 years old. Proceeds will be used for the 4-H Clubs and welfare work.

A covered dish luncheon, including a birthday cake which was cut by Mrs. T.C. Hunters, the club's first president, was enjoyed by all.

The annual Council luncheon will be May 26 at the Admiralty.

The Council welcomed two new clubs, Aragona Garden Club and Woods of Avalon Garden Club, for a total of 53 clubs. The next meeting will be in January.

Mrs. Lena Brown, Mrs. Mary Boyette and Mrs. Albritton, along with Mrs. Rosa Washington who is not in the picture, make up the STOP staff.

STOP means help

Everybody is familiar with Headstart, but less familiar to many is the STOP (South-eastern Tidewater Opportunity Program) Neighborhood Development program which works with the whole family.

Although the program works from headquarters in the Seatack Community Center, the four workers cover all of Virginia Beach, wherever poverty exists. Their goal is to raise people and neighborhoods from poverty by "Helping People Help Themselves," the theme of STOP.

Mrs. Ann Albritton, Virginia Beach supervisor of the Neighborhood Development program, said that most people are willing to accept their help but others are skeptical because "they can't believe they'll get something for nothing. They've had so many promises they'll get things that have never come true. Once you get their trust they are willing."

One of the big undertakings right now is to establish a credit union to help Seatack residents who will need loans when sewer lines are extended through the area. "Hopefully we can get federal funds for it (the credit union)," said Mrs. Albritton. The first meeting will be Nov. 23.

Already organized and underway is a "buyers' club." Members pay a fixed amount of money in order that the club can pool the amount and buy meat, which they could not otherwise afford, wholesale.

"We always organize," said Mrs. Albritton. "The stronger you are, the better you are."

Other goals now are to have another Job Fair at Virginia Beach, establish another group of consumer education classes and organize groups for dissemination of information on home loans and set up classes on a monthly basis.

Another major goal, which will probably take longer to accomplish, is the establishment of a day care center for the children of working mothers. A loan was made by Doug Hubbard for the purchase of land behind the Seatack Community Center on which to build the addition. However, Hubbard must be repaid before funds to build the addition can be collected.

The need for such a center is great, Mrs. Albritton said. She said that a survey of Seatack showed that there are 532 children between the ages of three and six. Many of them are too young to attend Headstart classes. Mrs. Albritton said she knows of a number of families in which the school age children take turns staying home from school with younger brothers and sisters so that their mother can work. She said that often the children lose interest in school as they fall behind in their subjects.

The STOP staff works closely with other groups as during the Seatack cleanup project when they recruited food and workers, (see). They are now recommending applicants and distributing forms for Friendship Village, which will open Nov. 15. It is a rent supplement apartment development built by Friends Church. Mrs. Albritton added that furniture is badly needed for the apartments. There is a storage room available at the apartments at the end of Carver Avenue just off of Birdneck Road. STOP will also arrange to pick up furniture.

In addition school clothing is needed. It should be in good condition, any size, and delivered to the STOP Center. Also "desperately needed" for the school children is a complete set of encyclopedias for their after school and tutoring program. The Center has parts of several sets, but no complete or up to date one. Besides the afternoon program, a number of students study at the Center at night because it is the only quiet place available for them. "When you have eight or ten kids in three or four rooms, you can't get much studying done at home," STOP workers alternate nights "on duty" at the Center.

Other activities with which STOP has worked include providing transportation for students and to the women's center for food. Mrs. Albritton said that the women's center is a place where women can get help and support. She said that the women's center is a place where women can get help and support. She said that the women's center is a place where women can get help and support.

Every kitchen needs an expert

"The asparagus has vitamin A and the beans have vitamin C," said the nine-year-old with authority as she pointed to the pans on the stove.

"Who told you that?"

"That's what the teacher said." She had just returned from her first cooking lesson to fulfill requirements for her Girl Scout cooking badge. "She also said I have to practice making biscuits."

"Oh? I thought you already knew how."

"Uh, uh. Hers taste better. Can I make some tonight?"

"Wait until tomorrow night when I have more time."

"Okay. Mama, you're doing that wrong. You're supposed to measure margarine with a teaspoon."

"Who says?"

"My teacher."

"Well, look at this stick. It's marked off in teaspoons on the paper. All you have to do is slice some off."

"Mama, you're supposed to put the dessert fork next to the dinner fork."

"We're not having any dessert. I don't suppose your teacher told you to practice setting the table too?"

"Uh, uh. Just make biscuits."

"Mama, why don't you wear an apron? My teacher does. She said for us to bring one next week."

"Because I like to wipe my hands on my clothes. Besides, I never can find one when I need it."

"Mama, you know what? We eat pretty good breakfasts around here."

"Well, I'm glad to hear it. I think so too."

"But my teacher says we should have hot cereal along with Mother-Baby classes will begin at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 18, at the American Red Cross, Tidewater Chapter, 414 West Bule St.

The six two-hour classes, held each Monday and Wednesday, will be taught by a registered nurse.

Those wishing to attend should call Mrs. Eloise Bull, director of nursing programs, at 635-6791, for registration and information.

Lynnhaven

Mrs. Paul Gallup gave a program on cones and candle holders and explained methods of making Christmas tree ornaments at the November meeting of the Lynnhaven Garden Club. Beautiful candle holders can be made from bottles and cans using "crystal crase" and other spray paints.

There were 23 members and two visitors at the meeting and Mrs. F. Strick was welcomed back into the club. The club voted to buy Christmas gifts of clothing for shut-ins at a local nursing home.

Blue ribbons were won by Mrs. W.E. Smith, Mrs. C.W. Jernigan and Mrs. R.A. Schaeffer for Thanksgiving arrangements. Hostesses were Mrs. Dean Potter, Mrs. M.M. Evans and Mrs. George Wade.

Guy backs betting

Richard D. Guy, an attorney and representative to the state legislature, addressed the Princess Anne Business and Professional Women's Club at the Thunderbird Motor Lodge on Monday evening.

Mr. Guy cited the benefits of pari-mutuel horse racing. In addition to providing employment, tax revenue and entertainment, this big business attracts conventions, business and industry. He urged members to be enthusiastic optimists, write letters to editors of newspapers and to representatives expressing views on legislation.

Club visits new center

The Woman's Club of Chesapeake Beach, Inc. was to hold its meeting on Nov. 12 at 10:30 a.m.

The group was to tour the Virginia Beach Center for Effective Learning at 233 North Wiltchuck Road. Mrs. Peggy B. Bryson, director, was to conduct the tour of the center.

Later, the group will proceed to the Ramada Inn on Newtown Road at noon for lunch. A business meeting will follow lunch. The meeting is being planned by the Education Department, headed by Mrs. W.W. Graham.

STOP

olic Church who also gave special tutoring to slow learners, a Job Fair in June which got employment from some 100 applicants, recruiting volunteer to escort underprivileged children on bus tours, to fairs and to Oceana Naval Air Station, participating in the United Drug Abuse Centers. A mixed marriage club to teach English to wives of servicemen who have married overseas is also underway.

Of their busy schedule, Mrs. Albritton commented, "You can't be organized because when you go out you never know what you're going to run into. If you plan on seeing two families you can't tell another family they aren't on your list."

Meetings of groups in poverty areas outside Seatack are usually held in churches. "The churches have been really good about working with us," Mrs. Albritton said.

One of the main reasons for success of the federally funded STOP program is that the STOP workers are there when they're needed. "That's what we're here for," said Mrs. Albritton, "to help them get out of poverty."

These Austrian Heirloom Crescents and the Poppy Seed Tea Roll are delicately spiced as are so many of that country's delicacies.

Austrians like spices

Wine, women, song and the delights of the table have made Austria famous as a country which enjoys life. Food is for the fun of eating and the Austrians eat richly and often.

Austria has been called "the heart of Europe". Her cuisine is closely related to that of Germany, but strongly influenced by the culinary arts of France, Italy, Scandinavia and Hungary. It takes a well-stocked spice shelf to season these international specialties: anise, bay leaf, caraway, cardamom, chervil, chives, cinnamon, cloves, coriander, dill, fennel, marjoram, mustard, nutmeg, pepper (of course) and plenty of paprika to make Hungarian paprikash and goulashes.

Every great Austrian dish seems to require its measure of onion, for the irresistible aroma of sauteed onion drifts across this genial land at all hours of the day. Garlic is used, but with restraint.

Austrian women love to cook and they had better know how, for Austrian men consider a light hand with cakes a great asset in a prospective bride. Every proper meal starts with a savory home-made soup. Beef, veal, pork, chicken, goose and duck are favored meats, generally braised in or served with a sauce. Vegetables are cooked so respectfully that they are served as a separate course.

Austrian kitchens are most famous for the superb desserts and baked goods which are prepared there. As a for-instance, do try these recipes from the test kitchens of the American Spice Trade Association—Heirloom Crescents and Poppy Seed Tea Roll.

NUSS KIPFERLN

(Austrian Heirloom Crescents)

1 cup finely ground nuts
1 cup unsalted butter or margarine, softened
3/4 cup sugar
3 tsp. ground cinnamon, divided
1 tsp. pure vanilla extract
2-1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar

In a medium bowl combine nuts, butter, sugar, 1 teaspoon of the cinnamon and vanilla; mix well. Add flour and blend to a smooth dough. Cover and chill dough for several hours or until firm. Using a rounded teaspoonful for each cookie, shape dough into crescents. Bake on ungreased cookie sheets in a preheated moderate oven (350 F.) 15 to 18 minutes or until pale gold. Cool slightly. Roll cookies in remaining 2 teaspoons cinnamon mixed with confectioners' sugar. Cool on wire racks. Yield: Approximately 5 dozen.

POPPY SEED TEA ROLL

2 boxes (13-3/4 oz. each) hot roll mix
1-1/2 cups warm milk
1/4 cup sugar
4 egg yolks
2 cups poppy seeds
1 cup sugar
3/4 cup milk
1/2 cup seedless raisins
1/3 cup butter or margarine
1 egg white

In a large bowl dissolve yeast from hot roll mix in warm milk. Stir in sugar and egg yolks. Add flour mixture from roll mix; blend well. Knead 10 minutes on lightly floured board. Place dough in buttered bowl. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 1 to 2 hours. Meanwhile, making filling. Place about 1/2 cup poppy seeds in blender container. Cover container and grind about 3 minutes or until poppy seeds are very finely ground. Repeat. In a medium saucepan combine ground poppy seeds with remaining ingredients except egg white. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, about 8 minutes, or until mixture is thickened. Cool. Punch down dough. Divide into 3 equal parts. Roll each part of the dough on a lightly floured board into 18 x 12-inch rectangle. Spread

WOMEN PAST 21

WITH BLADDER IRRITATION

Suffer Many Troubles

After 21, common kidney or bladder irritations affect twice as many women as men and may make you tense and nervous from too frequent, burning or itching urination both day and night. Secondly, you may lose sleep and suffer from headaches, backache and feel old, tired, depressed. In such irritation, CYTEX usually brings fast, relaxing comfort by soothing irritating germs in strong, rapid urine and by analgesic pain relief. Get CYTEX at drug stores. See how fast it can help you.

"Mom, how can you get so upset about drugs when you really don't know a thing about them?"

If you're having a little trouble these days getting through to your kids when you try to discuss illegal drug use, it may be because they know a lot more than you do about the subject.

We can't promise to make you an expert, but we can help you to catch up a little. Here are a few facts to talk from:

1. Marihuana:

Its use is a felony. Conviction, even with a suspended sentence, may cause interruption of education, difficulty in obtaining a driver's license in some states, entering a profession, getting a responsible job. While marihuana, which is not a narcotic, does not cause physical dependence, it may lead to "psychological dependence"

if taken regularly. There is no current conclusive evidence that marihuana is "medically safe." Research is currently being conducted to find out more about its physical and psychological effects.

2. LSD:

Its effects can differ at times in the same individual. There is no way of predicting whether a "trip" will be "good" or "bad." And days, weeks, even months after using LSD, the things the user experienced while on the drug may recur unexpectedly. The LSD experience can sometimes be disturbing enough to cause acute and even long-lasting mental illness.

3. "Ups and Downs":

Excessive use of amphetamines ("ups") can drive a person beyond his physical endurance and leave him totally depleted physically, since he feels like neither eating nor sleeping. The body develops a tolerance to these drugs, with larger and larger doses required to feel the effects. Long-term heavy users are usually irritable, unstable, and may suffer social, intellectual, and emotional breakdown. Abrupt withdrawal ("crashing") for the heavy user can result in a deep and suicidal depression.

Barbiturates ("downs") can, in regular and excessive doses, become physically addicting. Overdose, or abrupt withdrawal for a heavy user, can cause death. Barbiturates are a leading cause of accidental poison deaths in the U.S. Amphetamines are sometimes prescribed as "diet pills," and barbiturates are given as prescription sleeping pills, but neither should be taken except in strict accordance with a physician's prescription.

4. Narcotics:

Heroin is physically, as well as psychologically addicting. Large, or unexpectedly unadulterated doses can result in death. The addict's main object in life becomes getting the drug. He may turn to crime as the only way to get enough money to support his habit (which can run as high as $100.00 per day).

For more detailed facts about these drugs, write for free drug booklets to: National Institute of Mental Health, Box 1080, Washington, D.C. 20013

Kellam shocks them all- defeats Great Bridge power

Fast-paced action between First Colonial and Lake Taylor Friday night in Norfolk.

Bill Ralph, coach of Kellam's game but not very successful Knights, hadn't had much to be happy about before going into Friday night's encounter with Great Bridge, a consistent Western Conference powerhouse. His Knights had salvaged only one win all year and that had been at the expense of equally unsuccessful Cox. Even that had been a squeaker.

But when Friday's affair with Great Bridge had run its course, Ralph found himself atop the shoulders of several victory-starved supporters. As they carried him off the field, the scoreboard's lights still reflected the Knight's stunning 14-6 win.

Meanwhile, across town, Bayside's Bill Petree -- Tidewater's only high school field goal kicker -- was booting the Marlins to a 3-0 upset over Princess Anne. Petree's 23-yard field goal assured the Marlins of their first winning football season since the school opened five years ago.

In three games played in Norfolk, First Colonial shut out Lake Taylor 14-0, Granby quelled a Cox rally for a 16-14 win, and Larry Stepney and his Norview colleagues ruined an upset threat by Kempville, 33-14.

Kellam's Ed Sellers bounded 48 yards to score the first touchdown. A blocked Great Bridge punt in the final quarter set up the insurance touchdown for the Knights.

Much of the credit goes to a superb Kellam defense that held Great Bridge to 23 yards on the ground. The Wildcat's only score came on a 36-yard pass from Mickey Carey to his brother, Dickie. The win upped Kellam's record to 2-7.

Bayside's upset over PA moved its record to 6-3 for the year, and it was the second win in which Petree's foot meant the difference. The Marlins counted on a last-minute field goal by Petree earlier in the year to edge Deep Creek.

The Marlin defense contained PA and its all-star fullback, Jerry McGrath, twice near the goal line. McGrath carried 30 times for 107 yards before leaving the game in the fourth quarter with an injury. Bay-side's ground game was led by Lance Platz who gained 54 yards on 19 attempts.

Cox's Buddy Byrd, often the only offensive threat generated this year by the Falcons, suffered an ankle injury in the first quarter and sat on the sidelines while Granby held off a late scoring bid by his teammates.

The Falcons, trailing 16-0 at halftime, stormed back in the third quarter with an eight-yard dash by quarterback Al Williams. Kevin Petty added another touchdown for Cox in the last quarter. A bad conversion pass following the first score meant the difference in defeat and a tie.

First Colonial broke even in district play via their Friday shutout over Lake Taylor. Welton Cowell ran six yards and Clinton Bradshaw slammed through the line on a one-yard plunge to account for the Patriots' scoring.

First Colonial traveled 151 yards via Mike Branch's arm while picking up only 14 yards total rushing.

At Norview's Chittum Field, Larry Stepney flashed his All-Tidewater credentials and scored four touchdowns, demolishing any ideas of a Kempville upset. The Chiefs did manage, however, to score more points on the Pilots than any other team this year.

Chief quarterback Bill Paschall plagued the Norview defensive secondary all night, completing on his first 10 efforts and ending the night with 11 of 13 for 119 yards and a touchdown.

Youngsters Learn To Respect Firearms

BY MIKE RAPER

"With one round, lock and load. Commence firing."

Hearing these words, one might think they had stumbled upon a military rifle range complete with men in uniform handling heavy rifles. It is startling to realize that these commands are being given not to a professional rifle team, but to a group of youths as young as 11 and with an average age of 14.

These youths are all members of the Windsor Woods Sharpshooters Junior Rifle Club, in existence for approximately one year. The club is comprised of twenty members, both boys and girls, and is affiliated with the National Rifle Association. The club is sponsored by the Windsor Woods Civic League. The club leader is Robert G. Hirsch and the instructor is Ernest C. Hyers. The club officers at present are Dorothy Garrison, president; Brett Clark, vice-president; Ginger Maddox, secretary; Michael Raper, executive officer.

Presently, the club is using the facilities of the N.A.S. Occoan Pistol Range. Members are urged, but not required, to own their own weapons, which are required to be .22 caliber bolt action rifles. The only age requirement is that since it is a junior club a member must not be 19 or over.

The primary objective of the club is to teach safe handling of firearms and at the same time provide the youths with a safe opportunity to get practical experience "behind the trigger." The members are provided with a chance to earn N.R.A. ratings and some of the members are already quite advanced. In addition it is an activity that boys and girls are equal in. The club's most advanced marksman is a girl. Even though the club is headquartered in Windsor Woods, the membership is open to all areas. Those interested should contact the Civic League, Hirsch or Hyers. The club tries to hold a practice twice a month, and periodic safety courses are held as needed.

"Cease firing. Ground your weapons."

Cadet On Honor Roll

Cadet Thomas H. Trant son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Trant, 1200 N. Inlyview Road, has been named to the 2nd honor roll for the grading period just ending.

He attained a 3.50 average on a four-point scale, according to an announcement by the Dean's office at Randolph-Macon Academy in Front Royal, Virginia.

Randolph-Macon Academy is a college preparatory school for boys founded by Methodists in 1892 which enrolls students in grades 8-12.

Talk Limits May Be Next

City Council's formal afternoon meetings may become chicken-eating, finger-licking, record-setting sittings if Monday's docket was an indication of what lies ahead.

Beset by planning applications pending final approval, council spent four hours of a marathon eight hour session deliberating on three of 20 applications.

But they had been forewarned. Mayor Donald H. Rhodes told the councilmen in an informal session that he might have to invoke a ten minute talk limit if things got too breezy. But it never came about.

So as the sun began to set, Public Information Officer Frank L. Cressy suggested that he might get everybody a box of fried chicken, since it looked like the session would continue into the night. The suggestion, however well-intentioned, was put off by a group of stalwart hopefuls.

Said Rhodes to Councilman F. Reid Ervin: "Reid, you campaigned for night sessions. I guess you got your wish."

But Councilman George R. Ferrell was considerably more tired, and far too serious, to be put off by the humor. Making a suggestion that the informal briefing sessions be held at 12:30 p.m. instead of the usual 1 p.m., Ferrell found almost unanimous consent.

In other matters, a beleaguered council:

*Approved a street closure motion for Oriole Drive at the intersection of Laskin Road, despite arguments that council might find itself reversed at a later date by a Supreme Court of Appeals ruling concerning the precedence of title and deed restrictions over zoning rules.

*Approved on second reading an ordinance authorizing the sale of $18.4 million worth of school bonds.

*Passed a resolution endorsing an emergency coronary care program within the city, to be handled by volunteer rescue squads.

*Was told there would be a joint meeting of the council and the Erosion Commission Nov. 17 at 8 p.m.

*Was told that Nov. 18 the city's advertising jury will receive advertising proposals from the three firms selected to bid on the city's $204,000 advertising contract.

Special Ceremony

A special flag raising ceremony was held recently at the Kempsville Masonic Lodge as a climax to year long efforts by the Demolay chapter there to get a flag and pole for the lodge. The idea came from Demolay members who wanted a flag for their Patriotism Day ceremonies. The National Sojourners Association donated the flag, then a lodge member gave them the pole. At the program, to which parents came, Marine Sgt. Major Bob Oman gave a history of the American flag.

Quarantine Lifted for Local Hogs

Virginia cities of Norfolk, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach and Chesapeake were released from Federal quarantine this week as the intensified State-Federal program to eradicate troublesome hog cholera outbreaks in southeastern Virginia and northeastern North Carolina continues to show progress.

The action by the U.S. Department of Agriculture came on the recommendation of Dr. R.E. Omohundro, Assistant Director of the Animal Health Division, who is coordinating State-Federal eradication efforts from a Suffolk, Virginia task force office. Dr. W.L. Bendix, State Veterinarian for Virginia concurred in the recommendation.

Of the four Virginia cities released from quarantine, only two had experienced hog cholera outbreaks after Sept. 8, the beginning date of the stepped-up eradication drive. They were Chesapeake and Virginia Beach, with two outbreaks each. The last Chesapeake outbreak was Oct. 1, and the last Virginia Beach outbreak was Sept. 23. The four herds with confirmed hog cholera in Chesapeake and Virginia Beach contained 4,870 head of swine. Infected herds were destroyed, and owners were paid State and Federal indemnities to help compensate them for losses. Most of the destroyed animals were from a single Virginia Beach herd numbering about 4,600 hogs.

To qualify for quarantine release under current ground rules, an area must have had no hog cholera for 30 days; and all farms in the area must have been checked at least three times by survey teams. Multiple checks of swine premises are made to minimize chances of hog cholera cases going undetected.

Dr. Kerr Is Dead at 92

Dr. Kerr, 92, an educator, lecturer and cultural leader who lived in Virginia Beach 40 years, died last week in The Hermitage at Onancock.

Dr. Kerr was one of the first 10 women to be awarded and associate membership in the national honor society, Phi Beta Kappa. At the time she was a member of Smith College Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

She founded the International Study and Prayer group at Virginia Beach, was professor of English at Hood College and Cornell College, academic dean of women at the College of Women at Downer College, dean of Wheaton College, dean of Florida State College for Women and dean of women at Atlantic University.

She was also active in the original suffragette movement and was much in demand through the years as a lecturer.

A memorial service for Dr. Kerr will be held Tuesday, November 17, at 4 p.m. in the chapel of the First Presbyterian Church by the Rev. John S. Lyles.

Fire Kills Boy

A Virginia Beach youth was one of five boys who died in Norfolk early Sunday when the log cabin in which they were sleeping burned to the ground.

The local boy was Johnny Robert Hill, 14, son of Johnnie Blount Hill, Route 1, and the late Mrs. Lillian Hamilton Hill. He was a student at Kellam High School.

RECREATION CENTER
TRAINEE

Expansion of our operations has created a number of openings in this area for individuals who are interested in managing a company owned business. No capital investment is required. As a manager trainee, you will receive on-the-job training in small business management controls and operation. This is a customer oriented activity and requires personal contact, promotional activity and an individual with a high energy level. We prefer candidates with previous experience in the operation of a small business, retail store, restaurant, hotel, etc.

While this experience is desirable, candidates who are ambitious, have strong leadership characteristics and have demonstrated their abilities, will be considered without previous experience. Why not explore the opportunities in confidence? Please send your resume including education, experience and salary requirements to Box 2175, Virginia Beach, Va. 23452. ### PUT THE VIRGINIA BEACH SUN

Although these two first graders are a little young to read yet, Grey Sweeney and Celeste Beachum are enthusiastic about the Book Fair.

Book Fair Planned in Big Way

Trantwood Elementary School is planning a book fair in a big way.

For one thing, poet, playwright, folk singer, composer, actor and auto racer Don Theye will entertain students on Nov. 17. On Nov. 16 students will compete in a costume contest as they wear costumes depicting their favorite book characters.

The book fair dates will be Nov. 16-19. Parents are especially invited to visit the school library during those dates and select books for their children, possibly as Christmas presents.

In a session that lasted about eight hours, City Council Monday overturned a Planning Commission recommendation and voted 8-1 to deny an application for a change of zoning for apartments along the edge of Lake Smith.

The 16 acre site belonging to Dr. M. Bagley Walker and Charles L. Kaufman, would have been used at a later date for 82 two-bedroom units. Contention on the part of the opposition was that such use would add to pollution of the Norfolk watershed.

Ellis C. Woodburn, president of the Lakeview Park Civic League, told council that 18 months ago a previous application by Walker was denied and that approval of this application would constitute the end of the lake's beauty.

"The lake has a character that should not be sacrificed to asphalt and concrete parking lots," he said.

Woodburn said water runoff from the parking areas as well as additional numbers of people walking along the lake's edge would lead to eventual erosion of the perimeter.

Woodburn said he represented 222 residents through petition and members of the Lake

Smith and Diamond Springs civic leagues.

But the applicants' attorney, Edwin Kellam, said that for thousands of acres around, the lake is also the end point for pollution, and that 82 additional units wouldn't hurt.

Kellam cited the Norfolk Metropolitan Baseball Stadium and its parking lot as well as additional apartment units as sources for pollution.

"The greatest pollution is from the fertilizers used by farmers around the lake, not people," Kellam said, and asked council where and to what degree it was going to call a halt to pollution.

He said the change in zoning was brought about by a change in growth, and said the apartments were necessary. "This is the highest and best use of the land," Kellam said.

In addition, Kellam said if the units were approved, a sewage treatment plant would be constructed adjacent to the property and replace septic tanks presently used.

"That would do more to end pollution of the lake than add to it," he said.

Councilman F. Reid Ervin said that at one time a man could do what he wanted with his land without having to consider pollution factors. "Now we have to consider others. Maybe we've desecrated our environment, but now we have to stop and see what we have to do to stem pollution," he said.

Arguments by both Kaufman and Walker that the lake would not be damaged and commitments by both to reduce the amount of acreage fronting on the lake did not sway council.

In another controversial matter, approval was granted for a change of zoning application by the E.V. Williams Co. for construction of apartment units across from Virginia Wesleyan College on the east side of Baker Road and South of Moore's Pond Road.

The Methodist-related college opposed construction of the units, calling it an end to the buffer system the institution had set up to protect its "integrity".

Voting against a motion for approval were Councilmen Ervin and Robert B. Cromwell Jr., with only Councilman Earl Tebault dissenting from the remainder of the council.

In other matters, council:

*Approved a use permit application by the City of Virginia Beach to construct a health facilities building in the Bayside municipal complex on Independence Boulevard.

*Approved a use permit application by Whitl Seasons, Jr. to construct four additional apartments on the southeast corner of 34th Street and Artie Avenue.

*Approved a use permit application by Fountainhead of Virginia Beach to construct a 106-unit motel between 6th and 7th Streets on the oceanfront.

*Approved change of zoning and use permit applications by D.A. Slack to construct 100 apartment units on the south side of Laskin Road and the east side of South Oriole Drive 183 feet south of Laskin Road.

*Approved a use permit application by the Virginia Beach Holiday Inn Travel-Park Inc. to construct 707 camp sites located between the west side of General Booth Boulevard and the east side of Oceana Boulevard 815 feet south of Harkers Road.

*Approved a use permit application by Carolanne Homes Inc. to construct 112 townhouse units on the northwest corner of Hill Prince and Princess Anne Roads.

*Deferred for 90 days an application for a change of zoning and a use permit by Robert Wilson and Associates to construct 360 luxury garden apartments 550 feet west of First Colonial Road adjacent to Laskin Village.

The matter was postponed until further information can be gathered concerning overcrowded schools after settlement of a proposed school controversy at the North end of Virginia Beach and the upcoming $18.4 million school bond referendum.

Craftsmen Display Art

Craftsmen of two Tidewater organizations opened an exhibition of craft work this week at the College Park Village Gallery. This spacious gallery allows the craftsman and the viewer to see craft work at its best, and is easily reached at the intersection of Providence and Indian River Roads in Virginia Beach.

The Tidewater Crafts Guild has been exhibiting at the Norfolk City Arts Festival each summer in the Crafts Exhibit in the large tent. Its membership produces original art forms in a great variety of craft media: clay, wood, fiber, metal, paint, glass.

The Ceramic Designer's Association is the newer group, having formed in 1967 from students of the full ceramics program being taught by Richard Lafean at the Norfolk Museum Art School. Its members work with clay and are interested in the study, appreciation, design and use of ceramic forms. The Ceramic Designer's Association exhibits frequently in the Tidewater Area and participates in statewide exhibits and workshops.

This multi-craft exhibition of creative forms in stoneware, porcelain, salt and raku, wood, weaving, stitchery, ceramic sculpture and glass opened on Nov. 7 and continues through Dec. 1. Gallery hours are 11 to 5 weekdays and 12 to 6 on Saturday and Sunday.

Referendum Is Program

James C. Moulde of the Virginia Beach School Board office will address the Point O View PTA on Nov. 17, at 7:30 p.m.

Moulde will talk to the group about the Bond Referendum. Miss Van Kuren's 5th grade class will present a skit in conjunction with Library Week which is Nov. 16 through 20th. The Book Fair will also be open that evening in the library.

There will be room visitation and all parents and interested friends are invited to attend.

PUBLIC NOTICE PROPOSED HIGHWAY PROJECT

The State Highway Commission wishes to advise that a Location and Design Public Hearing will be held by a representative of the Department of Highways on November 30, 1970, at 7:30 p.m., in the Point of View Elementary School Auditorium located at 5400 Parliament Drive, Virginia Beach, Virginia, for the purpose of considering the proposed location and design of Newtown Road from 0.208 mile north of the intersection of Virginia Beach Toll Road (Route 44) to 0.011 mile south of the intersection of Virginia Beach Boulevard (Route 90) in the Cities of Norfolk and Virginia Beach. This hearing will be held in accordance with State and Federal statutes, including provisions of Section 123 of Title 23 - Highways, United States Code, and Policy and Procedure Memorandum 20-8.

Maps, drawings and other pertinent information are available for public inspection and copying in the Department of Highways District Office at Suffolk, Virginia, located on Route 460 just north of Suffolk, in the Department of Highways, Norfolk Residency Office, located at the intersection of Routes 13 and 168 in the City of Chesapeake, in the office of the Director of Community Services for the City of Virginia Beach and in the office of the Director of Public Works for the City of Norfolk. A representative of the Department of Highways will have this information available in the Point of View Elementary School Auditorium from 3:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. on November 30, 1970, for viewing by interested persons.

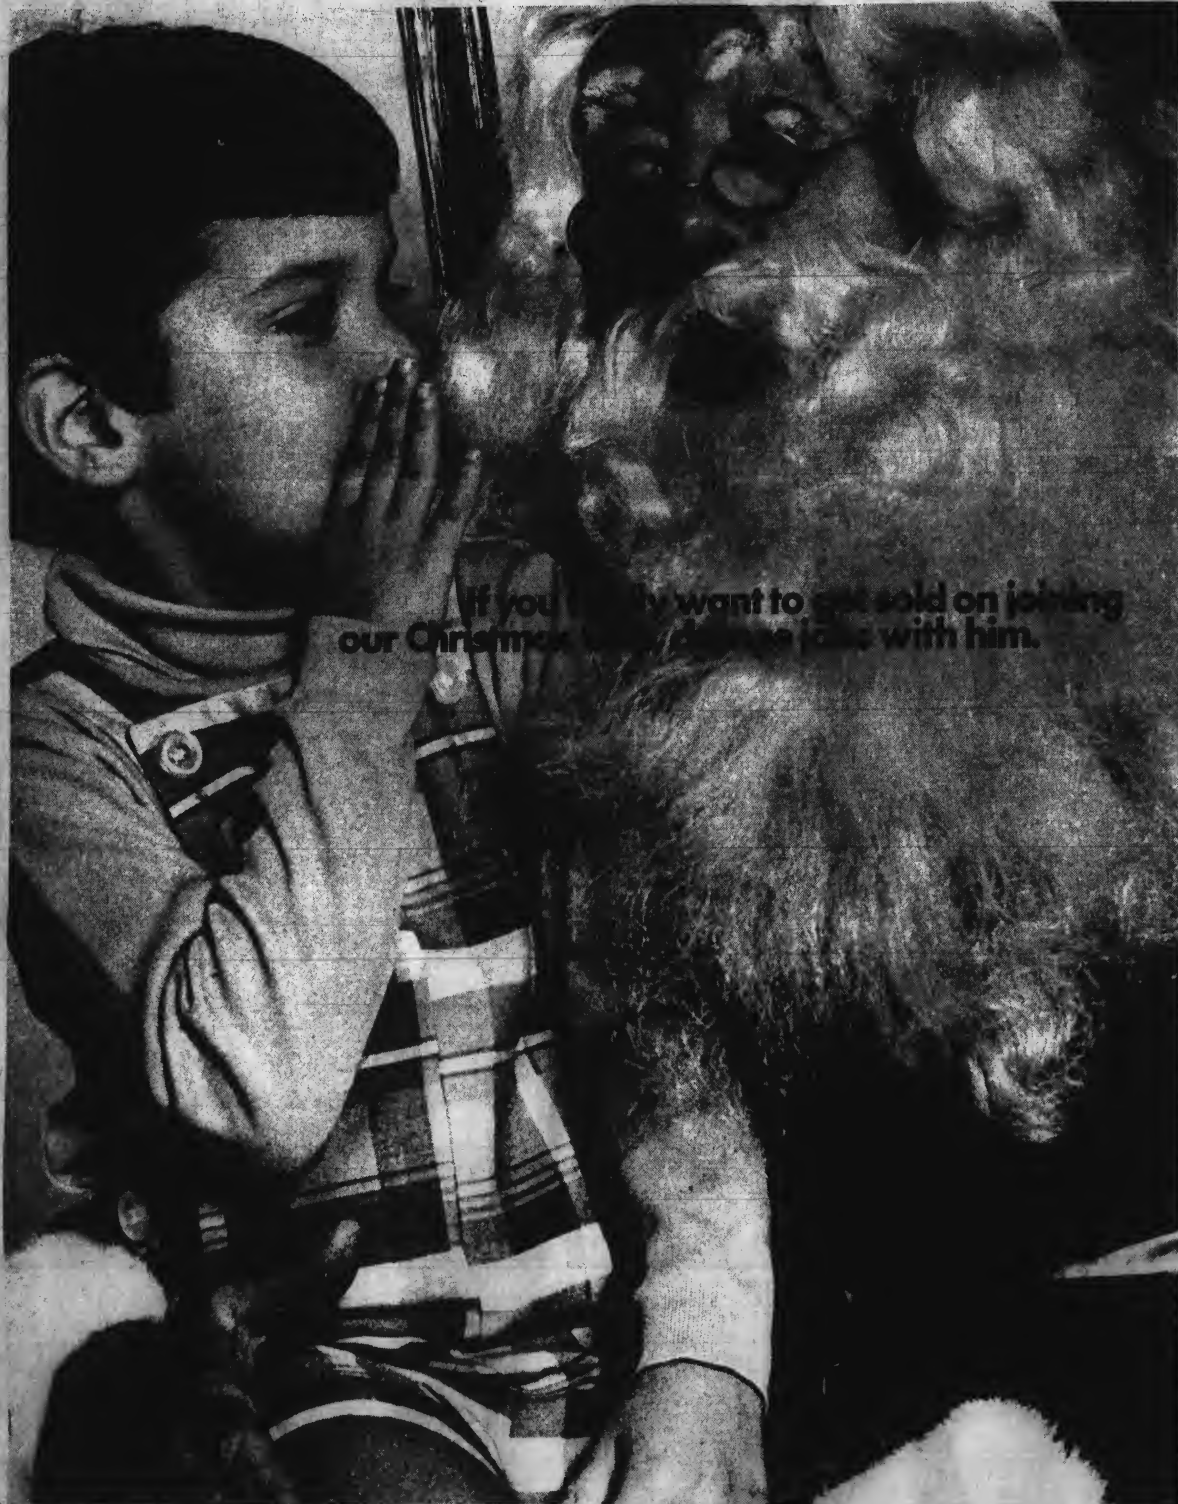

Written statements and other exhibits relative to the proposed project may be presented in place of, or in addition to, oral statements at the hearing. Such written statements and exhibits may also be submitted to the Virginia Department of Highways at any time within ten days following said public hearing date.

At the location and design public hearing, relocation assistance programs and tentative schedules for right of way acquisition and construction will also be discussed.

National Children's Library Week

This young lady is five years old and likes picture books. She is ANDREA RADFORD, daughter of MR. & MRS. RICHARD RADFORD of Aragona Village. ANDREA found that the library on Independence Boulevard has a good supply of the books that she likes.

Next week (November 15 to 21) is National Children's Library Week. To help promote the interest of children in the Virginia Beach Library, the Bookmobile and books in general the IN SIGHT photographer took the pictures on these pages at the main library on Independence Boulevard and aboard the bookmobile.

On Tuesday afternoon from 3:15 to 4:30 p.m. the Virginia Beach Public Library Bookmobile is at Janke and Odessa Streets in Diamond Springs. This is one of the busiest stops on the Bookmobile route as evidenced by the group of youngsters waiting to board.

Skicoak Indian Museum Intrigues Third

On eight acres of land, across Virginia Beach Boulevard from Pembroke Mall, DOUGLAS WALDORF, a descendent of the Susquehannock Indians, has gone back three hundred years to create the Skicoak Living Museum of the American Indian. He shares his knowledge of Indian lore with visitors whom he conducts on tours of his living museum. Last week the IN SIGHT photographer took the tour with two third grade classes from Kingston Elementary School. *MRS. GAIL HENDRICKS and MRS. MARY LEWIS GRIFFIN are their teachers.

how they made a musical instrument by drying out a turtle.

Virginia winters do get cold so the Indians had to have clothes. Their main source of clothing was the skins of animals. Here the youngsters learn how deer skins were cleaned and tanned to make clothing.

Plaza Jr. High Wins Homecoming

The Plaza Junior High Band was on hand to provide music for the game and for the half-time ceremonies.

The homecoming game between the Plaza Trojans and Princess Anne High's Junior J.V. Cavaliers produced some exciting action. Here number 44, LLOYD "LITTLE BULL" HODGES (see arrow) has picked up some blockers and is on the way---- -----down the field for a 35 yard touchdown.

HODGES is hit at the goal line but goes over for another TD. Final score was 28-6 Plaza over Princess Anne.

Plaza Fire Department Turkey Shoot

Plaza Volunteer Fire Department held the first two days of their turkey shoot Saturday and Sunday. The fun is not over - the shoot will also be held on the next two week ends, November 14 - 15 and 21 - 22. The scene is on Rosemont Road just south of the toll road. Proceeds will be used for the fireman's recreation fund.

MRS. WILLIAM H. STEMLER of Brookwood receives the recoil from her shot at the target, Fire Department member PAUL GAUTHIER and other members kept a watchful eye on each shooter.

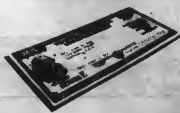

DETECTIVE RICK TAYLOR of the Police Department's Juvenile Division has a new and unusual hobby. RICK is collecting shoulder patches from police departments around the country. He recently wrote requesting a shoulder patch from Kent, England. Since they do not wear shoulder patches he was most pleasantly surprised to receive a metal badge, which is worn on the helmet, and collar insignia. RICK'S collection is now on display in the office of the Juvenile Division at headquarters but as the collection grows he hopes to make it available for display at other locations.

BURT LLOYD signs up SUSAN BANKS for the next shoot.

First Colonial High School News

Seniors pedal away with spirit day.

Margaret Murphy is young, pretty, vivacious, and won F.C.'s homecoming!

"Spirit, F.C. Has It"

The "week" of October 19-23 was an exciting one for the First Colonial Fighting Patriots and the loyal Patriot followers. The preparations for Homecoming to be held on Friday, October 23, had reached a furious peak.

The traditional Spirit Week began on Monday and continued through Friday. It was sponsored by the S.C.A. Spirit Committee, headed by Joanne Delaney and Linda Bosard. Each class had its own special day, and each tried to "out-spirit" the other four classes. The school was swarmed with clever, colorful posters and strange outfits, worn to show spirit.

Thursday was Senior Day. In the morning the 10th, 11th, and 12th graders competed in various contests. The 8th, 9th, and 10th graders competed in similar contests in the afternoon. The results of the morning assembly showed the Seniors victorious in the "hopping," "three-legged" and tricycle races. The Juniors shone through in the cupcake eating and egg-throwing contests. The class of '73 won four of the 5 contests in the afternoon competition.

The Pep Club, under the leadership of Suste Litchfield, made a grand showing in the Homecoming preparations. The Spirit Chain was its big project, and was draped all around the school to remind the students of the coming festivities. The Seniors challenged the Juniors to a contest to see who could buy the most links. On Friday, the Seniors were declared the winners. The Pep Club also sold pom-poms and balloons during the game.

The Homecoming Parade began at 4:00 Friday afternoon and proved a great success. As First Colonial is the only school in Va. Beach to have a parade down Atlantic Avenue, it was a very exciting event, as was shown by the crowds that gathered to see the gaily and unusually decorated cars and fabulous floats. Grand Marshall was Lonnie Cross, who, with his assistants, Mike Saunders and Dale Warden, did a great job of organizing the parade.

The excitement mounted as 8:00 P.M. approached. Our adversaries were the Churchland Truckers, and an exciting game was played.

The Halftime ceremony was the peak of the day. At that time, the winners of the float competition were announced. The Seniors won first place, followed by the Juniors, then the sophomores. The 1969 Homecoming Queen, Rebecca Martin, crowned Margaret Murphy as the 1970 Queen. Margaret was chosen in an election Thursday in which the entire student body participated.

The Patriots romped the Truckers 60-0, which put everyone in high spirits for the final festivity, the dance, the theme of which was "The Jungle Book". Thanks to Summer Byington, Dawn Joy, and Kevin Dee, the decorations portrayed the right atmosphere. Hostesses were Nancy Kahn and Bonnie Cross. They served cake and punch while the two great bands, Mason and The Soul Explosion provided fantastic dance music.

All-in-all, it was a perfect day for everyone. Many thanks go to all those who helped, and especially to Pat Cooper and Lee Withers, who were in charge.

Annual Staff Trips

"You must be from out-of-town because you're so enthusiastic and alive looking!" Such was a compliment given to the Heritage annual staff while visiting the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City.

Seven members of the annual staff along with sponsor, Mrs. Gwen Infantine, and her husband, attended a yearbook workshop at Columbia University in New York. The workshop, held on October 15 and 16, demonstrated ways of improving an annual by using different layouts, cover and copy. A banquet lunch was served at the Waldorf Astoria for the 400 annual staff members from across the country that attended.

October 17 and 18 was spent sightseeing. The staff visited Times Square, Rockefeller Center, Greenwich Village, Central Park, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and a walk down Fifth Avenue. Staff members Joyce Keller, Laura Earley, Lee Withers, Laurie Penner, Karen White, Jackie Leesch and John Cominski enjoyed seeing the musicals "Man of La Mancha", "Fiddler on the Roof", "Hello Dolly!", and "1776". Transportation, accommodations and entertainment was paid for by the individual members.

One prevalent comment by the staff was that the people in New York were "extremely cold."

PATRIOTS vs. WESTERN BRANCH

The First Colonial Patriots kicked off their 1970 football schedule against Western Branch at the Churchland High field.

The Patriots struck fast and held on to win by a score of 25-15. Steve Taylor scored two touchdowns on runs of 9 and 4 yards. Welton Cowell scored on a 3 yard run and Quarterback Mike Branch scored on a keeper from a yard out.

PATRIOTS vs. PRINCESS ANNE

A 4th quarter touchdown run from 5 yards out carried PA's Cavaliers to a 8-0 victory over visiting First Colonial.

After 3 quarters of brutal defensive action, PA recovered a Patriot fumble with 8 minutes left in the 4th quarter, marched downfield and scored.

Butch Fiore, Leonard Berry, and Tommy Soffield were outstanding as they repeatedly shut the door on PA's running attack.

SPORTS

The JV football team concluded their football season with a 19-6 win over Granby High School. Their record for the season was 3-1-1. They had victories over Bayside and Kempville, tied Cox and the one loss was to P.A.

Coach's Loar & Phelps singled out the following players for their outstanding contributions for the season. On offense, in the backfield it was David Eldridge, Tyrone Little, Doug Janazeeck and Mike Hughes. On the line were Mike O'Reilly, Dick Wray, Carl Mellin, Edward Douglas. In the defensive backfield were James Gary, Steve Jordan, Chris Paphiles and Don Pulley. On the line are Mike Pohle, Otis Cooper, John Themides, Ernie Davis and Al Humes.

Hockey "Bullies" To Winning Season

KAREN DUCKETT

Now in its fifth year, girl's field hockey has a 2-1 league and a 5-2 overall record. Coach Miss Clark explained that since the team now has more experience, there is more team effort. Although over an average of fifty spectators attend the games, Miss Clark feels that girl's sports has not had enough publicity in the community. Girl's participation in this sport has brought more interest among coaches of other sports.

Junior varsity field hockey, coached by Miss J. Anderson has a 4-1 overall record. The next home Varsity and J.V. games will take place November 18, with Kellam at 3:30 P.M.

PATRIOTS vs. BAYSIDE

The Bayside Marlinos, coached by Bob Hicks, scored all of their points in the second quarter and held on to beat First Colonial 22-15, in the Patriot's first home game of the season.

The Patriots lost because of two costly mistakes that Bayside turned into touchdowns. Clinton Bradshaw scored the first TD on a 23 yard run while Steve Taylor scored last on a 3 yard run. Taylor also ran over for the 2-point conversion.

PATRIOTS vs. KEMPVILLE

The First Colonial Patriots took advantage of an interception and a fumble in the third quarter to break open a close game and whip Kempville, 28-6.

Steve Taylor scored 2 touchdowns on runs of 15 and 13 yards. Welton Cowell scored from 5 yards out, while Mike Branch scored on a keeper and passed for 2 conversions.

PATRIOTS vs. CHURCHLAND

The Patriots returned home for their Homecoming game with Churchland. The Patriots got off-clasped the hopeless Truckers and won 60-0, setting a school scoring record.

The Patriots ran up 448 total yards offense, 333 yards rushing. The Patriots defense was outstanding in holding Churchland to a mere 65 yards rushing and 34 yards passing.

PATRIOTS vs. COX

Mike Branch scored three touchdowns, two from 2 yards away, and another on a keeper from a yard out to lead First Colonial to 31-8 romp over Archival Cox at the Falcon field. Welton Cowell started the scoring with a 15 yard jaunt in the first quarter.

BLACKS WEAR ARMBANDS

On November 2, Black Solidarity Day, Black students were requested to do the following in order to demonstrate that Blacks can unite for a common cause. They were to make no purchases or phone calls and to do no traveling.

The students wore black arm bands or a patch of black material. The multi-colored bands consisted of three colors: black, red, and green. Black representing the people, red symbolizing the blood shed for civil rights, and green stands for life and hope.

Black Solidarity Day originated in New York city on August 19, 1970. It is supported by the National Black Churchmen which is an inter-denominational organization. On this date Black unity was strived for in 31 major cities.

Old Donation Gets Renovation

LEN INTERIERI took on the job of painting the windows and the trim. This takes either a steady hand or a good scraper.

The Old Donation Episcopal Church will not look so old now. At least the parryhall and the kitchen won't. Men of the church are in the process of rebuilding and refinishing these two rooms in preparation for the upcoming 35th Annual Bazaar. The bazaar will be held on Saturday, November 21st, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and will feature needlework, dried flowers, white elephants, Christmas boutique, little people's shop, pony rides, space walk and many other booths and games. Babysitting will be furnished.

CECIL STANLEY painted the walls of the parry hall. A long handled roller makes the job easier but it's still a job.

KEN DUSSAULT, on ladder, waits for CHARLES ZILCH to cut a ceiling tile to size.

KENNETH C. CAMPBELL and DUTCH KLOTZNER wait for something to work with while DICK MOSHER drills a board.

Tunnel Lowers Rates

Wilbur Smith & Associates, traffic consultants to the Chesapeake Bay Bridge and Tunnel District, have recommended a revised and restructured toll schedule for the bridge-tunnel.

The recommendation is designed to simplify and speed up the toll collecting process and at the same time eliminate all passenger charges.

The Bridge-Tunnel Commission, at its meeting at Cape Charles Wednesday, unanimously adopted the proposed schedule and will put it into effect January 1, 1971.

The revised schedule is structured on a $2.50 per axle charge over and above an established minimum base for cars and trucks as follows:

Passenger cars, pick-ups and panels, 2-axle 4-tired, $5.25; combination ticket, for above, with Hampton Roads Bridge-Tunnel, $5.75; trucks, 2-axle 6-tired, $8; each additional axle above two, whether on principal vehicle or towed vehicle, $2.50.

The above tolls include driver and all passengers.

Buses and special vehicles fall in a separate category. A substantial savings will be effected by any vehicle carrying 3 or more people, driver included.

Area Representatives Succeed In Paris Culture May Fall to City Dredge

By JAMES TURNER

A significant archeological discovery on and around Davis Island in the Lynnhaven River may be lost to erosion and the city's dredge for all time unless local archeologists are allowed to complete their explorations.

"We have a culture here that is unusual in that it came up from Florida and possibly South America, and this is their furthest penetration North," said Floyd Painter, editor of the Chesapeake Archeological Society magazine.

"It dates from about 500 A.D. to 1600 when it was wiped out," he said. "We've also learned that these were seagoing people who depended mostly on water transportation."

That knowledge, as spotty as it may seem on the surface, indicates that greater things may be found. But it may all be lost.

Painter said the group conducting the dig has been told by the city that they must be bonded for insurance purposes before they can continue working on the island, which is part of the bank of the canal which leads waters from Lynnhaven Bay to the Chesapeake Bay.

City Council, afraid holes created by the explorations might create a hazard and lead to a lawsuit against the city, ordered the archeologists to stop digging until they can get the needed insurance coverage.

In addition, it was learned that the velocity of water that flows through the canal and under the Long Creek Bridge may have undermined the bridge. The canal may have to be dredged and widened to prevent the bridge's collapse.

But Painter says the dig can be completed in a matter of months. The problem is that the group is lacking the funds to become bonded, he said, and is stuck until they can. By that time, the city and Army's Corp of Engineers may have moved to dredge the canal, and the whole site, or a large part of it, may be lost.

"The wasteland is not going to be used," said Painter, "and we thought we were safe there. This has come as quite a blow to us."

Painter said the site might provide a basis for a fine collection for the proposed Virginia Beach museum, but that he's afraid the people in Virginia Beach are interested in art the way the "Grand Dames" of Norfolk are interested in art.

Besides, said Painter, there's no way Virginia Beach can hope to compete with the Chrysler art collection, so they should strike out in a different direction. "The nucleus is here, and I'm sure it would be of interest to visitors as well as our inhabitants," he said.

Painter said the nearest large museum of marine and natural history is in New York City, and that Virginia Beach would have little or no competition in the area.

But even though Painter would like to see a museum here, his greatest interest lies with the Davis Island site and the Chesapeake Indian Culture.

Davis Island, discovered about ten years ago by Maurice Vickers, is one of the best sites Painter said he has seen within the city. "It came to our attention when they started widening the canal."

When the dredging materials were checked, it was found that they contained bits and pieces of pottery, and thus the search began. "We sort of praise and deplore the activity," said Painter.

Thus far, about half a ton of pottery with a decorative motif has been found at the site, he said, and the group thinks the designer might have been a woman. "The artistic efforts are most unusual. The other thing that's interesting is that there are different motifs," he said.

Most Indian cultures had only one design that was repeated, he said, but this site shows that the people there were individualistic because everything is absolutely different. "They followed tradition, but they did it loosely," Painter said. And that may have led to their downfall.

According to the legends and from what can be learned from old records, Powhatan sent a group of warriors down to the site of the villages with orders to bring the Indian tribes into

James Pritchard, an excavator, looks over the condemned site on Davis Island, the source of the re-constructed pottery pot he holds.

After three days of waiting four Tidewater representatives of the POW-MIA group in Paris Wednesday spoke with North Vietnamese Delegate-General Mai Van Bo about the fate of North Vietnamese prisoners of war.

Mayor Donald H. Rhodes said the group accomplished what they set out to do. They talked with the North Vietnamese representative for about 50 minutes, he said.

He said the group held a wide discussion with Bo and talked about the need for more specific information on prisoners of war and the return of the sick and wounded.

Bo promised nothing, Rhodes said, but added that the American group was treated with great courtesy and that Bo listened to his position.

The group said they talked at length and that it appeared the North Vietnamese were willing to continue the discussion but that they terminated it when it appeared no specific information was forthcoming. They had asked for a specific list of prisoners being held.

Rhodes was accompanied by Norfolk Mayor Roy B. Martin Jr.; William P. Mitchell, vice president of the Old Dominion University Student Government Association; and Edwin H. Brandt, Jr., metropolitan editor of The Virginian-Pilot.

Brandt asked that he be allowed to travel to North Vietnam to tour prisoner of war camps and was told his request would be considered.

The group left Norfolk Saturday for Paris bearing petitions signed by 170,000 Tidewater citizens asking for a complete list of all persons held by the North Vietnamese, humane treatment of prisoners, and immediate negotiations for their release.

Arriving in Paris, the delegation made contact with the North Vietnamese but received no concrete answers until Tuesday afternoon when they appeared at the North Vietnamese delegation's door in Paris' Left Bank.

There they stood in rain carrying the petitions until a North Vietnamese aide appeared and told them they would receive a telephone call Wednesday informing them if they would be able to meet Bo.

Wednesday morning Rhodes sent a cablegram to Public Information Officer Frank L. Cressy, which said, "Strong possibility of visit with North Vietnamese delegation's secretary - general A.M. Nov. 18. Arrives Dulles 10:35 a.m. Call wife, McDaniel and press. Don Rhodes."

Earlier Tuesday, they met with Chief U.S. Negotiator David K. Bruce and discussed the POW situation with him. The group returned to Norfolk late Wednesday night after their five-day mission.

Another POW mission is scheduled some time next month when the mayors of Hampton and Newport News will travel to Paris to talk with the North Vietnamese.

'Get Wheels Moving on Betting'-Hatchett

Former City Manager W. Russell Hatchett said Monday that the people of Virginia Beach would suffer a "sacrilege" and a disservice if they aren't allowed to get the wheels moving for a referendum on horse-racing and betting next year.

Appearing before an informal session of City Council, Hatchett said it would be unfair to the city if a bill permitting a local referendum on the matter were not allowed on the docket for the General Assembly's special January session.

"What I'm asking is that the governor intercede so they can bring it up at the January meeting," he said. "They always try to hold it to one thing for these special sessions and then turn around and say we need yearly meetings."

"The senior Senator from Norfolk said you couldn't bring up racing in January, but that word has been used too much in Richmond in recent years," Hatchett said, referring to a statement made by Sen. Edward L. Breeden that since racing wasn't a constitutional issue, it couldn't be discussed.

If something needs to be discussed dealing with containerized freight, it would probably be brought up, he said. "I can't recall any legislation that's been brought up for Norfolk's benefit that's been stymied by the beach."

Hatchett said it was of vital importance that the racing matter be discussed now before Virginia Beach finds itself in deep financial trouble.

"Your needs are money. They were when I was here and they will be for some time to come," he said. The fast growth of the city has produced needs for services that will not be matched unless a new money source like racing is found, he added.

Unless racing is approved, "they're going to break our backs with taxes," Hatchett said. "I say to you that racing is something we need."

"There are 5,000 motel rooms in this city now that are vacant. It shouldn't be. I can't gain by it personally. I don't own any motels-but I want to see my city gain."

Hatchett

Oystermen Tie Up Dredging

The director of Community Services told City Council Monday that the dredging in the Lynnhaven River's Eastern Branch was almost complete but that dredging the Western Branch would be set back indefinitely unless oystermen are willing to release rights-of-way in the channel.

William C. Fleming said that about 15 oystermen have state leases on oyster beds in the path of the proposed dredging operation and appear to be unwilling to relinquish rights to their areas.

The dredging, which has been requested by several residents along the Lynnhaven River and others concerned with pollution, will have to be tabled indefinitely, Fleming said.

"My recommendation is that we don't do anything in the Eastern Branch until this can be resolved," he said.

Fleming said the department would be ready to begin dredging operations in the area within four to six weeks, in which time he said the Western Branch dredging operation would be warding of all the spectator sports, Hatchett said the referendum bill shouldn't be held up until the 1972 General Assembly session but acted on now. "Move it up on the calendar and in a year or two the city will have greater financial wealth."

Hatchett said the funds could be used to solve many of the city's pressing problems such as the school construction situation, elimination of tolls and toll facilities in the area, and the increasing burden of community services on the city.

"We've got a governor in office who said if the people want to vote on something they should be allowed to," Hatchett said, and added that he wanted to get the vote accomplished before a narrow-minded man replaces Gov. Linwood Holton in Richmond.

Completed.

He said he had no idea how long the Eastern Branch procedure would take. "We'd simply get in and stay until we complete the job, depending on the weather and other factors," Fleming said.

Fleming said the releases were necessary to avoid any suits for damages by owners of the beds.

He said negotiations do not appear to be moving to a solution very rapidly, and suggested that public pressure on the group might help.

According to Capt. George L. Ayers, chairman of the Chesapeake Bay Waterways Committee, the opening of the channel would permit greater circulation of the waters of the backwaters.

The salinity of the water would also probably increase, he said, leading to better conditions for oysters.

"We hope to sit down and resolve this thing so no drastic action on anybody's part

(See 'Oystermen' p. 6)

Council, Commission Settle Very Little Tuesday

The oft-discussed but seldom remedied Rudee Inlet is drawing a more optimistic diagnosis, but its ultimate fate as a marine development depends on the success of a $170,000 dredge and a little help from nature.

That's the word members of City Council received in a Tuesday night meeting with the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission. Councilman Reid Ervin presented the commission's prepared list of 15 questions concerning the status of dredging operations to clear the inlet of sand build-ups.

E. R. Church, chairman of the Erosion Commission, told councilmen he hoped dredging of a sand trap at the mouth of the inlet would be completed by the end of the year. "We're trying to get that inlet like you want it," Church said, "but we can't guarantee anything." Church and a consultant for the commission told the council that dredging operations haven't made as much headway as expected because "the sand is coming in as fast as we can get it out." The commission said, however, the new 12-inch dredge purchased by the commission this summer is making headway.

Joseph McDonald of the consulting firm of Langley-McDonald said a recent storm also has aggravated dredging operations.

Ervin said the meeting was called to bring new council members up to date on the inlet's status. "All of us are tired of trying to defend Rudee Inlet," he said.

Much controversy has centered around the large amounts of money which have been spent to keep the inlet free of sand. Many feel that the economic development of the entire Back Bay area hinges on the success of the inlet improvement program. A small number of charter boats currently operating out of the inlet has occasionally been trapped inside because of sand build-ups at the mouth of the inlet.

The responsibility for replenishing the beaches with sand was aired when Ervin said the commission felt it would favor the city's assuming the role. The Erosion Commission has replenished the beaches since 1952.

"I don't know which is the best way," Church said. "If the city takes over operations, I feel sorry for the council, this to be impossible. Next the 15 acres located between Shore Drive and the 4-H camp were eliminated, but this too proved unfeasible because of a dangerous left turn across Shore Drive and a requirement that a 100-foot buffer be maintained along Shore Drive which made location of the school physical plan there impossible.

"Mr. Bolen was advised that the best interests of the educational program and the safety of the children prohibited use of that site, he proposed that the School Board consider the site between 87th and 89th Streets. Working closely with our Parks and Recreation Department and with the then planning director of the city, the school staff developed a comprehensive plan for total use of the 15 acres in question, a plan guaranteeing maximum use by all citizens of Virginia Beach."

First objections to the site came from "personal interests" of North Virginia Beach residents, according to the report. A letter from Mrs. J. W. Allen, II, a leader in the opposition, to Bolen dated Aug. 7, 1967 read: "We feel that this area should be preserved, and that not only would a city park and campground destroy the area, it would also destroy the peace of mind and property values of those who own property adjoining it.... The 4-H Camp mentioned in yesterday's paper is a great trial, and we had hoped that it would be closed

Goal Made

The Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce held a victory celebration last night at the Washington Club Hilton Inn. The occasion was to celebrate the fact the Chamber again this year achieved its goal of 100 new members, in a one-day membership drive.

Although the exact number of new members was not known at press time, Executive Vice President Al Malheis said "substantially more than 100 new members are expected to be reported before the evening is over."

Water, Trash Authority Nears Final Solution

"Water, water, everywhere, nor any drop to drink."

This, according to Virginia Beach city manager, Roger Scott, has been the problem for nearly five decades in the Beach's negotiations with Norfolk over water.

And, unfortunately, many of the negotiations between the two cities have been as clouded as polluted water. But, as Scott explained to members of the Council of Civic Organizations, the cities "are near a final and reasonable solution."

Though refusing to give exact details, Scott told the civic leaders of the possible creation of an authority to provide water and refuse disposal that would follow the same pattern as the Hampton Roads Authority. He emphasized that the authority is in the negotiation stage.

Plans would call for Norfolk to sell its water facilities to the authority while Virginia Beach would sell Mount Trashmore No. 2 and its disposal equipment to the authority. Each city would be an equal partner, Scott said.

"I believe this is an arrangement that is fair to the citizens of both cities," Scott said. He said most of the negotiations have been between him and Norfolk city manager Thomas Maxwell.

Scott said the road to negotiations with Norfolk has paved when pollution experts told Norfolk it couldn't burn trash in the city any more. "They (Norfolk) needed a place to get rid of their garbage," he said.

The city manager said Virginia Beach has gotten its water from Norfolk since 1927. Relations between the two cities became strained, Scott said, in World War II when Norfolk was asked by the government to supply water for four military installations at Virginia Beach. The system became overloaded and created several problems before Norfolk laid a new 20-inch main in the 1940's he said.

The 1950's brought another confrontation when Beach residents and officials complained that water rates were too high. Later, in the 1960's, Norfolk threatened to stop water to Virginia Beach when the Beach and Princess Anne County attempted a merger to halt Norfolk annexation.

A five-year contract ended in 1968, Scott said, and subsequent contracts have been for only six months at a time. The current water contract expires December 31, he said.

According to Scott, one of the major bottlenecks in negotiations with Norfolk has been a clause in the contract which forces Virginia Beach to buy meters and other equipment from Norfolk if Virginia Beach puts in its own water system.

Beach officials claim residents already have paid for the meters through water rates and "shouldn't have to pay for the meters again," Scott said. Virginia Beach has "a moral if not legal right" for its stand, but legal experts say the 1963 contract is legally binding.

Much of the recent lag in conferences has been over the cost of the meters and water system. The system has been appraised at approximately $5,200,000 and, according to Scott, "we have negotiated to a very close value of the system."

Scott told the group that the creation of an authority owned by both Norfolk and Virginia Beach would give the cities equal footing on attracting industry and reduce water rates in Virginia Beach. He also said the water system would be self-supporting and would cause no additional tax burden.

Plans would call for each city to maintain its own distribution lines, he said. In answer to a question from the council, Scott said Norfolk's current water facilities will have to be eventually increased, but added that it would cause no problems.

One of the members of the CCC expressed concern that Virginia Beach would be taking all of Norfolk's garbage, Scott said. Mount Trashmore No. 2 would be capable of accepting both cities' trash for 20 years before it becomes exhausted. Mount Trashmore No. 1, which has gained national attention in refuse disposal, is nearing capacity, Scott said.

Beach Youth Is Va. Toy Finalist

For the sixth consecutive year, young Tinkertoy designers are being given an opportunity to share in honor awards and a $1,000 Scholarship, plus an expense-paid trip, by designing original and imaginative toy models. Now holding the title of Virginia State Finalist is David Chow of 2232 Indian Hill Road, Virginia Beach.

All boys and girls in this immediate vicinity are eligible to participate in Toy Tinkers' Scholarship Award Program by submitting sketches or photographs of original models which they have designed from Tinkertoy, Tinker Zoo, Toy Maker, or any combination of the three toys. All models qualify for Junior Engineer Certificate of Award and then for the Scholarship Award Program, which is judged on the basis of imagination and creativity of design.

Each year, in addition to the above honors, the 50 state finalists receive handsome mounted, personally-engraved wall plaques.

The Scholarship Award is a $1,000 savings bond and an expense paid trip to New York City for the top designer and his or her parents. With this award goes the title of Toy Tinker of the Year now held by 12-year-old Mike Dunn of 11877 Hood Landing Road, Jacksonville, Florida.

According to R.A. Christoferson, president of Toy Tinkers, "the awards program is in keeping with our line of creative and fun toys." He also added: "Each year, the enthusiasm and the number of participants in this creative awards program continues to surpass all expectations."

Sketches or photographs of original designs should be sent, before December 31, 1970, to Toy Tinkers, a Questor company, 807 Greenwood Street, Evanston, Illinois 60204.

Bankers are Promoted

Two Virginia Beach bankers were among 11 persons promoted by Virginia National Bank president C. A. Cutchins in the Eastern Region.

Waldo P. Bornemann, who heads the Court Square Office which opened just last week, was promoted from assistant cashier to assistant vice president and manager.

Frederick W. Tryman at the Virginia Beach Office on Atlantic Avenue was promoted from assistant manager to assistant vice president and assistant manager.

Planner at Workshop

Harry M. Lange of Virginia Beach is among a group of planning officials attending a short course at the University of Virginia this week.

Entitled "Planning for Urban and Urbanizing Areas," the workshop is being conducted by the School of Architecture's city planning division and the department of urban affairs and community services in the School of General Studies.

Local wheat growers involved in research

Virginia Beach wheat growers are directly involved in the new Wheat Research and Promotion Act, according to Chris Krabshill, chairman of the Virginia Beach Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee.

Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin has said, "Domestic utilization of wheat in human nutrition and industry can be encouraged by the recently enacted Wheat Research and Promotion Act. The prospect is quite promising that research can develop new products and greater utilization of wheat."

Financing of the program under the new law is to come from proceeds of the 1968 wheat export certificate pool not claimed by eligible farmers.

"Local wheat growers whose share of the export certificate pool amounts to $3.00 or more will receive notice directly from Virginia Beach ASC office telling them what their share of the pool is and explaining the options each grower has," Krabshill said.

A producer may choose to receive his share of the export certificate pool or he may leave it in the pool to finance the research and promotion program.

Wheat growers in Virginia Beach entitled to receive less than $3.00 will not receive a special notice but they can nevertheless claim their share of export certificates by filing a written request for payment with the ASC office. Each producer's share of the export certificate pool will amount to about $.56 for each 100.00 of 1968 domestic wheat certificates earned.

Publications Are Delayed

The 1971 editions of your federal income tax, and tax guide for small business, will not be available until late December 1970, James P. Boyle, IRS District Director for Virginia, has announced.

The delay until late December for the sale of these publications is caused by the requirement for substantial revision to give effect to the tax Reform Act of 1969, Boyle said.

Both publications, which are intended to help taxpayers file their individual or business income tax returns, will sell for 75¢ per copy at the IRS offices in Balleys Crossroads, Newport News, Norfolk, Richmond and Roanoke or from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, Boyle said.

Hall Is Pembroke Vice Pres.

James W. Hall has been named vice-president of Pembroke Realty and Insurance Agency, Inc., according to an announcement by a principal of the firm, Richard E. Oliveri.

Hall will handle commercial leasing and development for the real estate firm. He has previously developed and leased shopping centers, office buildings, and other commercial properties.

Hall was formerly president of Tidewater's Alsage Realty Corporation before which he was vice-president of Goodman-Segar-Hogan, Inc., Realtors of Norfolk.

A member of the International Council of Shopping Centers, Hall is also active in the National Institute of Farm of the Sales and Marketing Executive Club.

The new law allows them either to receive their pro rata share, or leave it in the pool to be used in research and promotion of U.S. wheat," he added.

The law authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to enter into agreement with farm organizations representing wheat producer interests, such as the newly formed National Wheat Institute, to carry out research and promotion.

The Institute is a non-profit organization representing a cooperative effort among wheat producer groups to increase domestic wheat usage. The Institute incorporates the requirements outlined by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for eligibility to receive contracts under the program.

Honesty Their Best Policy

The customer walked into the store and asked for "some kind of vitamins". The young man behind the counter asked why she thought she needed vitamins.

"Most people need them, don't they?"

"Only if they don't eat properly," he asked about her eating habit. She told him,

"Lady, you don't need vitamins. You couldn't possibly have any kind of deficiency with eating habits like that. And no one should take any kind of pill, even vitamins, if he doesn't need to."

Such honesty may not make sales but it certainly makes happy customers. And that is more important than the dollar bill to the trio who operate Natural Foods on 17th Street. "Honesty is really what our business is all about," explains Mrs. Phyllis Lupi, the store's owner. "We sell honest foods, those grown naturally as God intended. It only makes sense that we should have an honest operation."

Today's interest in nutrition and there is no doubt that there has been a noticeable increase in concern about foods—knows no age, economic levels or race. The customers who frequent the natural food stores in the area attest to that. They come from all walks of life... sophisticated dowagers, surfers, middle-aged businessmen, illiterate laborers.

"People are getting away from foods with chemical preservatives," explains Mrs. Lupi.

"Yes, and attitudes toward nutrition are changing, too," comments Mrs. Susan Davis, store manager.

"That's because the young people see the things wrong in the processing of food today. They are the ones who started the trend toward organic foods," claims the third member of the trio, Bill Tabit, representing the youth of which he speaks.

Part of this growing interest in nutrition by the young people has evolved from the use of drugs. Some are getting interested in health and good food in overcoming the habit. Others are trying to get away from drug sources, and this includes the chemical additives in processed foods.

Mrs. Davis learned the hard way the value of nutrition. While going to school in California, she sadly neglected her intake of proper foods. She snacked on the run—most of the time, seldom stopping for a balanced meal.

"A doctor friend of mine saw me one day and immediately put me in the hospital," she said. "He said I was suffering from malnutrition and would be dead in two days if I didn't start feeding my body. That taught me a lesson I'll never forget."

Mrs. Lupi opened the store three years ago but her interest in natural foods, especially herbs, started some 15 years ago when she was living in Venezuela.

"I started out here trying to specialize in herbs," she said, "but the demand has been so great for other things I've had to expand."

This expansion is much more than just stock items. The trio can advise their customers on everything from the proper way of "purifying" sprayed vegetables to the growing of an organic garden.

"The one thing we always stress," said Mrs. Lupi, "is that nutrition is an individual matter. No two people have the same needs. One person might be a total vegetarian. The next might need red meat. It is important that we never push our own personal beliefs onto someone else."

Gunfire Trainer Opens

Opening ceremonies for the new Naval Support Gunfire Trainer were held Monday at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base.

At 10 a.m. Commander Ralph S. Stedman of Public Works turned the keys to the new building over to Captain Homer H. Halsten, Commanding Officer of the Naval Amphibious School.

Guest of honor at the ceremony was Vice Admiral Luther C. Heinz, Commander Amphibious Force, U.S. Atlantic Fleet.

The trainer will give instruction and practical experience in planning and executing a support exercise for members of gunfire teams from both cruisers and destroyers.

Mock-ups of support gunfire plotting rooms, programming departments and computer centers will enable the crews to practice all phases of support gunfire without the unnecessary waste of ammunition.

'Snowflake' Actually a Giant

"Operation Snowflake" has been a top priority project at Pembroke Realty and Insurance Agency, Inc. for the past eight months or so.

Monday Edward W. O'Brien, vice president of commercial sales, announced the project's successful completion -- the largest land acquisition by a single developer ever recorded in the State of Virginia.

"Snowflake" was the name given the project by the firm's staff during the months it took to consummate the many complex transactions involving the five separate land acquisitions. Its completion means that over 600 acres have been acquired by the Terry Corporation of Virginia for construction of a regional shopping center and some 5,000 homes.

The property, collectively costing some $4 million, is located on the south side of Holland Road, one mile east of the intersection of Independence Boulevard and the Norfolk-Virginia Beach Expressway.

Principals of Terry Corporation -- Horace Cistole, Frederick Napolitano, Emilio Olivieri and Louis Lucente -- have created a new division in their land development firm specifically to design and build the new community.

Plans for the new Terry acquisition, 50 per cent of which is wooded, include the construction of lakes and open green areas to provide environmental corridors for the developed areas.

Highway plans call for a major intersection in the middle of the property -- Independence Boulevard and South Plaza Trail, once the two roads have been extended.

It is estimated that it will take eight to 10 years to complete the overall complex and its finished value will probably exceed $150 million.

The Planned Unit Development will incorporate "the best of Terry Corporation's past endeavors," Napolitano said.

"Our plans for this site will reflect our desire to make this new community the high point of our careers. It will be the outstanding accomplishment of the Terry Corporation of Virginia."

Certainly Terry Corporation has already made its mark in Virginia Beach. The firm started here a number of years ago with a section of Aragona Village, then built Malibu and other communities, before developing the outstanding Pembroke properties.

This undertaking will supposedly be a "new concept of the psychology of a new community," according to Napolitano.

The proposed residential giant is as yet unnamed -- but it probably won't be "Snowflake."

Club Aids Christmas Spending

Christmas Club a Corporation has released figures for the nation's 1970 Christmas Club members totaling $2,396,736,000 in club savings during this year. Over 16,644,000 Americans opened clubs this year and saved an average of $144 in each club membership.

This represents another record year for Christmas Club savings and memberships, according to Christmas Club a Corporation, the organization that originated the savings plan back in 1910.

Over 10,000 banks and savings institutions will issue checks to members during this month when the Christmas buying season starts.

Christmas Club surveys show that although many people join just for Christmas cash, nearly $700,000,000 from 1970 clubs will go right back into savings at the institutions where the clubs were joined and the remainder spent on Christmas presents and such expenses as taxes, insurance, tuition and vacation.

The record highs in membership and dollars saved indicate a strong plan-ahead attitude on the part of many Americans to insure a Happy Holiday season.

"Mom, how can you get so upset about drugs when you really don't know a thing about them?"

If you're having a little trouble these days getting through to your kids when you try to discuss illegal drug use, it may be because they know a lot more than you do about the subject.

We can't promise to make you an expert, but we can help you to catch up a little. Here are a few facts to talk from:

1. Marihuana:

Its use is a felony. Conviction, even with a suspended sentence, may cause interruption of education, difficulty in obtaining a driver's license in some states, entering a profession, getting a responsible job. While marihuana, which is not a narcotic, does not cause physical dependence, it may lead to "psychological dependence"

if taken regularly. There is no current conclusive evidence that marihuana is "medically safe." Research is currently being conducted to find out more about its physical and psychological effects.

2. LSD:

Its effects can differ at times in the same individual. There is no way of predicting whether a "trip" will be "good" or "bad." And days, weeks, even months after using LSD, the things the user experienced while on the drug may recur unexpectedly. The LSD experience can sometimes be disturbing enough to cause acute and even long-lasting mental illness.

3. "Ups and Downs":

Excessive use of amphetamines ("ups") can drive a person beyond his physical endurance and leave him totally depleted physically, since he feels like neither eating nor sleeping. The body develops a tolerance to these drugs, with larger and larger doses required to feel the effects. Long-term heavy users are usually irritable, unstable, and may suffer social, intellectual, and emotional breakdown. Abrupt withdrawal ("crashing") for the heavy user can result in a deep and suicidal depression.

Barbiturates ("downs") can, in regular and excessive doses, become physically addicting. Overdose, or abrupt withdrawal for a heavy user, can cause death. Barbiturates are a leading cause of accidental poison deaths in the U.S. Amphetamines are sometimes prescribed as "diet pills," and barbiturates are given as prescription sleeping pills, but neither should be taken except in strict accordance with a physician's prescription.

4. Narcotics:

Heroin is physically, as well as psychologically addicting. Large, or unexpectedly unadulterated doses can result in death. The addict's main object in life becomes getting the drug. He may turn to crime as the only way to get enough money to support his habit (which can run as high as $100.00 per day).

For more detailed facts about these drugs, write for free drug booklets to: National Institute of Mental Health, Box 1080, Washington, D.C. 20013

The Insurance Picture

Insurance companies complain that they can't make a profit, insurance agents complain that they have trouble getting insurance companies to accept new or renew policies and customers complain that the rates for insurance are too high. And some politicians are using the situation for personal gain at the cost of the consumer, the companies and agents.

It just may be that all involved are guilty of compounding the problem of high insurance premiums...the customer, the politician, the agents and the companies.

Policy holders cannot expect to enjoy low insurance rates when the rate of accidents and claims against the companies are constantly increasing.

Simply stated, in order for insurance premiums to be lowered, some solution must be found for the increasing costs of claims...repair costs, medical costs and legal fees. And what about those unreasonable "insurance injuries" as they have come to be called. Individuals who file them and lawyers who encourage such suits are also contributing to the high insurance premiums.

Insurance companies are certainly not without fault in this matter. Many companies have had years when there were low claims against policies in force, resulting in good profits which are invested and pay handsome dividends. Then in subsequent years, when losses have been heavier, instead of using those investment incomes to cover the losses, the companies are going before the regulatory agency seeking rate increases.

The politicians who fight a reasonable rate increase are doing so at the cost of the consumer. Many so-called average policyholders who have previously had no trouble getting their policies renewed are now being thrown into assigned risk categories or are forced to obtain insurance from non-standard, high cost companies. So the protection, instead of being for the consumer, is for a highly selected few.

The insurance agents who fail to fight such actions by the companies on behalf of their clients are also at fault.

Obviously, there is blame enough to be spread to all segments of the society. More obvious, however, is the need for representatives of the regulatory agency, the companies, agents, the consumers and the politicians to sit down and face this problem, discuss the facts involved without emotion or political motivation, and reach an equitable solution.

The insurance companies have suggested that the solution should be in some form of "open competition" rate making.

Another suggestion was that the procedure used for setting rates of Workmen's Compensation insurance be adopted. In that case, representatives of the insurance companies and the regulatory agency sit down each July and review the policies in force and the claims against them during the previous year. The new rate for the next year is based directly on the amount of claims against the policies in force. And the rates are current.

Whatever the solution, in the interest of the consumer, it should be reached soon. The consumer is still the one who is losing.

THE LAUNCH PAD!

Push for action now

City Council was urged Monday to get the wheels in motion immediately in appealing to the General Assembly at its special session in January to get parimutuel betting before the voters.

The prodding came from a longtime advocate of parimutuel betting, W. Russell Hatchett, former city manager. As he pointed out, he was in opposition to know the financial burden faced by this city. The city had them when he was heading the administration and they have them now. In fact, they get worse by the year.

Mr. Hatchett speaks with a voice of experience. There are untold millions of dollars the city could enjoy if parimutuel betting were approved. And the benefits would be far-reaching. Tolls could be eliminated, recreational facilities could be developed, tourism could be more adequately promoted, many of the city's financial problems could be solved. Certainly it would ease the pull on the taxpayer's purse strings.

But these things will not come about for perhaps several years unless city council moves now. The special session is just around the corner. Norfolk says Virginia Beach should not act hastily. We say the city cannot act fast enough.

The states which have finally legalized parimutuel betting have blossomed. Florida is perhaps the best example. It is a wealthy, continually growing state. Its residents are provided the very best in highway systems, education, recreation, etc. The economy of Florida does not depend on the taxpayer. He is given many benefits for minimum taxation. He does not pay extra money to check out of a grocery store. He does not purchase textbooks. He does not pay tolls on his bridges and highways. He is pampered, compared to the Virginia taxpayer, because of tourism (richly promoted by the state) and parimutuel betting.

Our neighboring state of Maryland is not as prominent or successful yet as Florida, but that state, too, is progressing because of the legalization of gambling.

Mr. Hatchett is, indeed, wise when he urges council to proceed immediately in soliciting the General Assembly's attention to this issue. The legislators are apparently to deal only with Constitutional revisions at the special session. The lottery issue is one of these revisions. The voters supported the change wholeheartedly on November 3. It definitely is not too soon for Virginia Beach to push for action.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Visitor Urges Action

To the Editor:

Last June I visited the Tidewater area for the first time. What a trip to remember! I visited many of the historic spots, and made a very complete tour of most everything you have to be proud of. I have never seen a state or people more proud of their heritage. For the first time in my life the history of my country and its trials and victories came alive in my mind. All this thanks to the wonderful places like Williamsburg, Petersburg and many more.

I was amazed at the friendliness of the people, and this I value highly, since I am from a very small town, and some how felt friendliness like I was shown came only from small towns. This was shown to me everywhere, stores, historic spots...people in general.

The beauty of your countryside, is unsurpassable...the ocean and beaches far surpass anything I have seen on the West coast.

However, you have something else that amazed me too. Something so undesirable, that somehow I would not trade my home on the barren, lava fields of Idaho, for all the beauty of the land you have. You have smog. Brother, do you have smog? In the almost two weeks I spent in Virginia Beach and surrounding area, I never saw a really blue sky! Each night or rather late afternoon, I watched that orange, pink ball slowly going down through the haze? fog? SMOG! I have only seen skies like this in Los Angeles. Have you had it so long, you no longer know what a blue sky is...What are you doing about it? In my area, smog is just beginning, with haze in the valleys during temperature inversions...and thank God industry is starting to work with state pollution authorities now before we too are buried under a blanket of smog, as you are.

Perhaps you wonder why I care, and why I am trying to stir you wonderful people into doing something. My brother, Jack Korman is a resident of Virginia Beach and has through the months been making complaints about the pollution of the lake adjacent to his home. I hold in my hand an article printed in your paper on October 27th, telling of his complaints and headlined FIRMS DISCLAIM OIL SEE-PAGE POLLUTION. This article states that Mr. Yagel of the State Water Control Board said "he had not seen any oil on the lake but recognized that pollution could exist in that fashion." Perhaps I should have shown Mr. Yagel my legs streaked with oil last June, after I waded into this same lake with my daughter.

I care about you and your land, because it is mine too...because I am an American. You have so much...why don't you make a REAL effort to keep it...open your eyes and see what is happening to your beautiful land...Listen to those who warn you...and act! Sincerely, Mrs. Lloyd Phelps Conda, Idaho

Asks Mayor To Look

To the Editor:

I note in the Virginian-Pilot of November 12, 1970 that our mayor of the City of Virginia Beach, Mr. D. H. Rhodes, is taking a jaunt to Paris on behalf of the American P.O.W.

Let me state that my sincere sympathy is with the P.O.W.'s and their families and I hope the mission accomplishes its purpose.

When the mayor returns from beautiful Paris, I would like to invite him to visit devastated Kempville. It is a possible for him to get members of the National Safety Council to accompany him, there is a good chance that they will condemn it and class it as a national disaster area, and the city would thereby be eligible for more federal funds.

A telephone call to the "Palace" is the ultimate in complete frustration. After being referred to at least six different offices and finally in desperation resorting to profanity, it is patiently explained to you that this is a Federal and State project that is let on contract to a private firm.

The only interpretation I can give to this is that once you dip your snout into the federal trough, all local governmental officers have one easy answer to all complaints and for all practical purposes, a private firm takes over the operation of that section of the city, in which case, why the Hell do we need a mayor, city manager etc.?

Have a pleasant trip, mayor, and when you get back, come along through the mud and dust with the natives. Yours truly, W. Wells P.S. Use a city car, as the wheels will be out of line when you leave.

GRASS

By W. A. Leavell, Ph.D.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew recently suggested that a panel of government officials "examine" news commentators so that any prejudices they may have could be brought to the attention of the public.

During an interview with two television commentators in Chicago the Vice President said that newsmen can select parts of the news they wish to emphasize and by their language "convey a point of view that is not an editorial yet is colored by your own viewpoint."

The vice president, and a number of others through out the country, have been speaking out lately on the position of the news media in our society. The point seems to be that, for the most part, the sophisticated news media, the TV, radio, and major newspapers, tend to be quite liberal. The liberal community sees nothing wrong with the position of the media and points out that "freedom of the press" is one of the foundations of our system.

The conservative community sees the liberal media as a danger. They seem to feel that a liberal conspiracy exists and that the major media is trying to force its bias on the public.

While the Vice President is no doubt truly concerned about the position of the media in our democratic system, just as the members of the media are no doubt concerned about the position of the Vice President in our democratic system, "this thought of 'examining' news commentators might open a Pandora's Box best left closed.

I think anyone will concede that history indicates our glorious government tends to carry any assignment to uncalculated ends. If given the slightest nudge it will run wild in all directions. If, as the Vice President suggested, a panel of government officials were authorized to "examine" newsmen, such an innocent task could grow and grow until it reached unforeseen bureaucratic nightmares. Big Brother just doesn't know when to stop.

Those who would like to see our news media "more responsible" or "less biased," as they like to say, would be pleased at first. To have some of our leading liberal commentators and reporters before a panel of officials would delight some. This would no doubt turn up any number of well known people as being prejudiced. Once this was accomplished, in the name of fairness they would have to seek out and brand some as being biased towards conservative ideas.

Then they would have to branch out and include other members of the media. By this time they would want to set up a new department to handle this growing effort. This would start the mad scramble for more employees, more space, more money, more authority and so on and so on.

The next step would be to include everyone in the country. We would all have to be "examined" by Big Brother to have our prejudices brought to the attention of everyone else.

When this was the "law of the land," the next step could be to have all the findings of such panels a matter of public record. No one in digging up all those prejudices if everyone couldn't know about them. No doubt they would wind up having some typical government slogan or code to condense the findings. This code could then be printed on a metal or plastic plate, like the name, rank and serial number of those in the military service. This could be worn around the neck.

When anyone wanted to express themselves they might be required to hold up their prejudice plate for all to see. In that way, everyone that might be listening would be able to check to be sure what hang-ups the speaker had.

Of course, if this marking or prejudices went far enough it would have to include our glorious politicians. Now that might be a good idea! To be honest, I can't see our news media being near as dangerous to our country as some of our political leaders.

Come to think about it, why not have a trial program and use our flock in Washington as guinea pigs. I expect they would have more prejudices per square inch than our news media people will ever have.

It sure would be interesting reading if all the bias, prejudices, hate, bigotry and down right nastiness of our elected (and appointed) leaders were exposed to all. It would be a problem for some hat carrying around a plate large enough to list their major prejudices. In fact, not many of us would look good walking around carrying a list of our prejudices. We all live in glass houses so be careful with casting stones.

Pantsuits Win Favor

The question last week "Should teachers and/or students be allowed to wear pants suits in the classroom?" received modest response, but it was all unanimously in favor of the pants suits.

One reader stated: "If modesty is a factor, pants suits are surely better than mini's." A point well made.

The response indicated a definite hesitation on the part of teachers to express their views on the subject. Not one questionnaire was signed, which is unusual. And very few of the envelopes bore return addresses.

One letter expressed a teacher's wife's views but she asked specifically that her name not be used for fear of causing trouble for her husband. The letter is signed, however, and though we cannot print it without a name in the Letters to the Editor, we will use excerpts here: The writer is herself a former teacher and she explains the awkwardness in bending to reach the top of the chalkboard in fashionable length skirts. "Pantsuits are practical, attractive, feminine and comfortable. Their use would alleviate the aforementioned uncomfortable situations."

She also points out that nurses, secretaries and retailers wear them and "it is hoped that our local school administrators are sympathetic and secure enough to allow some elasticity in the dress code."

The reader makes one final, and very valid, point: "Pantsuits are high fashion and are appropriate for almost any situation, from a trip to the grocery store to a journey to the Presidential Inaugural Ball. Pantsuits are high fashion. Slacks and sweaters are not."

And she states that she believes that local teachers are mature enough and professional enough not to abuse the privilege of choice.

To that reader we say thanks for an excellent letter. School Superintendent E. E. Bricek suggested to City Council this week that land developers be required to donate cash for the construction of community schools, rather than the appropriation of property which the city must purchase at raw land rates.

The Tidewater Home Builders oppose this recommendation.

Boating Course Is a 'First'

Last Friday witnessed the beginning of a course of instruction in safe boat operations for students of Virginia Beach Junior High School.

The course is being conducted by police Sgt. F.R. Scarborough, who during the summer months is attached to the police marine unit working throughout the various bodies of water in and around the resort city.

Scarborough said the prime factor behind the course is to acquaint young people of the city with basic fundamentals in safe boat operation as a result of the increased number of young people taking to the waterways each year in boats of various types.

Classes are being conducted each Friday during the one hour period normally devoted to "study hall" by the students. Attendance in the course is strictly on a voluntary basis. However, the course is conducted on the same principle as any other subject offered in the school curriculum. In addition to the classroom instruction students have a certain amount of "homework" which must be completed in order to obtain the knowledge required to complete the course. At the end of six weeks of instruction students will be given an examination on the lesson material and those who receive a passing grade will be awarded a certificate.

Local Men Back Tues.

A number of Virginia Beach servicemen are scheduled to return to the United States Tuesday after a 6-month tour of duty in the Mediterranean aboard the destroyer tender USS Selmandosh.

They are: CPW J.T. McCutcheon, husband of the former Miss Doris V. Marden; Senior CPW Joseph C. Aldridge, husband of the former Miss Vivian A. Priest of MacDonald Road; CPW Charles H. Slayton, 3206 Chester St.; CPW Daniel H. Ringer, husband of the former Miss June Zeger of Lamplight Lane; PO3/C Larry E. Dowdy, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.E. Dowdy, 809 S. Sunland Drive; and PO 1/C Daniel L. Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel L. Graham and husband of Mrs. Wanda L. Graham, all of 1525 Hackensack Road.

Fliers Crash in Ocean

Navy officials say two fliers attached to Fighter Squadron 101 at Oceana Naval Air Station perished Tuesday afternoon during an exercise some 35 miles east of the Virginia Capes.

The men were identified as Lt. (j.g.) John D. O'Connor, 24, pilot, and Lt. (j.g.) Thomas F. Hanagan, 23, radar intercept officer.

Authorities said the men's Phantom II jet plunged into the Atlantic Ocean moments after being launched from the aircraft carrier USS Forrestal while they were engaged in carrier qualification exercises.

Officials said Hanagan's body was recovered shortly after the accident, however a search was still underway Wednesday morning for O'Connor's body. Hanagan is survived by his wife Carole, who resides in the 1400 block of Reynard Crescent. O'Connor's wife Linda resides in the 3600 block of Virginia Beach Blvd.

A Navy board of inquiry is conducting an investigation to determine the cause of the crash.

Dropouts Lowest

A report on Virginia High School Dropouts recently released by the State Department of Education states that the Virginia Beach City Schools had the lowest percentage of dropouts of area school divisions for the 1969-1970 school year. The overall state percentage of dropouts out of 389,142 students in grades eight through twelve was 4.6 percent. The statewide city dropout rate was 5.2 percent and the statewide county dropout rate was 4.2 percent.

Virginia Beach had a 1969-1970 dropout rate of 3.9 percent in grades eight through twelve.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

Last Friday marked the completion of course of specialized training for 12 Virginia Beach police officers at the State Police Headquarters in Richmond. The men graduated from the "Instructors Training Course" sponsored by the Virginia Law Enforcement Officers' Training Standards Commission, qualifying them as instructors in the training of new police officers required to attend in-service training programs. Those who completed the course include Lt.'s B.L. Rogers and C.R. West; Sgt.'s F.R. Scarborough, E.F. Buzzy, D.G. McCloud, M. E. Beane, K.A. Belangia, C.E. Carlson, Sr., E.L. Jackson and R.L. Robbins; and Juvenile Division Det.'s J.E. Haslinger and L.A. Ives.

Our first "tale of woe" of the current hunting seasons comes to us from Capt. W.J. Moore, Jr., 2nd Police Precinct C.O. Capt. Moore tells us last Saturday's opening day of duck hunting in the Back Bay region is one that he will long remember. Moore says that despite minor difficulties with his "blind," continuing trouble with his outboard boat (which incidentally he had just retrieved after its being stolen a few days before the opening day of the season), and having to wade through marshes deeper than his hunting boots resulting in a complete soaking of his legs and feet, that he still managed to "bag his limit" for the day.

Four more names were added to the duty roster of the Virginia Beach police department this week, Jimmie L. Cox is performing regular duty following his assignment to the 3rd Police Precinct on completion of training in the Tidewater Police Academy at Old Dominion University. Erasmo Riojas, William A. Nielson and Steven E. Thompson have assumed duties of police dispatchers. Thompson is working in the Communications Center at police headquarters, Nielson has been assigned to the 1st Police Precinct, while Riojas is attached to the 2nd Police Precinct. Nielson becomes the first dispatcher to be assigned to the 1st Police Precinct.

Mrs. Ginger Lee, "Girl Friday" in the city's Fire Prevention Bureau, tells us her efforts to "kick the habit" have turned into a war of endurance. Ginger tells us she hasn't smoked a cigarette in nearly two weeks and is so convinced she will never again that she has given away all her lighters and favorite ashtrays. She says the campaign is not an easy one, however, in that she thinks her nerves are "about shot", she has lost count of the packs of gum she has chewed, and that she has consumed untold tons of food (describing her increased appetite as causing her to "eat everything in the house which doesn't eat me"). The only regret she has voiced thus far is that she believes she will have to turn to diet pills to lose weight after her current battle with the "nicotine fit".

"Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate for a moment to prefer the latter. But I should mean that every man should receive those papers and be capable of reading them." —Thomas Jefferson.

Institute Is 'Greatest'

Lt. Alfred E. Smith, following his graduation from the Southern Police Institute last Friday night, praised the institute by saying, "For a supervisory officer it's the greatest course ever offered in this country for advanced police training."

Lt. Smith, attached to the Virginia Beach 3rd Police Precinct, completed 330 hours of classroom instruction during the Institute's 12-week term on subjects such as police administration, police personnel management, constitutional law, evidence and criminal procedure and psychology for law enforcement personnel.

When asked what phase of training attracted most of his attention, Smith replied, "I think constitutional law and pro-

Arrest May Set Record

Members of the Virginia Beach Police Narcotics Squad arrested a man last Friday night for a violation of drug abuse laws which could possibly establish a record in the history of State drug related arrests.

Officials say they charged 70-year-old Roosevelt Womack with possession of marijuana with the intent to sell, which under present law constitutes a felony.

According to investigators Womack was arrested shortly after midnight when approximately two pounds of marijuana was discovered in his home in the 1400 block of Virginia Beach Blvd.

Dates of court proceedings on the charges are pending at the present time.

bably police personnel management were the two courses which will be of tremendous benefit to administrative officers."

In discussing objectives of the Institute Smith said he felt "the main thing they wanted us to recognize was that police work has changed and many of the old ideas are outdated." When reflecting over what the Institute meant to him Smith said of being able to attend the school "it's an opportunity the police department gave me that very few policemen ever get, and I hope that more officers will have this chance in the future."

This marked the 44th class to graduate from the Southern Police Institute conducted by the University of Louisville, at Louisville, Ky.

In the Institute's 20 years of operation 734 police departments from 46 states, the U.S. Army, the U.S. State Department and 28 foreign countries have trained law enforcement officers in its programs.

Graduates of the S.P.I. include 168 chiefs of police and 88 assistant chiefs.

Wayne Turner is a member of the Sales Department of Vepco Gas at Virginia Beach. His work is advisory in nature, since he consults with users on the most efficient employment of gas.

That is a different kind of selling than is commonly understood by that word. It is selling-through-service.

Service is a characteristic of Wayne's. We found that Wayne is a regular donor to the Red Cross blood bank.

That is truly giving of one's self.

It is an attitude that we at Vepco Gas try to encourage, for giving is its own reward.

THE WOMEN

VIRGINIA BEACH SUN

Thursday, November 19, 1970

The Dye tripletts don't seem to be quite as happy about all the fuss as their parents are. At least they all have healthy lungs.

2 of trio go home with Mom

Although tripletts had been anticipated since August, one thing the Jack Dyes hadn't expected was to take two of them home from the hospital along with their mother Sunday.

Deborah and Jack Dye had thought that since the babies were sure to be premature, especially since Deborah is so petite herself (normally 115 pounds, five feet five inches), they would be in the hospital for awhile. However, the babies weighed a total of 16 pounds 1/4 ounce, and the identical twin boys, John Daniel and Thomas Wells, went home with their mother just five days after their birth on Nov. 10. Their sister, Laura Elizabeth, the lightest of the trio, will remain in an Isolette until she reaches five pounds.

"We thought we'd have at least a month," said Jack. "We thought we'd have plenty of time to go shopping."

Deborah had been confined to her house and mostly to bed since X-rays on Aug. 7 showed three babies.

"We have some presents from friends," said Deborah. "We really aren't organized, though. My mother provided one layette. That's all we have."

She added that Jack had taken over the housework in August and cooked all the dinners from then on.

He more or less got even with her when he took a picture of her shortly before her trip to the hospital. "He had to snap it quickly because I could hardly stand up more than 45 seconds at a time," she commented of the "rotund" photo.

"We were really thrilled that they were all healthy and normal," said Jack.

"And we're happy they're mixed, boys and a girl," added Deborah.

The couple, who live on Ashley Drive, will celebrate their second wedding anniversary on Jan. 2. Jack, a graduate of the University of New Hampshire and a former Army captain who served in Vietnam, is a representative for Union Camp container division. Deborah, a Middlebury College (Vt.) graduate, is a former airline stewardess.

They said that grandparents and great-grandparents "all cried they were so happy" about the birth of the tripletts.

Jack says their English golden retriever knew something was going on. While Deborah was still in the hospital, he was going around the house tearing up the rug.

They have a live-in baby nurse temporarily. "We had great thoughts of doing it by ourselves," said Deborah. "Now with them coming home so soon we'll have a nurse for several weeks. Then my mother-in-law is coming. Her mother is unable to come because of a broken shoulder."

They were surprised at the number of offers that have come their way. Stork Disper Service is letting them have a supply (See 'Tripletts' p. 8)

Designer says midis are fad

When Lillie Switzenbaum changed careers in midstream, she had to learn how to sew.

Lillie, who as a fashion designer goes by the name of "Lillie Terese", started out as a fashion illustrator.

"I really wasn't that great," said the striking dark-haired designer of her illustrating talents. "I got tired of it and was asked to model for the design department."

"I fell in love with it". Designing, not modeling, that is. She changed her major at the Maryland Institute of Art and began selling her designs while still a student.

"My designing teacher told me I was a natural. She taught me sewing too. Most of the class had sewed all their lives."

Until the birth of a daughter 18 months ago, Lillie designed and sold to a boutique in Baltimore and one in Norfolk. She said she used to work from eight in the morning until nine at night and finish one outfit a day. "It's different with the baby."

Since her return to Virginia Beach in May (her parents have a summer home at 310 34th Street), she has been designing for individuals and hopes to do more of this as she becomes established in the area. She is also designing children's wear for a manufacturer.

"I love Virginia Beach," said Lillie. "I think it's the greatest place. I've lived here every summer since I was a little girl." She's a Suffolk native, and was named best-dressed in high school.

Lillie prefers simple designs and good quality material.

Dance kicks off activities

The Cape Beach and Cabana Club combined with the Bay Harbour Club, began its new year on Nov. 1 and is fast approaching the cut-off figure of 500 members.

The new officers for the next 12 months are: Algy W. Cohen, president; Bill (Buddy) Kane, vice president; Edward Brogan, secretary; Mason Gam-mage, treasurer. Board Members: Bernard Inge, Langley Land, Anthony Spicuzza, Richard Davis, John B. James, C. T. S. Keep, Walter J. Baldwin, Frederick Napolitano and Phil Hamovit.

Committees have been appointed covering Teen Age activities, swimming, tennis, house, entertainment, membership, beach and cabana, special events and finance.

The club will be open daily from 11 a.m. with the exception of Mondays, when the club will be closed.

Well, will it be next week or next month?

P.A. turkeys date back

How would you like to face the task of dressing some 1,700 turkeys between now and Christmas?

That's what's in store for a special at Carey's Poultry Farm on Indian River Road which features Princess Anne turkeys. Although R. L. Carey says he "doesn't know that Princess Anne turkeys are superior to others", there are some differences. For one thing, Princess Anne turkeys are sold fresh and are never frozen. That's why special "last minute" dressing crews are necessary.

"Years ago Princess Anne turkeys built up a reputation because they were fed a lot of corn and didn't range around much so they stayed tender," said Carey, who has owned the farm for 15 years. He doesn't know how far back the farm dates, but he said headstones in the family cemetery date back a hundred years. He added that an old farmhouse on the property is 80-90 years old.

His own turkey, incidentally, do not range around much either. They are confined to turkey houses all of their lives and do not run in outside pens.

Carey said he started with just 400 turkeys per year and has increased the number to 1,700. "We could go for more, but we just haven't got time to fool with them. We have just a few days to do everything."

"It's harder to sell fresh because people order them by weight. If someone orders a 13 pound turkey, then we have to give them a 13 pound turkey. If we cut the feed to hold the weight, then the breast meat quality is not as good."

In addition to turkeys, Carey has some 10,600 chickens and 600 hogs on his farm.

Most of the turkeys are special orders, and, as in the past, Princess Anne turkeys are popular as business Christmas presents.

The question, of course, is whether Carey, or any turkey farmer, can face a turkey dinner on Thanksgiving after feeding, nursing and cleaning up after them for five or six months, then killing and dressing them.

Next time we'll try a green one

A wig is an experience.

First of all, my husband suggested that I get one. So after several months of indecision, I decided to go ahead. I took the nine-year-old along for moral support.

That was my first mistake. She liked every one I tried on and was so help whatever.

Next she wanted me to buy a head form which came complete with red lips, big blue eyes and long black eye lashes. I told her I wasn't about to share a bedroom with the wig form and my husband both. Besides, I couldn't stand to have the thing on the dresser staring at me while I was dressing, that superior smirk on her face.

Anyway, my husband's immediate reaction was that I could have saved myself some money and not gotten it. His primary objection, it seems, is that it's the same color as my hair. He said if I was going to get a wig, I should have gotten blond or red. Then he added that the only reason women wear wigs is because they haven't had time to wash their hair the night before.

The first day I got nerve enough to put it on, I had the three kids as an audience. All three wanted to try it on too. I had the feeling all day that everybody knew I had a wig on. Yet, half the time I can't tell if other women are wearing them. I have the feeling that mine doesn't look natural even though my younger daughter didn't even know I was wearing it one day. Nor did my husband when he got home.

The real trouble has been the six-year-old, though. Every time I take him with me to a store he tells everybody "my Mommy is wearing a wig." Small wonder I feel conspicuous.

At least the kids like it.

Working on spice bags for the Dec. 2 Christmas in the Country, to be held at Seabreeze Farm, are left to right, Mrs. E. Gilbert Keene, Mrs. J.L. Craig, Mrs. E.E. Cox, and Mrs. William F. Jones. Proceeds will be used for two teaching and one nursing scholarship.

Christmas in Country is Dec. 2

The Cape Henry Woman's Club decided Thursday to help two needy families at Thanksgiving with food and clothing.

A contribution was sent to the Williamsburg Jaycee's project for Eastern State Hospital and a contribution was made to Keoughman Veteran's Hospital, for gifts to the patients.

Mrs. Cecil H. Reed, research and conservation chairman for the Lotus Gardens, showed pictures of the lotus as it is growing in Expo '70, Japan. The seeds were taken from the Lotus Gardens in Tabernacle Creek, Virginia Beach, and cultivated and crossed with the Japanese Lotus. An article appeared in a Japanese newspaper about the Lotus, grown in Virginia Beach, which is on display at Expo '70.

The annual Christmas in the Country will be on Dec. 2, at the home of Cmd. and Mrs. William F. Harris, (U.S.N. Ret.) 1476 Fire Hill Trail. This home was formerly Seabreeze Farm at the end of Little Neck Road belonging to the Hill sisters.

In addition to the decorated house, featured will be the club's annual Country Store and Mrs. Santa's Kitchen. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

Mrs. F. H. Strieby, Conservation and Garden Chairman, presented the program, a film on Holiday Decorations.

Table decorations for the meeting, were done by Mrs. J. L. Craig, Jr. and Mrs. W. A. Ellenhausen. Hostesses were Mrs. K. L. Jard and Mrs. Charles Traub, III.

Miss Biley engaged

Miss Maggi Biley of Virginia Beach is engaged to Roderick Lance Brant.

Miss Biley is the daughter of Mrs. Leo E. Biley of 46th Street and the late Mr. Biley.

Mr. Brant is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Brant of Ridgefield, Conn.

Miss Biley is a graduate of Country Day School and a 1970 graduate of Mary Washington College.

A graduate of Hobart College in Geneva, N.Y., Mr. Brant is serving in the U.S. Army.

A spring wedding is planned.

Engagement announced

Camellias to be shown

Mr. and Mrs. Aycock Brown of Manteo, N.C. announce the engagement of their daughter Esther Gale Brown to Stephen Foster Hicks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayborne Hicks of Pinehurst Point.

Miss Brown is a graduate of Monticello High School and of East Carolina University. She is a member of the faculty at Butt's Road Elementary School in Chesapeake.

Mr. Hicks attended Frederick Military Academy and is a graduate of Princess Anne High School. He attended Old Dominion University. He is presently self employed.

The couple plan a winter wedding at Saint Andrews By-the-Sea Episcopal Church in Nags Head, near the bride's home.

Lynnhaven Colony

Gifts for Operation Reindeer were collected at the November meeting of the Lynnhaven Colony Garden Club and are to be sent to mental patients in Williamsburg. Christmas baskets for needy families were discussed.

The program was about making and using various types of candles. Mrs. Ann Murrell was hostess with Mrs. Sybil Williams as co-hostess.

The Virginia Camellia Society will present a display of camellia blooms in the Norfolk Botanical Gardens Auditorium on Saturday, Nov. 21 and Sunday, Nov. 22. This display will be open both days from 2 to 5 p.m., at no charge to the general public.

It is intended to serve principally as an educational exhibit, illustrating the progress that is being made toward developing a second camellia blooming season for this area.

Such an exhibit would not be possible were it not for the recently developed practice of bringing camellias into early bloom by treating buds with gibberellic acid. In recent years "gibbering" has become a popular practice wherever camellias are grown and is adding a new dimension to camellia culture.

All growers, whether or not they practice gibbering, are invited and urged to enter blooms between 10 a.m. and noon, Nov. 21. Separate awards will be made for blooms grown outside and those grown in greenhouses.

Of all the traveling done in the nation's urban areas of more than 50,000 population, 99 per cent of all trips are by highway vehicle.

December wedding planned

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Pate of Edinburg Drive announce the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Ophelia Pate, to Lt. Michael McCauley.

Lt. McCauley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman McCauley of Palos Verdes Estates, Calif.

A graduate of Princess Anne High School, Miss Pate graduated from Old Dominion University where she was a member of Chi Omega women's fraternity. She is presently employed at Sagerberry Psychiatric Hospital in Hampton, Va.

Lt. McCauley is a graduate of the University of Redlands, Calif., and received an M.A. degree in experimental psychology from the University of Hawaii, Honolulu. He is presently an experimental psychologist stationed at the Naval Aerospace Medical Institute, Pensacola, Fla.

The wedding is planned for 2 p.m. Dec. 30 at First Presbyterian Church with the Rev. John S. Lyles officiating. A reception will follow at the Officer's Club at NOB, Norfolk.

Linkhorn Park

The Linkhorn Park Garden Club will hold its annual Christmas Silver Tea at the home of Judge and Mrs. George W. Vukos, Pinewood Road, on Friday Dec. 4, from 3-5 p.m. Members will decorate each room in the home and traditionally, past presidents, and Mrs. J. James Davis, current president, will take turns pouring. Mrs. Vukos is membership chairman.

At the November meeting held at the Princess Anne Chapter Club, Mrs. Thomas Rose, first vice-president, introduced Mrs. Emerson Plank, historian, who explained the arrangements, assigned and made by various members, each creation depicting verses and symbols of the Christmas season, taken from the Bible, and stressing the birth of the holy Christ child.

The club held a booth at the Pembroke Mall Bazaar, and is now selling chances on a hand-crocheted afghan—a dollar a chance—which will go toward the $300 to be raised by the club in order to enter the "hands" project.

Chesapeake Colony

The Chesapeake Colony Garden Club at its November meeting at the home of Mrs. Blanche Addison formed a committee to aid in Visual Pollution Control. In addition groups were organized to assist in special education therapy on Monday mornings at King's Grant School.

Mrs. Thomas Fletcher gave a program on "Candles for All Occasions."

Winning blue ribbons for arrangements were Mrs. Ruth Wilson, Mrs. Mary Socia and Mrs. Addison for horticulture, Mrs. Carl Ritchie, Mrs. Robert Schaller, Mrs. William Graham and Mrs. William Love.

A long time ago, when ladies couldn't be as frank as we can today, Lydia Pinkham recognized the problem and set about finding a remedy. She knew it was not natural for women to have to suffer with what was obviously a natural process.

So she turned to nature for a remedy. She developed a marvelous compound of medicinal roots and herbs that turned the trick for the women she knew. Because it is a natural answer to your natural problems, it can turn the trick for you, too.

Prevent plant damage with care before winter

(Editor's note: This is one of a series on home horticulture by W. P. Judkins, extension horticulturist, Virginia Tech.)

Your landscape shrubs need special treatment to prepare them for winter. You can improve their hardiness if you give them some loving care before the cold weather arrives.

The hardiness of plants is an ability to withstand cold. In the case of your shrubs, it relates to the minimum temperatures which occur during the winter months.

The best way to control damage is to select shrubs which are hardy in the climate zone where you live. You can also adjust your culture and fertilizer program to increase their ability to survive the cold weather.

The death of buds, twigs and branches by freezing is one type of winter injury. This is the result of ice formation in the cells of the plant which destroys the protoplasm or living part of the cell.

Freeze damage is not a serious problem with most ornamental shrubs. It occurs most commonly when plants are exposed to a sudden drop in temperature.

Damage by freezing may be reduced by selecting hardy species. Also, your shrubs should not be watered or fertilized heavily in late summer. This would cause them to continue to grow actively into the fall and early winter.

Growth should slow down in late summer so the protoplasm in the cells will become more concentrated. In this condition the plant will tolerate a lower temperature before freezing will occur.

The browning or burning of the foliage of evergreen shrubs during February and March is another important type of winter injury. This is caused by desiccation or drying of the leaves. You should act now to prevent such damage.

Water the soil around your shrubs thoroughly this fall before the ground freezes. If dry weather occurs during the winter, apply more water whenever the soil is not frozen.

Evergreen plants lose water from the leaves whenever the temperature is above 40 degrees. The greatest losses occur during the warm windy weather. Adequate moisture must be present in the soil to replace that which is lost by the leaves.

Apply a two-inch organic mulch of sawdust, wood chips, pine needles or peat moss around your shrubs. This will conserve moisture and help prevent the soil from freezing. Thus, more water will be available for your plants and the possibility of winter burn will be reduced.

Broadleaf evergreen shrubs of questionable hardiness may need extra protection during the winter. They may be enclosed in burlap, or you may erect a plastic film screen around them.

An anti-wilt spray may be applied to reduce water loss from broadleaf evergreens.

This treatment is especially recommended for new plantings. The anti-wilt spray should be as effective as the unsightly burlap or film screens. This spray should be applied in late November when the temperature is above 50 degrees, and repeated in midwinter.

The heaving of young plants out of the ground by alternate freezing and thawing of the soil may cause serious losses in small, recently planted shrubs. The roots are broken and the soil becomes quite loose. Water absorption is reduced and the plants may die.

The best way to prevent loss by heaving is to apply mulch around your shrubs. Also, evergreen boughs or corn stalks may be used over the plants to reduce or prevent freezing of the soil.

Now their main problem is to tell the boys apart. However, the General Hospital of Virginia Beach gave them a supply of extra ankle tags when they left.

Mountain is program for Juniors

Many Bayside Junior Woman's Club members were surprised to find out that Mt. Trashmore is going to become an amphitheater.

R. E. Dorner told members at their November meeting that there will also be a soap box derby race track at the "mountain." Another hill of trash had to be built to aid the little cars in stopping.

The club's Fourth Annual General Meeting, for the benefit of various club charities, was held this month. The Veterans Hospital received the profits from the bake sale at the game party last year for their Christmas party.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. R. L. Dutton, Mrs. W. H. Garner, Mrs. G. F. Rudy and Mrs. J. J. Ryan. The December meeting will be a special Christmas party for members and friends.

Ginger, red pepper and sesame seeds spice Hawaiian specialties such as water chestnuts and pineapple in this delicious poultry dressing.

Stuffing can be different

A savory stuffing "makes" the holiday bird. Dickens said it best in his mouth-watering description of the Cratchit family's holiday goose, golden-brown and plump with a sage and onion stuffing: "When the long-expected gush of stuffing issued forth, one murmur of delight arose all round the board. 'Bob said he didn't believe there was ever such a goose cooked.'"

Sage was and still is the herb best associated with stuffings. But now we also have convenient poultry seasoning which weds sage with a skillful medley of such as marjoram, white pepper, thyme, savory and perhaps allspice and nutmeg. Instant minced and chopped onion, mixed vegetable flakes, sweet pepper and celery flakes and seasoned bread crumbs are other products that make stuffings a little easier today.

Stuffings, and dressings however, make a big subject—as varied as the imagination of the cooks in many different lands. The Hawaiian Dressing for Turkey below introduces such surprising flavors as ginger, red pepper and sesame seed, along with water chestnuts, pineapple and soy sauce. The nutlike flavor and crunchy texture of sesame, incidentally, makes a fine addition to any stuffing.

The English are fond of adding sausage to their stuffings, as seen in the recipe below. This is another trick you can use with any of your favorite stuffings. But remember that the sausage adds seasoning of its own and be prepared to adjust the rest of your spicing accordingly.

This holiday season would be a good time to try these stuffing ideas from the test kitchen of the American Spice Trade Association.

'Playmates' opens tomorrow at Dome

The Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club will present the 20th annual follies entitled "Beach Playmates" on Nov. 20 and 21 at the Virginia Beach Civic Center.

Friday night the show will be theater style beginning at 8 p.m. Saturday night will be a cabaret style performance with dancing before and after the show. Doors open at 9 p.m. on Saturday and reservations are necessary.

The show is staged and directed this year by Christopher Brown with Jerome Cargill Productions of New York. Brown has appeared in movies such as "Mary Poppins," "Sing in the Rain," "Call Me Madam," and "Band Wagon." He has also worked on Broadway, in television, and performed in night clubs from the Club Lido in Paris to the Dunes in Las Vegas.

Talent for the follies has been drafted from all sources. There will be vocal renditions by Andy McCullough, Oscar Northern, Kay Owens and Pam and Sandra Stanley; dance solos by Dona McCloud, Brenda Viar and William Martin of the Virginia Beach Ballet Society, to mention only a few talented people who have offered their services to make this year the best presentation ever.

The proceeds from this show are dispersed to various charities throughout the Tidewater area. In past years donations have been given to Camp Clivian, The Cardio Vascular Center, scholarships and other worthy causes. This year the profits will assure the continuation of a kindergarten class for retarded children at Wyckoff Presbyterian Church which was started this year by the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club.

Final plans for the Holiday House and Christmas Bazaar which will be held at the home of the B.R. Middletons, 1612 Wakefield Drive, Thoroughgood, on Dec. 5th and 6th, were completed.

HAWAIIAN DRESSING FOR TURKEY

- 1/2 cup instant minced onion
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine, divided
- 1 can (5 oz.) water chestnuts, drained and finely chopped
- 3 Tbsp. soy sauce
- 3 Tbsp. sesame seed, divided
- 2 t. ground ginger
- 1/8 t. ground red pepper
- 12 cups dried bread cubes
- 1-1/2 cups hot chicken of turkey broth
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 can (6 to 8 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) pineapple slices

Combine onion with water; let stand 10 minutes to rehydrate. In a medium skillet heat 1/4 cup of the butter.

Add rehydrated onion and chestnuts; saute 5 minutes. Stir in soy sauce, 2 tablespoons of the sesame seeds, ginger and red pepper; set aside. In a large bowl combine bread cubes, broth, eggs and mushrooms. Stir in sauteed onion mixture; mix well. Turn into a buttered 12 x 7 x 1-3/4-inch baking dish. Melt remaining 1/4 cup butter. Pour over dressing. Sprinkle with remaining 1 tablespoon sesame seed. Cover and bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 F.) 45 minutes. Remove cover and bake 15 minutes longer or until browned on top. If desired, scoop dressing onto pineapple rings and serve with turkey. Sufficient stuffing for a 12 pound turkey.

ENGLISH POTATO AND SAUSAGE STUFFING

- 1/4 cup onion flakes
- 3 Tbsp. water
- 5 cups cubed potatoes
- 1/2 lb. pork sausage links, sliced
- 1/2 lb. sliced fresh mushrooms
- 2 Tbsp. butter or margarine
- 1 Tbsp. parsley flakes
- 1/2 t. sage leaves, crumbled
- 1/2 t. salt
- 1/16 t. ground black pepper

Combine onion flakes with water; let stand 10 minutes to rehydrate. Meanwhile, cook potatoes in boiling water to cover for 5 minutes. Drain potatoes, reserving 1/4 cup potato water; set aside. In a large skillet saute sausage about 5 minutes. Remove sausage leaving fat in skillet (about 3 tablespoons). Add rehydrated onion and mushrooms; saute 5 minutes. Add butter, potatoes, sausage and seasonings. Cook, stirring constantly for 5 minutes. Turn mixture into a 2-quart casserole. Add reserved potato water to skillet; bring to boiling; stir to release particles in bottom of skillet. Pour over stuffing. Cover and bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 F.) 20 to 30 minutes. Approximately 6 cups.

Thoroughgood

The November meeting of the Thoroughgood Garden Club was held at the home of Mrs. G.P. Hand on Country Circle. Miss Kay Dinmore, a member of the High School Garden Club, gave a report on Nature Camp. Miss Dinmore spent two weeks at the camp this past summer and was sponsored by the Thoroughgood Garden Club.

Fremont Is Cited

U.S. Air Force Lieutenant Colonel John C. Fremont, son of Mrs. Jesusa G. Fremont, Mediterranean Avenue, has received his second award of the Distinguished Flying Cross for extraordinary achievement in Vietnam.

Captain Fremont distinguished himself as a pilot. Despite the constant threat of attack by enemy ground fire and without ground radar to provide guidance, he successfully air dropped supplies to allied forces at A Shau Valley.

The colonel was also presented his second award of the U.S. Air Force Commendation Medal for meritorious service. He was honored in Norfolk, where he now serves as a joint plane officer for Headquarters, Atlantic Command.

Colonel Fremont was commissioned through the aviation cadet program and has served in the Republic of Korea.

A graduate of Carmel (Calif.) High School, he attended the University of California and received his B.A. degree from the University of Texas.

Navy Petty Officer Third Class Robert L. Reese, son of J.A. Reese of Bob Lane, Oceana, is serving aboard the guided missile frigate USS Mahan which returned to San Diego after an extended two year deployment to the Western Pacific.

Airman Jeffrey L. Burns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Burns, 3313 MacDonal Road, has completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. He has been assigned to Lowry AFB, Colo., for training in the aircraft systems field. Airman Burns is a 1970 graduate of Kempsville High School.

The Erosion Commission chairman said land values along the beach were extremely low before the commission began replenishment operations. By contrast, Church pointed to the high construction rates along the beach in the last year period.

"I'm not so sure you can operate cheaper than the city could," Ervin said.

Teacher of Year Picked

Mrs. Naoma T. Wilson, a teacher of disabled readers at the Virginia Beach Center for Effective Learning, has been selected as the Virginia Beach Schools' Teacher of the Year.

Mrs. Wilson joined the Virginia Beach School System in 1969 after having taught in Mineral County, West Virginia; Allegheny County, Virginia; Montgomery County, Virginia; and Nansemond County, Virginia.

She holds a B.A. degree from Shepherd College, Shepherdstown, W. Va. and has done graduate work at West Virginia University, University of Virginia and the College of William and Mary.

Mrs. Wilson was selected from a group of nine candidates who were presented by Volunteer Firemen by saying, "It's a real honor to be here tonight because you're the ones who are protecting my house."

Scott also said that is his opinion "for the first time in 50 years Virginia Beach is close to becoming a full time partner in a water system." He added, however, that many questions need to be answered and issues resolved before this can become a reality.

Commissioner of Revenue Ivan Mapp, who also serves as president of the Virginia Beach Fire Council, acted as installing officer.

Al Bryant, outgoing president, thanked everyone for the cooperation he has received during his term of office and took the occasion to announce that he will assume the status of a "retired member" with the department.

As the meeting closed men of the Kempsville Department offered their thanks to members of the Davis Corner Volunteer Fire Department who remained on alert throughout the evening to respond to emergency calls in the area.

Progress Marks 1st Year

The Virginia Beach School's planetarium, located at Plaza Junior High School, is completing one year of operation.

During the first ten months of operation, the planetarium presented programs to 20,356 persons. The average attendance has been 2,036 per month. December drew large audiences for the Christmas program, and the month of February was a record month when the eclipse program was being shown.

Free public programs are offered twice each week. One program is presented each Sunday afternoon from 3:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m., and another program is presented on Tuesday evening of each week from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. The program is changed monthly to include current celestial events and seasonal changes.

National publicity has been given the Virginia Beach planetarium through the distribution of a planetarium brochure, planetarium guide, and the use of photographs of the planetarium in national advertising.

The Virginia Beach planetarium is in its infancy—one year old. During the first year, services to the community and to the schools have been established and projects have been originated that will serve as a foundation for the second year. A basic curriculum has been established for the school system.

Marine Pfc. James R. Murgatroyd, son of Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. K.R. Murgatroyd of 5028 School Road, was graduated in the top ten percent of his class from the Aircrew Survival Equipment School at the Naval Air Technical Training Center.

Motorists Reminded Of Change

Motorists of Virginia Beach are being reminded of a recent change in the Code of Virginia affecting the operation of motor vehicles on highways of the Old Dominion which takes on special significance during winter months with the increased number of nighttime driving hours.

The new law applies to the procedure which has been accepted in the past of making use only of parking lights, or similar lights, on motor vehicles being driven during the hours of dusk and/or dawn. Under an amendment to the State Code Section 46.1-268 the law requires the display of lighted head lamps on all vehicles being operated on highways within the State during the period of time from a half hour after sunset to a half hour before sunrise and "at any other time when, due to insufficient light or unfavorable atmospheric conditions, persons, or vehicles on the highway are not clearly discernible at a distance of 500 feet."

Creamer Wins Scholarship

Robert S. Creamer Jr. of Virginia Beach is one of four winners of the Woods Leadership Scholarship at the University of the South in Sewanee, Tenn. He is one of two in the school of theology. The other two are in the college of arts and sciences.

Creamer, a senior in the school of theology, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Creamer. He earned his B.A. in history from Arizona State University and worked as a buyer and sales manager before entering the seminary.

The scholarships are awarded on the basis of academic competence and exceptional qualities of leadership.

Pack 378 Inducts Boys

Cub Pack 378 recently held its October pack meeting at the Virginia Beach United Methodist Church. One of the highlights of the evening was a Halloween party. There were games, costume prizes and refreshments.

After the Grand Parade, the following boys were inducted into the pack and presented with their Bobcat pins by John Wise, Assistant Cubmaster. They were Robert Settles, Clayton Lee Wheaton, Billy Moseley Jr., Danny Felix, Andrew Neubert, Bobby Nevill, Charles Gregory, Michael Arwood, Michael Farley, Philip East, Troy Moseley, Johnny Ray Jarrell, Mark Settles, Robert Wheaton and Franklin Clark.

Also welcomed were the following boys transferring into our pack: Steven and Jack Phelps, Fred Pratt, Frank Deleda, Keith Huxoll, Ted Cochran and Eddie DeRoche.

CATS, by Beth Brown, Hewitt House, Old Tappan, New Jersey, 1970, $6.95.

CATS is a delightful combination of practical information and fascinating photographs which will surely interest the cat lover. In a concise manner Beth Brown provides excellent guidance in all aspects, routing and emergency, of caring for cats throughout their lives. She discusses the various breeds and the questions involved in selecting a cat as well as the procedures for settling a cat in your home, naming, feeding, training, housebreaking, grooming, mating, and traveling with your cat. In the chapter on toys you will learn that cats are intrigued by such things as shadows and paper bags as well as simple toys you can make. Miss Brown gives advice on choosing a veterinarian and knowing the laws concerning cats. The chapter on illness and first aid is especially helpful, in that it contains a list of essential medical items to have on hand, describes routine checks which the cat owner should make on his pet as well as symptoms of illness, and tells how to cope with each situation. The format of the book, with its many subject headings, makes it easy to locate any information needed at a moment's notice.

Beth Brown's anecdotes concerning some of her experiences in the feline world are quite entertaining, and the brief discussion of cats in history adds another interesting touch. Joseph Alperin's photographs feature adorable kittens that could melt even a dog lover's heart!

eventually. An additional campground would be a mortal blow to this section. Our beaches already overflow with picnickers and rowdy parties, picking the se oates (sic), trampling the dunes and littering the beach with trash.

Then the subject of ecology brought up when opposition forces sought outside help. According to Mrs. Sills in the "Beacon", "People have struggled all their lives to achieve this (life style). But we have to fight on a regional or state basis if we are going to get support."

Said the School Board report, "The opposition has attempted to cast the School Board in the role of violating nature, causing the inundation of the islands and endangering unique aspects of the natural world. Their purpose was accomplished when well-meaning and respectable, but misinformed individuals and organization flocked to their support."

"The School Board had secured the services of ecological authorities in the areas of bird life, flora and fauna, soil and sand dunes, in order to obtain a true picture of how the proposed school would effect the ecology. This action was taken with full knowledge that all professional ecologists are predisposed to the preservation of all areas in their natural state. Because of threats of legal suits made by the opposition, we do not feel it proper to make the consultants' names available at this time."

"The opposition has stated in the Press and in much private correspondence that construction of the school will destroy valuable areas—bird nesting and feeding—and disrupt the migratory habits of many species and endangering, thereby, some species. They have further indicated that unique flora and fauna will be destroyed and that modification of the site will obliterate a dune, the type of which is to be found only within the 15-acre tract. Further, they contend, dune breaching will expose the island to inundation."

One part of the orthologist report reads: "The tract is not largely desolate or undisturbed. The nearby presence of: (1) roads on three sides, (2) a residential area, and (3) Fort Story certainly are disturbing factors to the birdlife on this site. Use of the land by unrestricted groups is also likely to be influential. During a transect of the plot, I counted over 200 beverage containers left to litter the area by such persons. In addition, there was much evidence of target practice with rifles and shotguns. I doubt the total effect of such activity would be beneficial to the birds of the area."

"It is my opinion that construction of a school at the proposed site will have little immediate effect upon the local bird populations and certainly will not endanger any rare species."

Mouffe went on to say that although formal reports from the flora and fauna consultants have not been received, they have indicated that there is no evidence of unique or rare flora or fauna on the 15-acre tract.

A preliminary study by a local ecologist recognized as knowledgeable of Seashore State Park makes no claim that flora and fauna are to be found in the 15 leased acres that are not to be found in other areas of the park."

Accordingly, preliminary reports from three consultants on the sand dunes who have worked with dunes all along the East Coast indicate that the sand dunes on the site are not unique and do not support unique ecological communities.

Mouffe then pointed out that the opposition showed no concern for the ecology of the area along Shore Drive, some 100 acres, which was affected by the widening of the Drive to four lanes. This too was a part of Seashore State Park.

Another argument of the opposition, encroachment on the public domain, was answered by a series of slides which showed 86th, 87, and 88th Street with fences built on the public easement and a number of no parking signs on public property. In addition there was a fence shown across 86th Street extended which stated that it is private property. Although the streets are only about 20 feet wide, the City has an 80 foot right of way on 86th and 87th Streets and 100 feet on 88th. There were also a number of keep out and private property signs photographed.

Slides also showed motorcycle tracks causing erosion of the dunes and also a number of discarded mattresses.

"The opposition contends that the public domain should be for public use and not for the use of specific interest groups such as the public schools. We are admittedly biased because we feel that the schools are the most public of interests."

"Evidence indicated that the property under discussion is not now available to the public. There are many signs that would indicate that the park land and City-owned streets are not public property. For persons interested in preserving public domain to private use, many members of the opposition have demonstrated that they are not opposed to converting public domain to private use by constructing restraining walls and fences on as much as 25 feet of the public domain. Their actions belie their pronouncements."

As to the question of the need for the school, the report states, "It is contemplated that by 1972 Alanton, John B. Day and Linkhorn Park Schools will be overcrowded by 900 students. Attendance lines have been repeatedly changed in order to relieve overcrowded schools. The game of 'musical chairs' has run its course; the existing schools are at capacity enrollment and additional facilities must be built."

As to alternate school sites, the report says that one suggested in Fort Story was also unsuitable to the opposition. Their suggestion of a site between First Colonial Road and Great Neck Road is unsuitable to the School Administration because its use is anticipated for another level of education. In addition it is not now owned by the School Board.

In conclusion, Mouffe said, "The School Board has been cast in the role of destroying nature by the opponents of the proposed school construction. In Mrs. Sills' letter of Nov. 5, 1970, she asks 'May we again urge that the School Board withdraw from the lease of the 15 acres in Seashore State Park and allow us to help publicize nationally its leadership in conservation.' In light of the evidence, concurrence with her request would be at the expense of the School Board's reputation for serving the best interest of the City at minimal cost to the citizens."

After the presentation, School Board member Spencer Lott commented, "Until I see evidence of more deterioration of areas by schools than I've already seen, I cannot oppose the site."

Bayside Marlins Are City Champions

There were some doubts for awhile, but when time finally ran out Friday at Bayside Stadium, the Marlins had not only emerged with a difficult win over die-hard Kempsville, but they also had reached the top rung in their brief grid career: top team in Virginia Beach.

If anything, Bayside's 20-14 edge over the Chiefs was symbolic of the entire season—splashes of greatness, a few rough edges and a narrow escape. The Marlins' 7-3 record is a long way from the break-even mark that most pre-season prognosticators had given.

Bayside amassed its 20 points in the first half, then had to rely on the defense in the closing minutes of the last quarter to protect its lead. Down 50-0 at half, Kempsville stormed back in the third quarter with 14 points on runs by Bill Paschall and Julius Burdick.

The Marlins defense managed to beat back the Chiefs' last scoring attempt with only 1:39 left in the game. Bayside's offensive effort was led by Lloyd Bohn who scored one touchdown and teammate Lance Platz who added two more.

Across town at Cox, Princess Anne looked less than brilliant, but nevertheless managed to stop the battered Falcons by 20-12. Kellam, still high from last week's upset over Great Bridge, was unable to stage a repeat performance and fell to First Colonial 22-14.

It was a ho-hum game for the Cavaliers who probably had trouble getting up for the cellar-dwelling Falcons. Too, FA was without the services of Jerry McGrath, the Cavalier running back who sparked the offense all year.

Both Falcon TDs came on Alan Williams' passes. The sturdy Cox quarterback passed for 172 yards while his running backs accounted for only 62 yards.

Tom Butts turned a short flat pass into a 73-yard touchdown for the Cavaliers and Ken Ahles and Hobbs added a touchdown each.

First Colonial gained 310 yards on the ground in downing Kellam. Welton Cowell made two trips into the Knight end zone on runs of 6 and 12 yards. Mike Wareing accounted for the other Patriot touchdown.

After the Patriots' first touchdown in the second quarter, Kellam drove 60 yards in 10 plays with Robert Hochman plunging in on a two-yard dive. The other Kellam score came late in the game when Gerald Jackson took an eight-yard pass from Keith Reiger.

First Colonial's Mike Branch ran for 95 yards, Clinton Bradshaw got 93 and Wareing picked up 85.

Bear Takes State Prize

A Virginia Beach man has placed second in the bear competition of the Game Commission's State Bilt Game Trophy Contest.

Ronald Sybers took second place with a Dismal Swamp bruin which scored a respectable 27 points.

First place went to Russell Lam of Elkton whose 581-pound black bear lagged in Page County easily won the bear competition with a skull score of 30-6/8, setting a new state record.

Striper Derby Opens

The fishing season is far from over for those who live within driving range of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel.

Here, at the mouth of the great Bay, the third Annual Winternational Striped Bass Derby got underway Sunday. The contest, which has attracted more than 3,000 anglers in its first two years, will run for six weeks through Friday, December 31.

The tournament's purpose is to make people aware that long after fishing for lunker stripers is over in other sections of the country, the season is just getting started in the waters of the Chesapeake Bay and in the Atlantic Ocean off the Virginia Cape.

Boundaries within which fish must be caught are between these points: the Maryland line on the North, Virginia-North Carolina line of the South and the Virginia portion of the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries.

Trophies will be awarded for the largest fish in each of three divisions: men, women and junior (boys and girls 14 years of age and younger). The tournament, sponsored by WTAR-TV, is free to all entrants. Registration forms are available at most of the marinas in the Virginia Beach-Norfolk area.

The largest fish taken during the tournament's two years was a 52-pounder caught by John Harlow of Richmond, in 1969. Experts feel that the present state striper record of 58 lbs. 8 ozs. could be surpassed during this year's tournament.

Entry blanks and rules for the Winternational Striped Bass Derby can be obtained from the Tournament Director, WTAR-TV, 720 Boush St., Norfolk, Virginia 234510.

Hunters Need First Aid

What you know about a gun can't hurt you, but what you don't know about a gun can kill you, said Paul Jackson, Safety Director, Tidewater Chapter, American Red Cross.

Because of the dangers that accompany the sport, it is important, Jackson feels, that sportsmen, especially those new to the game, be aware of the hazards involved, and know how to minimize them.

He also said that a great many veteran hunters have already equipped themselves to help themselves and others in case of accident, by taking a Red Cross first aid course. In fact many enthusiastic hunters serve as volunteer first aid instructors for Red Cross. Because so great a number of experienced hunters have learned the values of first aid training, Jackson recommends that anyone who plans to take up hunting as a hobby, take Red Cross first aid instruction first.

The most recent statistics show that in 37 states and seven Canadian Provinces, the casualties included 400 dead and 2,591 injured. Of these, seven percent were those mistaken for game; eleven percent stumbled or fell while carrying guns; triggers which caught on a foreign object accounted for four point six percent, and loading or unloading guns represented five point six percent. Removing guns from vehicles accounted for three point seven percent.

"Safe procedures in using guns and other hunting equipment are an absolute necessity in reducing accidents, preventing injury and saving lives", says Paul Jackson.

Sniper, Fires, Adventure Followed Touring Couple

It started out to be a fairly routine trip. A tour of the national parks. But four months and 12,000 miles later Mr. and Mrs. Stanislaus Pincos had chalked up enough adventure to last them a lifetime...they narrowly escaped a sniper's bullet in Wisconsin; experienced the tragedy of the roaring fires in California; battled a summer blizzard in the Oregon forests; even wandered among the dinosaurs in Wyoming.

The Virginia Beach couple returned home Friday for the first time since July, a bit frayed around the edges but bubbling enthusiastically about their never-to-be-forgotten summer.

"It all started in Wisconsin," Pincos said. "We should have realized then it was going to be some trip."

Mrs. Pincos was driving when the sniper's bullet came through the front windshield.

"We saw the man's arm resting on his car door as he drove toward us," Pincos said. "I wondered why he was holding a stick in his hand."

The "stick" was a saved-off shotgun. The sniper fired as he passed the Pincos' station wagon.

"We saw a ball of fire and I swear that bullet seemed to hit the windshield in slow motion," Mrs. Pincos said. "Thank goodness it hit at an angle or I'd have gotten it right in the face."

A seasoned driver, the Virginia Beach woman managed to keep calm and bring the car safely to a stop. The windshield was shattered and they were sprinkled with glass but thankful to be alive.

"Police told us that about 30 minutes before we came along, a man was fired at and completely demolished his car when he ran off the road," Pincos said.

The dinosaur park in Wyoming was one of the most unusual things the couple saw. In the way of sights, that is. "People travel to Europe and elsewhere to see the sights and we've got everything in this country you could ever dream of," Pincos noted. "Even giant dinosaurs."

And speaking of sights, the Pincos' were something to see themselves when they stopped in Yellowstone, each outfitted in western garb reminiscent of a Gene Autry movie.

"People thought we were movie stars," Mrs. Pincos laughed. "They wouldn't believe us. Even asked us for our autographs. We finally showed them our car with Virginia Beach written all over it and by the time we got through selling them on Virginia Beach they were convinced."

The California fires were experienced to be appreciated, the couple said. They took movies of the beautiful forests and the expensive homes in a canyon near Los Angeles. A few hours later there was nothing left but smoldering countryside. At San Diego it seemed as if everything was ablaze.

"You can't imagine the fear of those people," Pincos said.

Mrs. Pincos was taken ill at San Diego and during her visit to the hospital there she met a family who had barely escaped the raging flames. The 15-year-old daughter told the story: the heat became so intense from the oncoming fire that a trailer outside their home, where the grandmother lived, exploded, setting all of the shrubbery and trees afire. The daughter and her parents (fate of the grandmother was never made known) jumped in the car to flee. The mother was already badly burned and the steering wheel was so hot the girl's hands were burned. The car wouldn't start. With only seconds to spare, the motor finally fired and the family escaped with their lives.

Pincos, a retired Navy civil engineer, said he got the shock of his life when they checked into a motel in San Diego, switched on television and found themselves right in the middle of a program on Mount Trashmore, Virginia Beach's unique refuse disposal.

"It was a group of engineers discussing the disposal project," Pincos said. "They told about how it was done, how successful it had been and how suitable it would be to other parts of the country. I was sure proud of Virginia Beach."

The extensive trip was more than just a vacation. Pincos plans to write an article on national parks and hopes to get a degree in wildlife and soil conservation from UCLA. Altogether they toured at least 30 parks and spent two weeks in Yellowstone in the field with a ranger.

He also plans to make up some of his movies of the trip into a film which can be shown to service clubs and school groups. "The footage on the fires should be something to see," Pincos said.

If illness had not struck down Mrs. Pincos they would have covered 9,000 more miles before returning to Virginia Beach. But after an operation and five weeks in the hospital, doctors insisted she return home.

"He (her husband) has a heart ailment, too," she said, "and the doctors wanted us to fly back but we would have nothing to do with that. We wouldn't have missed the return trip for anything in the world."

It was, indeed, a summer to remember but the couple definitely agree there's no place like home.

"After touring the entire country, I'll take Virginia any day," Pincos said. "The country is the prettiest and the drivers are the most courteous. Yes, there's no place like Virginia...and especially Virginia Beach."

The Pincos' are glad to be home.

School Proposal Tabled

A fact-finding committee of the Council of Civic Organizations has submitted a report to the council backing the school board in its plans to build an elementary school at Seashore State Park, but the council voted to table the proposal before voting.

Mrs. J. W. Sills and Mrs. Ralph Ramsey, delegates of the North Shore Civic League, had earlier requested the council to take a stand against construction on state property but the council tabled the motion until a fact-finding committee could investigate the issue.

Gene Ruminaki, a member of the four-man committee, said construction of the school at the park would be in "the balanced best interest for the entire community." His report noted that Virginia Beach would save an estimated $150,000 in acquisition costs by using the park site.

The committee's report noted:

--The 15-acre site proposed for construction is not a unique area.

--The area is not a bird sanctuary because there's not enough food to support them.

--The dunes already have been violated, and any further violation "is purely academic."

--A master plan of the state park does not involve the site.

Mrs. Sills said she was astounded at the committee's recommendation and added, "if we have to, we'll go to court."

One member of the investigation team introduced a large bag of trash he picked up at the park during an investigative trip. "The site is a gathering place," Ruminaki said, "for illegal and immoral purposes."

Miss Buchanan in Play

Georgia Powell Buchanan, daughter of Cdr. and Mrs. Alvin J. Buchanan, Jr., of 69th Street, was an assistant stage manager for the Vassar College Experimental Theatre's recent production of Aristophanes' "Lysistrata."

Miss Buchanan, a graduate of Amandale High School, Annapolis, is a sophomore at Vassar. She is a member of the College Senate and of Owl and Torch, a group of students who serve as guides for campus visitors.

Then it actually helps shrink swelling of these tissues caused by inflammation. The answer is Preparation H. No prescription is needed for Preparation H Ointment or suppositories.

Napolitano

Crusade Chairman Selected

Federick J. Napolitano has been named Cancer Crusade Chairman for the Virginia Beach Unit, American Cancer Society.

He was selected by the Cancer Crusade Committee, all past Crusade Chairmen, consisting of Dr. Howard Kahn, Larry Sanello, James Sadler, Bruce Murphy.

Horace Clotilo, Unit President introduced Napolitano to the Board of Directors.

The new chairman is a Senior Vice-President of Terry Corporation of Virginia, builder and developers of the Pembroke area of Virginia Beach. He is also a partner in Pembroke Square Associates, the builders of Pembroke Mall Shopping Center. Napolitano is a Principal of both Pembroke Realty and Insurance Agency, and Lyn Construction Corporation.

Napolitano is at present vice-president of the National Association of Home Builders. He is a past president of the Tidewater Association of Home Builders, and Scholarship Foundation. He is on the Board of Directors of both First National Bank of Norfolk and First Commonwealth Insurance Corporation.

His interest in community life is shown by his active participation in the following civic organizations: Board of Trustees, St. Mary's Infants' Home; Board of Directors of Virginia Beach Beautification Committee; 4th Degree, Knights of Columbus; Board of Directors of Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce; Member of Virginia Advisory Legislative Committee; past President Men's Club, Star of the Sea; Board of Directors Virginia Beach Democratic Club.

Both Napolitano and his wife, Jacqueline, have taken an active interest in the Cancer Society over the last few years, giving much of their time to past Cancer Crusade. The Napolitanos moved to Virginia Beach over fifteen years ago. They presently live in Bird-neck Point. They have four children.

Galilee Bazaar

Santa Claus is arriving earlier every year. He came to Galilee Episcopal Church's Annual Bazaar last week. CLAY 5, and TODD 4, sons of MR. and MRS. J.M. UNDERWOOD of Linkhorn Park, were the first to greet him on his arrival.

The Galilee Church Sewing Group's shop was one of the most popular at the bazaar.

The luncheon served at the bazaar was a huge success and understandably so--the food was delicious. After having lunch the IN SIGHT photographer understood why six ladies from Tidewater Red Cross Headquarters in Norfolk had traveled to the Beach for lunch. MRS. L.B. WALES serves lunch to MISS ELSIE CROOKS and MRS. MALCOLM FORTSON.

Women Present

ymate

Members of the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club had hoped to present their annual follies in a fashion of the famous Playboy Clubs. However, Hugh Hefner, despite much correspondence refused permission for the local club to use the name or theme.

The members responsible decided to go just a little bit better than the Playboy theme and make it "beach playmates."

The annual follies will be presented this Friday and Saturday at the Virginia Beach Dome. Many housewives and husbands contribute their time and talents each year to this effort. And under the direction of a professional director and choreographer provided by the Jerome H. Cargill Producing Organization in New York, the evening is always delightful and entertaining.

When the practice session was over the young mothers collected their children from the nursery which was specially provided for the cast.

Minor League Champs

The baseball season has been over for some time now but since the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, Lodge 2268, was in the process of moving into their new home at 3522 Virginia Beach Boulevard it was necessary to postpone some of their functions. One of these postponed functions was held last week in the new lodge hall. BPOE 2268 sponsors a Little League baseball team of 8 to 13 year old boys known as the "ELKS". The Elks wound up the season with only one game lost, by a score of 1 - 0, to win the Minor League championship. Last week the lodge held an awards night for the team and presented them with a trophy and each player with an American flag. Shown here with their flags are: VANCE FELTON, JEFF MEYERS, RUBY ADAMS, KELLY GIBSON, JERRY EPFS, PHIL EAST, BOB SHAW, and JERRY JALLINGS. Also shown in the back row are: TOM SHOEMAKER, award night chairman; CHARLES REICHA, team manager; GERALD VERDUN, exalted ruler; MIKE LA GIGLIA, coach and CHARLES TUCKER.

New Personnel Office Opens

Mademoiselle/Mark IV Personnel, Ltd. opened their second office last week, located on Virginia Beach Boulevard next door to GEICO. Looking on as Mayor DONALD RHODES officiated at the ribbon cutting was MRS. BOBI BOEKER and MR. ALBERT GLESSNER, manager of the firms two offices. The other location is in the Golden Triangle, Norfolk.

Bike Shop Destroyed

A fire last week destroyed the Kempsville Bike Center located at the intersection of Kempsville and Princess Anne Roads. The morning after the fire owner FRED PHILLIPS was looking over the damage to see what could be salvaged of his business. PHILLIPS says that anyone who had lay-aways or repairs at Kempsville Bike Center should contact him at Acredale Bike Center.

MRS. AUGUSTUS WALTON of Holland Road was raking leaves last week when she looked up into a tree and saw something which she had never seen before. A neighbor, MR. C.I. SILER, identified the unusual sight as a honeycomb which MR. WALTON'S bees had built there instead of in his hive. The WALTONS now have a problem--how to get to the honey. The combs are approximately thirty feet up in a tree that will not support a man's weight.

MARSHALL "BUD" COPPEDGE is a fire and rescue dispatcher for the Virginia Beach Fire Department. Two years ago BUD started a new hobby, that of carving and painting decoys. He also collects decoys preferring to trade rather than buy or sell. BUD says it's a very relaxing hobby and it only takes him about four hours to carve, sand and paint a duck decoy.

Presiding over the ceremony at Military Circle Mall was MRS. DOROTHY MCDANIEL, State Coordinator of POW-MIA Wives. At extreme left is TAYLOR JOHNSON, President of the Virginia Beach Exchange Club, who presented a replica of a cage such as the prisoners are confined to in Viet Nam. The delegation from Tidewater to present the petitions to the delegation to the Paris Peace Talks are MAYOR ROY B. MARTIN of Norfolk, MAYOR DONALD H. RHODES of Virginia Beach, BILL MITCHELL, student at ODU representing concerned youth and ED BRANDT, Metro Editor for the Virginian Pilot.

PRIMER FOR SUBSTITUTE SCHOOL BUS DRIVER

OR ...

TRYING

1. Starting off in the morning, instead of looking terrified, show authority and knowledge. A "Killer" look in your eyes will have the kids convinced you've been a substitute many times before.

2. Next, turn the bus radio dial to classical music. If it doesn't put the kids to sleep, it will turn their breakfast over in their stomachs. Sick or sleeping passengers don't cause trouble.

3. When everyone's stomach has adjusted and the sleepiness has worn off, hit a few curbs and strip some gears. That will bring the kids to attention fast.

4. A sudden case of amnesia will explain the passing of designated bus stops. A long walk on a hot day is good for your passengers' constitutions.

5. On the bus coming home, when everyone is excited and talkative and the students think their substitute bus driver has done everything possible to shake them up, don't relax. The kids will take advantage of you. Instead, hit the gas, slide into the other lane just barely missing some cars. Hearts in their throats they'll watch you make dramatic recovery, give you three cheers, and the next time you substitute, welcome you back a hero. ....Or better yet, maybe they'll walk home from school.

Egg-Head

"This club....(Egg) is very nearly perfect....members are all cracked and hard-boiled.... good clean fun."

Good Housekeeping

Untamed like the reviews, Egg Inc. is open to anyone interested in film making and its related arts.

Being led this year by president Bill Myers, vice-president, secretary Kathy Helmer, treasurer Scott Myers, "Egg" hopes to make as many films as possible.

This year, as last, it plans to sponsor the Original Film Festival. This festival "encourages any individual, or group, to make a film of any length, size, or type to enter in this festival.... prizes and fame awarded," says Miss Widman, sponsor of Egg Inc.

Last year's winning film SCHOOL, made by Egg Inc., was sent to an amateur film contest being held by Kodak. (No results yet, we'll keep you posted.)

Flags

The Drill Team has added new color to our field during half-time. They spent three months raising $700 to buy their twenty flags. Captains, Sandee Garrett and Barbara Lasas spent many days learning how to maneuver the flags.

It is impressive to see the team twirl twenty of these seven-foot flags. It may look simple, but when there's a strong wind, it's something else!

Sports

Patriots Pounce Lake Taylor First Colonial Patriots played heads-up football in the Lake Taylor game at Metropolitan Stadium.

Halfback Welton Cowell scored one touchdown on a six-yard run, and fullback Clinton Bradshaw scored on a one-yard run after long drives downfield, leading the Pats to a 14-0 victory. The score could have been twice as bad for Lake Taylor, but fumbles in the first quarter killed two Patriot drives; one at the Titan 30, and another at the Titan one-half yard line.

Patriot defense, led by Tommy Soffield, Leonard Berry, and Butch Flore, held the Titans to only 88 yards rushing and 64 yards passing.

Enrollment Forces Shifts

The increasing number of students enrolled at First Colonial presented the serious problem of overcrowding. It's solution was the staggered shift or eight-bells. Juniors, seniors, and 50% of the sophomores are on the first shift with eighth, ninth, and the other tenth graders on the second. This system frees many classrooms during the first and last two bells. It also eliminates the need for more portable classrooms.

This is not to say, however, that it is the most ideal situation. Several new problems have arisen since its introduction. The system eliminates Home Room where class affairs could be discussed and Study Halls which helps students who need them. Students participating in indoor sports may also be inconvenienced by late practice hours. Faculty and administration are faced with more serious problems. Without Home Room, attendance records make extra work. Also, transportation had to be arranged for both shifts.

The system appears to be working well despite inconveniences. Some pertinent comments on it are:

Mr. Bowyer: "The eight-bell system works quite well. It meets our needs and accomplishes what the seventh-bell system is supposed to do."

Steve West: "It's rough on some people, but generally it's pretty good."

Sony Butler: "I like the eight-bell system because it gives you the choice of taking an extra subject if you want, and first shift ends at two o'clock."

Clayton Herbert: "I think it is a much better system than the six-bell, especially for D.E. students."

Russell Jennings: "I get to school later but I get home later, so it kind of equals out."

Mary Moore: "I think it stinks when you have band practice from four to six."

Bill Wheeler: "I like it because you get out so early and you don't have all that wasted time."

Courtney Coffman: "It's good. I have second shift and I get to watch Captain Kangaroo in the morning."

James Sparks: "It's too complicated, it confuses me."

Gary Dalton: "It gives me more time to be with my mother. By the way, what was that about a party at third street?"

Craig Erickson: "Yes, I'm for anything the administration's for."

The efficiency of it this year will aid in determining its continuance.

F.C. GOES INTERNATIONAL

Eight of the 2400 students who eagerly pursue knowledge are experiencing their first year in a school foreign to their own. Francisco and Alberto Juarez are from Argentina, Sakai Mika is from Japan, Marc Gosselein and Daniel Mairiaux are from Belgium, and Malinda Sia's former home was in the Philippines.

To be in a free country, Meeti Thorsen misses many of her personal freedoms. Meeti comes from Denmark where you are able to express yourself freely in the way you dress. "I feel that First Colonial's student-teacher relationship suffers greatly because of its strict rules." The majority of the foreign students has the same complaints as Meeti has about the Dress Code. However, they all like the early dismissal hours and the quality of our text books.

Markku Sewel, from Finland, kept saying over and over, "It's an O.K. school!" We agree, We're NUMBER ONE!

Leading in the School-wide Candy sale as of November 13th are: Alaboo Cason, Earl Slatum, Bob Warren, Darlene Koch, Kenneth Miller, Sharon Black, Larry Woodhouse, Patricia Parker, Mark Verneay, Val Burns.

Trustee Hits At System

A Virginia Beach dentist, representing the Tidewater Community College Tuesday lashed out at the state's lack of support of a community college for this resort city and suggested Camp Pendleton as a temporary site for such a facility.

Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr., vice chairman of the college's Board of Trustees, said "We would like to see the college at least get started in our city and we feel that the temporary quarters at Camp Pendleton for two to three years at the most would be ideal."

"Camp Pendleton has been in the midst of much controversy lately since early reports indicate that the Governor's Management Study Group will recommend that the predominantly state-owned military reservation be released for sale for $1 million. The complete study is scheduled to be released next week.

The camp, used for summer training for Army Reserve units and Naval amphibious exercises, is the preference of the trustees because of its available buildings.

"Camp Pendleton, as is, could provide about one block of old barracks, renovated at a minimum expense, which

Bravery Recognized

Honors from the American Red Cross went out Tuesday for two Virginia Beach men who rescued a Cedar Rapids, Iowa, man last October from the waters of the Atlantic in the face of a strong rip tide and heavy seas.

John Roper III, representing the Red Cross, presented citations to Edward Pankowski and Robert Newman in a brief ceremony in the Norwegian Lady. At the presentation in front were Public Information Officer Frank L. Creasy, City Councilman Robert H. Callis Jr., Roper, Pankowski and Newman. After the ceremony, the two were asked if they'd like to repeat the feat but in view of the brisk 24 degree weather, it's understandable that they were reluctant.

POW Rescue Attempts Praised Here By Officials

By JAMES TURNER

First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing Jr. said Tuesday the fruitless American commando raid November 21 into North Vietnam in search of American prisoners was a positive move and should be repeated if possible.

"I heartily approve of the attempted rescue," he said. "My only regret is that the intelligence was faulty. If we can develop new intelligence which we can believe, I say we should try it again."

He said the action itself proved the feasibility of such a mission, noting that it was accomplished without a casualty.

raid into North Vietnam would not have an adverse effect on the negotiations for prisoner treatment and release.

He said he was glad to know that officially the United States was "obviously" concerned enough about the prisoners of war to attempt a raid into North Vietnam.

Had they been successful, the whole nation would be applauding their efforts," Rhodes said. "Personally, I am not prepared to criticize their efforts."

Saturday night's raid on a POW camp at Son Tay, just 20 miles west of the port of Haiphong, turned up negative results when the commandos landed in a vacated camp.

According to an Associated Press story from South Vietnam, the raids were neither the first into North Vietnam nor the first such attempt to rescue prisoners.

According to the AP, none of the release attempts have been successful, that fact attributed to faulty intelligence, simple mistakes and security leaks.

Rhodes said he shared the concern of others who think the raids might be detrimental to the best interests of the prisoners of war, "but I think we can overcome any adverse effects that this might cause."

He said the raids would not have any effect on the recent trip because the mission went to talk with the North Vietnamese on an individual basis, expressing concern of other individual citizens here.

That issue is separate from the politics of the war, he said. "Irrespective of the politics involved, we were still within our rights in seeking proper treatment for the prisoners. It shouldn't have any effect at all," Rhodes said.

Mrs. W. M. Tschudy, the wife of a Navy navigator held by the North Vietnamese for five and a half years, said she was glad to hear of the missions. "We are all grateful to the volunteers who risked their lives for humanitarian reason," she said.

"But it's just too soon to make any comment of whether it was a good move," she said. "Everything's just so confusing, it's such a touchy thing." Mrs. Tschudy said she would be hesitant to trust even her own judgement in the matter, since she didn't have all the information at hand and wanted to let things settle, both in her mind and internationally.

PTA Council Backs Site For School

The Virginia Beach Council of Parent Teacher Association, representing 12,239 by their November meeting adopted the following resolution by unanimous vote and directed that it be sent to Gov. Linwood Holton: "A school is badly needed in the North Virginia Beach area, and we feel it should be built on the site leased to the City for this purpose in the northeast section of Seashore State Park."

"Trusting you will take no steps to revoke or restrict the lease as now drawn, I remain sincerely, Mrs. C. E. Hitchcock, Jr., president of the Virginia Beach Council of PTA's.

Richmond Firm To Sell Beach

The city's $204,000 advertising contract for tourism and industrial development Monday was awarded to the Richmond advertising firm of Brand and Edmonds Associates.

After seeing a 45-minute presentation by the firm's various media representatives, City Manager Roger M. Scott approved the specially-appointed advertising jury's selection.

Scott said the city would start to work immediately with the firm to get the contracts signed and shortly begin the actual work at hand.

The firm's selection came after City Council appointed an eight-man advertising jury to view the applications of 13 agencies who expressed an interest in the contract.

Following initial screening the jury selected Ballard, Lawler and Little, Martin & Woltz, and Brand and Edmonds Associates to make the final 45-minute presentations.

Monday that presentation was repeated by Cecil Edmonds, the firm's president, and key agency executives.

Media Director Bob Barrett told the gathering of City Councilmen and members of the jury that the development of Virginia Beach's account was an example of advertising by objectives.

He said the firm based its campaign on data collected through two independent studies, as well as information the agency had developed for the state.

That information, he said showed that:

- Vacationers view the city as a beach for younger people, but more for families.
- 58 per cent think of the city as having modern motels, with better than one-third thinking of them as average.
- Think that prices at Virginia Beach are average.
- The people of Virginia Beach are friendlier than elsewhere in Virginia.
- Consider the city equally as ordinary and exciting.
- Seven out of ten think the restaurants and entertainment are average.
- Almost three out of five think it a place for a short visit.

Barrett said that based on the findings of the market research report, the agency adopted "Virginia Beach...one more day is wonderful" as the campaign theme.

That theme, he said, would be followed through the entire program and demonstrated several radio advertising spots carrying the theme.

He said the theme would be used to increase the stays of visitors, who spend 5.1 days in the state but only a week-end in Virginia Beach.

Barrett noted that there were several points that had to be considered as objectives for the campaign. In tourism and travel, they are:

- Extend the two and a half day average visitor stay.
- Capitalize on adjacent attractions to include a stay in the city and see more.
- Extend the 100-day season into profitable weeks before and after the season.
- Reach new people in more key areas who are potential visitors.

In terms of industrial development, Barrett said the phrase used to catch the subject would be "Combine good living with a good place to work."

That is an objective, he said, as well as a slogan, along with a means to show sophisticated approaches to industrial development.

Edmonds said the firm canvassed 27 firms listed in Fortune magazine's top 500 corporations as to why they would locate in a given area, and that the biggest reason was the labor market, along with considerations for transportation and other factors.

He said cities often approach the problem with information that is outdated the minute it's published, Edmonds suggested that the city begin to use computerized and personalized responses to firms interested in the area, giving them updated and immediate information.

"What we're proposing is definitely a merchandising gimmick," Edmonds said, "but we think it will work well."

"We believe, too, that tourism advertising has to be geared to merchandising, with specific events and specific booklets for the people."

Edmonds said the purpose of the advertising is to give people a reason for coming. In that vein, the firm told the city it should consider holding special weekends for specific regions, providing special rates and coupon booklets for discounts while here.

Already, the firm has drawn up a plan for the city of Baltimore, asking Baltimoreans "to remember, the fun starts in Virginia Beach May 9th," offering them special advantages.

Howard Packett, the agency's executive vice president, said the firm has arranged with a cosmetics company to provide sun tan lotion with each response for information.

Along with that, he said, there are other gimmicks such as buttons, brochures, press kits and special methods for attracting

Tree Project Is Now Tiger's Tail

Mrs. Robert Steinmetz has a tiger by the tail and doesn't quite know what to do with it.

At a recent meeting of the Home Demonstration Club was impressed with the project so Mrs. Steinmetz decided to try a community drive to see what reaction it would bring.

The residents of Thalia, Thalia Village and Birchwood were asked to bundle their old newspapers and put them out on the street for the Union Mission to pick up.

Most of the notification was through church bulletins and by word of mouth. There was very little publicity. Yet, over one ton of paper awaited the mission trucks when they came around.

Now Mrs. Steinmetz is getting calls from interested conservationists asking when the next pick-up will be.

"There definitely is an interest," she said. "But I am only one person. I can't take on a conservation and pollution project for the entire city, no matter how dedicated I am to the cause."

The great thing about this particular project, she said, is that it doesn't cost anyone a cent. It does make money for the charitable organizations which collect the papers but

Council Approves Nominees

City Council Monday approved the appointment of R. Bradshaw Pulley to the Board of Trustees of the Tidewater Community College, replacing Dr. Clarence Holland.

The appointment fills the three positions allocated to the city. Pulley will serve for three years.

Council also approved the appointment of former councilman G. Dewey Simmons to the Southeastern Virginia Planning District Commission. The single negative vote was from Councilman F. Reid Ervin.

Ervin said the position should have been filled by a councilman or another "high ranking member of the administration."

Council also approved Mrs. Peter A. Agelasto III, Braden Vandeverter Jr., V. Adm. Reynolds D. Hogle and Edwin C. Kellam as members of the Board of Trustees of the Virginia Beach Museum of Art. In other appointments, Council:

- Approved the nomination of Dr. Clarence C. Holland to serve as a member of the executive committee of the Southeastern Virginia District Planning Commission.
- Approved the appointment of City Manager Roger M. Scott to the Drug Focus Committee.

Heavy line indicates section to be improved.

Newtown Road Hearing Mon.

A location and design public hearing to discuss proposed improvements to Newtown Road, a Norfolk-Virginia Beach boundary street, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Point of View Elementary School auditorium.

The Virginia Department of Highways, in announcing plans for the public hearing, said that a representative of the department will have maps, drawings and other pertinent information available for viewing by interested persons from 3 until 7 p.m. on the day of the hearing at the Point of View School.

The representative will be there to answer whatever questions interested citizens may have prior to the hearing.

This information is also available for public inspection and copying at the Department of Highways district office, located on US 460 just north of Suffolk; at the department's Norfolk residency office, located at the intersection of US 13 and VA 168 in the city of Chesapeake; in the office of the Director of Community Services for Virginia Beach; and in the offices of the Director of Public Works, Norfolk.

Under present proposals, 0.45 of a mile of Newtown Road between Virginia Beach Boulevard (US 58) and the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway (VA 44) would be reconstructed into a four-lane, divided facility with a 15-foot raised median. The road is now a two-lane thoroughfare. The project plans also would provide for curbs and gutters and sidewalks.

If approved as planned, the roadway would tie in with the four-lane facility already in place between Kempsville Road and Stony Point Road.

Written statements and other exhibits relative to the proposed project may be presented in place of, or in addition to, oral statements at the hearing. Such written statements and exhibits may also be submitted to the Department of Highways any time within 10 days following the hearing.

At this location and design public hearing, relocation assistance programs and business schedules for right-of-way acquisition and construction will be discussed.

An Out-of-the-Ordinary Exhibit for Unusual Gifts

Color—imagination—a combination destined to generate excitement in the arts. And this combination lends itself perfectly in the unique exhibit of arts and crafts now on display at the Village Gallery.

Everything from hand woven ponchos to macrame wall hangings to rope stoneware fill the display room, their array of color and design adding a bit of foreign flavor to the exhibit.

The works included in the exhibit are the efforts of members of the Ceramic Designer's Association and the Tidewater Craftsmen's Guild.

There are over 350 pieces on display, each intricately individual in its workmanship.

Of particular interest are the lovely wall hangings, and in this grouping Joan Griffin's entries are outstanding. The eye-catchers are the macrame Round Eight in its complicated design, the Square Brown in its luster and the backstrap woven hanging in autumn colors which mixes such materials as hemp, rope, yarn thread, etc. into pure delight. Her work in macrame is exceptionally lovely.

Marinda Long also has a delightful woven wall hanging in greens and gold and Yvonne Lafean symbolizes today's free-spirited moderns with her space hanging, a special favorite of this reviewer.

In woven work Miss Lafean also shines in her very fashionable ponchos and Pat Oberhoffer's Greek reversible vest and two handbags, handwoven with macrame, will surely please the most critical among the fashion-conscious.

The woven work, in fact, predominates this exhibit, even though the array of crafts is extensive. The carved polished wood is interesting but only Samuel Brickhouse's gigantic flower and one or two of his mushrooms are truly outstanding. Most of it is pretty much routine, in subject matter (birds, turtles, etc.) if not in workmanship. The same is true of the stoneware and porcelain. It is pretty and enjoyable, but few pieces draw you back for a second look.

The sculpture work of Betty Knight are double-look items, however...her three Adam figures and that of St. Francis particularly.

Another very special feature of this exhibit are the hand-carved dulcimers, 4-string teardrop-and hour glass shaped instruments, by George Hendrickson. And, of course, Lester Knorr's outstanding tile "galaxie" spread over eight panels is quite unique.

There are so many interesting—and marketable—items in this exhibit it seems rather a shame to limit their recognition. There are many potential Christmas gifts on display, truly different gifts for those who enjoy the out-of-the-ordinary. The show will close Tuesday night to make way for the minerals and gem show which will open on December 6. It will be well worth a few minutes during this holiday week-end to drop by the Village Gallery and see these unusual pieces of arts and crafts.

—Ruby Jean Phillips

'Being Yourself' Is Topic

"Being Yourself" will be the subject of a lecture by Worth Kidd at the Association for Research and Enlightenment, 67th Street and Atlantic Avenue on Friday, December 4th at 8 p.m. Kidd is on the staff of the Association, working at a national level with study groups.

On Saturday, December 5th at 8 p.m. Fredrick Davidson, Ph.D. will talk on "The Balanced Life".

Dr. Davidson is associate professor in the McIntire School of Business, University of Virginia, also associated with the School of Architecture. He is a member of the A.R.E. Board of Trustees.

On Sunday, December 6th at 3:30 p.m. Charles Thomas Cayce, Ph.D. will talk on "Edgar Cayce Concepts on Child Rearing in the Family." Dr. Cayce is a psychologist specializing in work with children.

'Our Town' At Kellam

Gene Cousin and Terri Brennen rehearses scene from "Our Town".

The Thornton Wilder epic "Our Town" will be presented at Kellam High School December 4-5 at 8 p.m.

It will be presented by the Kellam Drama Club and the Kellam Chapter of the International Thespians. Director will be Miss Rhett Pridgen. The cast of 17 includes the following lead role performers: Jerry Johnson, Gene Cousin, Terri Brennan, Cathy Perkins, Chris Clevon, Debbie Alderman and Tommy Hitt.

"Our Town" revolves around the sometimes quaint, sometimes touching, sometimes amusing happenings in the town of Grover's Corners, New Hampshire in the period 1901-1913.

Art Guild Seeks Members

Chesapeake Art Guild is having a membership drive. Artists or those who wish to become patrons are welcome.

The next morning will be from noon to 2 p.m. Dec. 1 at the College Park Information Center. For information call Mrs. Barbara Fontress at 420-3596 or Bill Summerlin at 420-1986.

Taylor Elected

David Taylor of Virginia Beach has been elected president of the Alpha Psi Omega at the University of Tennessee at Martin, Tenn.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy C. Infield, 3902 Brentwood, and is a junior majoring in liberal arts at the university.

PUBLIC NOTICE PROPOSED HIGHWAY PROJECT

The State Highway Commission wishes to advise that a Location and Design Public Hearing will be held by a representative of the Department of Highways on November 30, 1970, at 7:30 p.m., in the Point of View Elementary School Auditorium located at 5400 Parliament Drive, Virginia Beach, Virginia, for the purpose of considering the proposed location and design of Westtown Road from 0.308 mile north of the intersection of Virginia Beach Toll Road (Route 44) to 0.011 mile south of the intersection of Virginia Beach Boulevard (Route 58) in the City of Norfolk and Virginia Beach. This hearing will be held in accordance with State and Federal statutes, including provisions of Section 128 of Title 23 - Highways, United States Code, and Policy and Procedure Memorandum 20-8.

Maps, drawings and other pertinent information are available for public inspection and copying in the Department of Highways District Office at Suffolk, Virginia, located on Route 460 just north of Suffolk, in the Department of Highways, Norfolk Residency Office, located at the intersection of Routes 13 and 148 in the City of Chesapeake, in the office of the Director of Community Services for the City of Virginia Beach and in the office of the Director of Public Works for the City of Norfolk. A representative of the Department of Highways will have this information available in the Point of View Elementary School Auditorium from 3:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. on November 30, 1970, for viewing by interested persons.

Written statements and other exhibits relative to the proposed project may be presented in place of, or in addition to, oral statements at the hearing. Such written statements and exhibits may also be submitted to the Virginia Department of Highways at any time within two days following said public hearing date.

At this location and design public hearing, relocation assistance programs and tentative schedules for right of way acquisition and construction will also be discussed.

Caring for the elderly is a growing beach business

When opportunity knocked on Homer Cunningham's door four years ago, he made up his mind to one thing. He wasn't going to let that knock take him away from Virginia Beach.

Because of this resolution, today the resort city is headquarters for a multi-million dollar nursing home operation that extends as far South as Florida as far north as Illinois and as far west as Colorado.

The fastidiously decorated offices housing Medic-Home Enterprises Inc. are located in the newly constructed Colony Building on Virginia Beach Boulevard and will be formally opened this afternoon by a limited group of invited guests.

There are presently some 15 people working here in the administrative end of the operation and Cunningham says that five more or so will soon be added. The staff increased considerably three weeks ago when the entire offices in Florida, where the heaviest concentration of nursing homes is located, were consolidated into the Virginia Beach offices.

The over-all personnel employed by Medic-Home Enterprises would be almost impossible to tally. There are 24 facilities, over 3,400 beds, throughout Virginia, Florida, North Carolina, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Colorado and Illinois. Handling the mammoth job of supervising this widespread operation places great demands on Cunningham's time. Last year he flew over 75,000 miles and is away from his family much of the time. But moving the offices away from Virginia Beach, perhaps to Florida or New York, is "out of the question," he said. "I seriously thought about going to Florida," Cunningham said, "because of the convenience. And the president, who has offices in New York, would like for me to move up there. But I could never leave Virginia Beach. This is where we are going to stay."

This devotion to his city perhaps dates back to his real estate days when, with considerable foresight, he located his offices very near the area that is now the Plaza Shopping Center. At that time, of course, it was pretty barren... Convenient neither to the resort or to Norfolk.

"Other realtors to laugh at me for locating so far from everything," he said. "But I'd point out on a map that that location was the geographical center of Virginia Beach and that sooner or later that's where the development would be."

It was this kind of foresight that prompted that knock four years ago.

Two men from New York who were involved in a national nursing home operation sought Cunningham's services in locating building sites in Virginia. He became more and more involved in the business until, finally in 1967, he dissolved his real estate firm and became vice president of Medic-Home Enterprises, Inc.

There is no question but what it is a very lucrative business. The firm last year deposited over $8 million in local banks. And Cunningham has some theories as to why more and more elderly people are placed under nursing care.

"It's the change in our social habits," he explained. "In the past most families stayed close to each other, they raised large families in big homes and the elderly were cared for by their children."

"Today it's a different story entirely. We have more elderly because the great strides made in medicine have extended the life span. Families scatter at an early age, the homes are smaller and there is just no way to provide for the older members of the family when they can no longer care for themselves."

And it is at this point that Medic-Home steps in. They provide modern, well equipped facilities for the care of the elderly. One of the homes is in Virginia Beach, just off Virginia Beach Boulevard near Birchwood Gardens. It is so modern in design and decor that few people even realize it is a nursing home.

Holiday Job Course Set

The Distributive Education Service of the Virginia Beach City Public Schools is offering a special ten-hour, four-day course of instruction to persons who wish to increase their chances of obtaining employment for the holiday season.

Emphasis is being placed on the practical aspects of seeking employment, such as dress, grooming, what the employer expects from employees, and how to apply for the job. A certificate of completion will be given to each satisfactory enrollee at the end of the course.

Several local merchants have indicated that the average person who has never held a job or has been out of the labor market for some time could benefit greatly by taking advantage of this opportunity to increase their job-seeking skill.

Classes will be held at Seaback Community Center on Birdneck Road for four evenings from 7-9:30 on November 30 through December 3. There will be no cost for this pre-employment course.

Interested persons may enroll by calling 427-4574. Seats will be reserved by name on a first come first served basis.

Integon Dividends Due

Integon Corporation directors today announced approval of a regular 5 cents a share quarterly dividend payable December 18 to shareholders of record December 4.

This year's operating earnings through September, announced recently, were up 16.3% over the same period of 1969.

Mrs. Zella wrote the thick manual in the foreground.

She teaches what she learned the hard way

Mrs. Virginia Zella is a jack-of-all-trades and master of them all in the nursing profession...a registered nurse, a hospital administrator, a training officer, a gubernatorial appointee, you name it.

Because of this outstanding background in her chosen field, Mrs. Zella now heads a powerful training program for Medic-Home Enterprises, Inc. Seated behind her desk in her very plush Colony Building office, the attractive training officer sets up programs for 24 nursing homes to better prepare personnel in nursing, dietary and housekeeping practices.

With 30 years of nursing behind her, there really isn't much about the profession Mrs. Zella doesn't know. And her job today is sharing this experience-learned knowledge with select leaders in each of the nursing homes operated by Medic-Home. She has even written a voluminous manual covering every phase of nursing home care as a guideline for her trainees.

Before joining Medic-Home, Mrs. Zella headed the Nursing Home Improvement Program for the Virginia Health Department. She was recently appointed by Governor Holton to the State License Board for Nursing Home Administrators.

The training she instills in the personnel is far from the correct way to serve meals, make beds and fluff pillows. Mrs. Zella's instruction ranges from the proper public relations attitude of the janitor to conducting colorful and flavorful party foods for the patients' birthdays.

And, above all, she stresses the importance of keeping the patients independent.

"We want to keep them up and moving as much as possible. We are able to do this with perhaps 80 to 90 per cent of the patients. Mealtime is a social hour, one of the highlights of their day, and here we stress good nutrition. We also give them physical therapy to keep their bodies active, a big party each month for those who have birthdays and other social activities to keep their minds active."

She also trains the facility personnel, especially the activities director which each home has, in ways to keep the patients occupied.

"The patient may have been a banker, a doctor, a community leader and we don't want to take his dignity away from him just because he is feeble and can no longer care for himself," she explained. "We want to keep him as independent as possible."

TAHB Installs

Bernard Kroll has been elected president of the Tidewater Association of Home Builders, succeeding David A. Howard.

New officers were sworn in Saturday night at the President's Ball in the Golden Triangle.

Other new officers are: C. Roy Kelley, vice president; Edward P. Brogan, vice president; William J. Fanney, treasurer; and Theodore S. Schlossman, secretary.

New directors for 2-year terms are C. G. Harris, Doyle

E. Hall, Douglas W. Talbot, Bernard Jaffe, Roger Nomi, and Stewart Penner. R. Dana Lee was elected to fill the unexpired one year in the term of Fanney. Re-elected to another 2-year term was Herbert L. Kramer.

Seven persons remain on the board. Their terms will expire in November of next year. They are Joseph C. Addington Jr., Leslie Aranyi, Nelson C. Davidson, James J. Digges, E. Gilbert Keene and F. Wayne McLeskey Jr.

Richard White, right, didn't even fill out the stub that was drawn by Howard Smith, center, president of the Plaza Merchants Association, and won a new color television set for him. The set was a prize in the grand opening of the new First and Merchants Bank in Princess Anne Plaza of which Floyd Waterfield, left, is manager.

Joins Wheat Plaza Site Approved For Recreation, Club

Robert James Tidwell of Virginia Beach, Virginia, has joined Wheat & Co., Inc., as a registered representative in the Norfolk branch. The announcement was made by Alfred Wood, branch manager. Wheat & Co., Inc., member of the New York and American Stock Exchanges, offers a comprehensive range of investment banking and brokerage services to individuals, corporations and institutions.

Headquarters are in Richmond with Virginia branch offices in Danville, Lynchburg, Martinsville, Newport News, Norfolk, Petersburg, and Roanoke. North Carolina offices are in Raleigh, Fayetteville, and Rocky Mount. West Virginia offices are in Charleston and Bluefield, and the firm has a cashiers office in New York City.

Before joining Wheat & Co., Tidwell was employed as a sales representative for Hunt-Wesson Foods, Inc., of Fullerton, California. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Mathematics and has a Master's in Business Administration from the College of William & Mary. He served in the Virginia Army National Guard.

Tidwell is married to the former Janice R. Pierce of Suffolk, Virginia. They have one boy, age 2. The Tidwells reside at 860 S. Clubhouse Road, Apartment 5.

City Council Monday gave the go ahead for a boy's club and community center in Princess Anne plaza with the donation of two acres of land. M. J. Owens, head of the Virginia Beach Boys Club, said the donation of land would aid greatly in getting funds for the club. He said the group had been in touch with several philanthropic foundations and had been told to raise some money, get the lands, and then call back.

Now, Owens said, the group can get to work on the project at a heavy pace. Thus far, about $20,000 has been raised by the group for the proposed $1 million facility, which is to be open to all residents in the city.

Appearing with Owens was Mrs. Francis X. Kuhn, who said the boys of Princess Anne Plaza needed a place to go other than the woods to sniff glue. She said there have been several drownings, which could have been prevented if the boys had had a place to swim that was safe.

City Manager Roger M. Scott said the Departments of Parks and Recreation had agreed to hand over the land, part of a city-owned park on Northgate Drive in the Plaza area.

After the structure is complete, Owens said it would revert to the city.

In other matters, Council: Passed a resolution asking state and federal agencies to appropriate their share of $160,000 needed by the city to transform Mt. Trashmore, the city's waste disposal site, into a recreation area.

Agreed to appropriate $554 for printing of 10,000 hard-bound books by the Drug Focus Committee on drug abuse providing a listing of sources for assistance.

Appropriated $16,000 to purchase a recreational site in the Pinewood Gardens area.

Awarded citations to Burnley W. Williams, William R. Jenkins and Roger Pallet for their actions in the rescue of two people whose boat capsized in the mouth of the Rudee Inlet. All three men work on the city's dredge.

Received a letter from Councilman F. Reid Ervin to Health Department official M. J. Owens asking for an investigation of the water pollution of streams and lakes within the city by the State Water Control Board and the state's health department.

Theatre Still Pending

Where is the support City Council has indicated would be given the Virginia Beach Little Theatre? It has been months since the theatre group made a plea for financial help in constructing a theatre building and though their cries fell on sympathetic ears no definite action or commitment has come forth.

It would be unwise for City Council to now decide against supporting this group. They contribute much to the community, not just in providing entertainment for the residents during the off-season months, but in such projects as bringing to life the English assignments of local high school students.

Next week the theatre people will launch preliminary steps in producing the Arthur Miller classic "Death of a Salesman." This is being done primarily for the high schools. The same is true of "Our Town" which will be presented later in the season. Both plays are senior English assignments.

The Virginia Beach Little Theatre is composed of hard-working people. They have truly worked to build a theatre. When they were "homeless" last season they worked to produce "Midsummer Night's Dream" for the schools. They solicited funds for the building. They undertook various projects in attempts to get the needed money.

This season they have arranged with the Bay Harbour Club to produce plays there and the first endeavor, "I Never Sang For My Father", was tremendously successful. One patron was so impressed with the endeavors of the group to bring top quality drama to the Beach that he contributed five hundred dollars on the spot to the building fund.

The Virginia Beach Little Theatre is a group that helps itself. It has never before asked for help. The money needed would provide a tangible asset to the community... a fully-equipped theatre building to serve for conventions, clubs and other gatherings, as well as little theatre.

When a group works to support its own needs, it deserves the interest of the city in a time of crisis. This is the situation that now exists with the little theatre. City Council would do well to take action in their behalf so that work could proceed on a much-needed theatre building for Virginia Beach.

Regulation is for all

If a citizen of this city should throw old tires on the burning trash of property being cleared, they would undoubtedly be penalized for violating a city ordinance.

If the city commits the same violation it is even more objectionable because city administration supposedly stands as an example to the residents. But the city did burn old tires on raging trash fires last week and irritate citizens took note of the action.

Burning trash is in itself a severe air pollutant. Burning rubber added to this is insufferable. And the crews in charge of the clearing should have realized that.

It has previously been pointed out editorially that the ordinances regulating this city apply to all people, regardless of their political affiliation, their financial or civic position or their color or religion.

The citizens of Virginia Beach are not allowed to contaminate the air and justifiably so. But this same regulation applies to the city itself.

Project needs organization

A Virginia Beach housewife, completely on her own, last week launched a conservation and pollution project so simple in its concept that one's immediate reaction might question its effectiveness.

She merely asked residents of three closely related communities to bundle up old papers for recycling so that new trees might be spared the pulp mills. The more recycled paper that can be used for cardboard boxes, paper bags and other paper products, the fewer the trees that will fall to the woodman's ax. And the more trees America has, the purer the air, the cleaner the water, the more beautiful the countryside.

Her idea was an immediate hit. Residents of the trial-run communities responded far more successfully than the housewife had expected. Another positive show that the people of Virginia Beach are keenly interested in environment.

It is a simple contribution to the relief of a mammoth problem. It doesn't cost anyone anything except a few minutes of their time.

But it seems that the inspired housewife created a Frankenstein monster. Her telephone rings constantly for more information. She cannot handle the swelling project herself but she is afraid to discourage the interest.

Mrs. Robert Steinmetz needs to turn the project over to a wide-spread group of people who will carry it into every corner of the city. The Council of Civic Organizations or the Federation of Garden Clubs come to mind since both are well represented all over the city. Certainly the project should not be dropped in its infancy.

IT'S TURKEY TIME AGAIN!

Speaks out for park school

To the Editor:

For some months now, much has been written and expressed concerning proposed construction of an elementary school in an area of Seashore State Park, some fifteen acres being involved.

Working closely with the school system of the City of Virginia Beach in my capacity as President of Virginia Beach Council of Parents & Teachers, incidentally, total membership in the Council numbers 12,239 persons, I have long felt the need for some helpful action to be taken by those of us favoring this school site. Let me emphasize, however, I am writing you as a citizen of the State of Virginia and the City of Virginia Beach, I just offer the above information in order that you may know I am thoroughly familiar with the existing situation.

I have expressed my feelings, on several occasions, to our esteemed Superintendent of Schools, Mr. E.E. Brickell, feeling that the PTA Council could be helpful to School Administration in education the public to the truth of this matter. He, Mr. Brickell, being the fine, patient, gentleman he is, has repeatedly expressed confidence in this proposed site as offered by the state and felt no need to call upon our vast membership for aid. Further, he has expressed not wanting to divide the community over proposed school site nor to conduct a campaign for same through the news media. I sincerely feel the School Administration, as well as the School Board of the City of Virginia Beach, have had their patience vexed to the limit - I don't know how they have remained silent on the many untruths being made public by members of the committee opposing this school site! At the November 17, 1970 meeting of the Virginia Beach School Board, which I attended, a nineteen page report, together with films, was presented by Mr. James C. Mounie of the Virginia Beach School Administration, a specialist in curriculum and research. Needless to say, after Mr. Mounie's outstanding presentation, I was proud to be present when the Virginia Beach School Board voted, unanimously, to reaffirm its decision to locate the proposed school on this fifteen acre site.

Motorcycle obstacle course, shooting range, nothing short of a dump now exists on this proposed school site. Ridges, due to motorcycles, in sand dunes that are supposedly "rare and unique" to the area" are causing erosion of a nature more severe than any construction, be it a school of anything else. A bed, twenty mattresses, discarded stove, hot water heater, beer cans, gun shells - these are some of the existing things to be found in this area.

What about persons living in this area posting "No parking", "Private Property", "No Trespassing" signs at various entrances to this area. Their very yards are encroached on public property - fences, shrubs and flowers, permanent type wall enclosures now exist, in some cases as much as 25 feet, on state owned, public property! This situation is abominable!

Needless to say, at this point, I felt compelled to write you, to let you know there are many of us here in Virginia Beach favoring the construction of an elementary school on this proposed site, it seems to me these opposing forces are letting their personal feelings generate a lot of ill will in our city. They've got a "good deal" down there - I can understand why they don't want it disturbed. I wish I could make use of the land behind my home in the manner these persons have in the land in front of, adjacent to, and behind their residences. It's incredible!

I strongly urge the Governor of Virginia to stand firm in the lease as negotiated by the State of Virginia and the City of Virginia Beach School Board. We've remained silent too long, citizens becoming increasingly alarmed over the actions of the group opposing this site are beginning to act, and I sincerely hope we're not too late! Mrs. C.E. Hitchcock, Jr.

Praises Astrology

To the Editor:

Suppose you may get a lot of letters complaining about "a lot of things". Mine is going to be different. I want to say how much I enjoy your newspaper and especially the Astro-Advice by Mr. Williams. I missed reading it last week and have wondered why it was not in there. However, am looking forward to this week and hope Mr. Williams Astro-Advice will be in there. I, being the wife of a Navy Man, have moved from city to city and state to state and never have I ever seen a newspaper you could write in about astrology. I've even bought extra copies of the drug store to send my friends as a number of them are Astrology fans and we know so little about it.

Keep up the excellent work for "us astrology fans" and the residents of your city which I feel a part of. Sincerely, Virginia M. Harton

Editor's Note: Mr. Williams has been involved in a number of projects lately which apparently have interfered with his column.

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

By W. A. Leavell, Ph. D.

Once a month find it necessary to gather up all the love notes the bills-people send me and do my best to pay them. What comes in and what should go out doesn't always balance for me but I do the best I can.

When this time of the month comes around my lovely wife and our children tread softly and refrain from asking for anything. They know this is not the time.

I have been known to raise my voice and even jump up and down and demand the most severe austerity.

I have been known to say such things as: "I am not made of money", "Money doesn't grow on trees" and even emphasize the point by saying a few naughty words.

Income and Outgo

Recently, when it was the time again, it was one of those months when income suffered a devastating drought while outgo received a flood.

The decision of who to pay and who to pass over got me down and I decided to stop for a while and read the paper.

The first article I read was one that set my teeth on edge. If we had a tree in our yard I think I would have gone right out and climbed to the very top and shouted obscene remarks about the injustice of it all.

$20 Million A Year

Did you know that Mr. and Mrs. Aristotle Socrates Onassis (Mrs. Onassis is the former first lady of our country and the widow of President John F. Kennedy) are living it up to the tune of twenty million dollars a year for personal expenses? So you don't misunderstand, that is $20,000,000 a year.

When you break that down, it comes out to the grand sum of $384,615.38 per week. For those of you who work by the hour and relate your expenses to how much an hour of labor brings in, that comes out to $9,615.38 per hour based on a 40-hour week. That is $160.25 per minute!

More Than Dream

How in the world can anyone spend twenty million a year just on personal living expenses? That is $54,794.54 each day, 365 days a year. That is so much money I can't dream up ways to account for it.

Well, it seems that they have 202 servants and it takes $1,393,800 a year just to pay them. They have eight residences on three continents and these costs $2,000,000 a year to keep up. Then you have to mention the little gifts Mr. Onassis showered on Jackie. These little trinkets amount to only $5,000,000 for the year. The rest of the $20,000,000 seems to have gone for the basic necessities of life. What a life!

My first thought was "Poor Mr. Onassis". What a time he must have once a month when he tried to make income meet outgo. Just when I started to feel sorry for him, I read where his income from shipping alone was estimated at a $50,000,000 a year.

Since he has several other industries he owns plus a lot of stocks, etc., his total income must be quite a pile.

Estimates of his personal wealth range from a minimum of $500 million to $1 billion.

When you stop and think about all that money and the style of living it buys, it makes you feel sorry for the former Czar of Russia and good old Cleopatra. They were the big spenders of their day and they didn't come anywhere near living on such a lavish scale.

Where does such money come from? How does one go about making $20 million a year? I can hardly count up that much less account for how anyone could make it.

I can't even figure out how to steal that much, much less make it fair and square.

Since Mr. Onassis was not born into great wealth, he made it and retained it somehow. Of course, he wasn't married to Jackie while he was making it and that must have been a big help.

With all that money, I wonder what he does once a month when it is time to pay the bills? When you have more than enough to pay everything, what can you say? What does he do at his wife about and what excuse can he have for saying naughty words? It must be boring.

I can't help but be a little green with envy at anyone having all that money but I have become so used to my once a month ritual that I would miss it.

When you have so much, values much change. When you can buy anything you want and not worry about the bill, it must take some of the pleasure out of life.

Oh well, I will never know for sure. The way my family spends money they will always stay ahead of my income. Way ahead.

POW Letter Suggested

At the request of a number of readers of the Virginia Beach Sun, the following letter is printed as a guide for those who wish to help our prisoners of war and those missing in action. The letter was drafted by the U.S. Naval Academy Alumni Association. Please sign your name, date and send the letter to: Concern for POW, Inc., P.O. Box 9117, San Diego, Calif. 92109.

(date)

The Honorable Ton Duc Thang
Democratic Republic of Vietnam
Hanoi, North Vietnam

As an American I would like to express my deep concern over your treatment of Prisoners of War.

Being a nation in the world community, you are obligated out of humanitarian considerations to afford those whom you hold the minimum standards of existence. Your ratification of the 1949 Geneva Conventions relative to the treatment of Prisoners of War requires you to:

- (1) permit neutral inspections of all prison camps;
- (2) publish a complete list of all men that you hold;
- (3) release the sick and wounded; and
- (4) allow a free flow of mail between the Prisoners of War and their families.

My fellow Americans share this grave concern over the desperate plight of the Prisoners of War, those Missing in Action, and their families.

Answers to Veto Sought by City

City Manager Roger M. Scott said Monday the city will seek answers from state agencies who vetoed the city's dredging of the Eastern Branch of the Lynnhaven River in an effort to reverse the Army Corp of Engineers application denial.

Scott termed the interference of other state agencies, particularly the state's Health Department, "pretty poor" and said their department had no business even considering the application, outside of the water quality problem.

A letter from Engineering Director E. C. Meredith to the Department of Conservation and Economic Development, later forwarded to the Corps of Engineers, said that "70 acres of existing oyster beds would be destroyed by the project and possibly additional beds would be affected."

If the area was dredged, Meredith said the channel "would open up desirable areas for the development of marinas, which would undoubtedly affect water quality in the area."

Meredith also discussed the marketing loss of shellfish to the area.

Other parties that contacted the conservation and economic development group were the Marine Resources Commission, which cited the fact that valuable oyster beds were in the path of the proposed dredging area, and the Virginia Department of Highways, which said it was planning for Old Dominion Road to cross the Eastern Branch and that the City's work would conflict.

In light of these recommendations, Director M. M. Sutherland said his department would object to any dredging of the branch.

But Scott said he couldn't understand what the health department was doing involving itself in the financial application of oysters or concerning itself with cost-benefit ratios.

He said it was not their business to concern themselves with such matters.

"The fact that the oysters themselves are going to be removed is what interests me," Scott said, referring to information that in most areas there are no oysters.

He said the city would attempt to negotiate with the state agencies in an effort to iron out the difficulties, and that Community Services Director William Fleming would be in charge of the city's discussion.

Dividend Comes with New Houses

Larasan Realty Corp. has received favorable response to a new mortgage dividend plan recently introduced, exclusively with the company.

Under the plan the builders of homes in Mayfair, Green Run, Ridgely and Wellington Woods pay a portion of the interest on the whole mortgage for a full two years. According to a spokesman for Larasan, the builders cannot raise the price of the houses to compensate for this because VA and FHA won't allow them.

"Buyers can get as much as $25 a month on an expensive house. It's perfectly legitimate. A bank will mail a check each month for the amount. The builders are under no bond. Really, what it amounts to is the money being set aside in escrow."

"All an individual has to do is to be a genuine buyer and qualify for a home. The people are responding very favorably to it."

2 Drug Charges Dropped

Municipal Court Judge P. B. White nolle prossed two drug charges filed against Susan A. Cummins resulting from her arrest on Nov. 6.

Miss Cummins, 19, whose residence is listed as the Ball Hall Motel, was arrested by police at 22nd Street and Atlantic Avenue with several capsules in her possession which were thought to contain mescaline and meth amphetamines.

However an analysis of the material determined they were sleeping pills and protein gelatin which had been prescribed for her.

She had been confined to the Virginia Beach City Jail for 14 days until officials were able to obtain the results of their analysis of the capsules.

She is still awaiting court appearance on a charge of possession of hashish which resulted from her arrest Aug. 6 at a dwelling in the 100 block of Kentucky Avenue.

Zally Joins Local Agency

Kenneth Zally of Virginia Beach has joined the staff of Matthias & Redmond Advertising, according to a recent announcement by Russell J. Redmond, president. Zally will act as Account Executive for the local agency.

A native of Chicago, Zally was assistant to the Marketing Director of McDonald's Corporation until he joined Matthias & Redmond. His responsibilities with McDonald's included the implementation of national radio and TV themes in local market areas and the preparation of point of purchase materials and direct mail pieces.

Fuller took top place, winning a color television, for collecting 32 new memberships for the chamber. Other winners were Perry, second, Stroud, third, and Ashburner and Lassiter, who tied for fourth. The drive netted 163 new members worth $10,609.

3 Drug Arrests Made

Three arrests were made for violations of drug abuse laws in the city Sunday morning.

Officials said Joe L. Stackman, 18, of Salisbury, Md., and a 16-year-old juvenile were arrested at a dwelling in the 300 block of 25th Street. Narcotic Squad investigators said the pair were found sitting at a table rolling cigarettes from a substance identified as marijuana. Both were charged with possession of marijuana.

Officer G.D. Roland of the 2nd Police Precinct charged Michael I. Waddington, 20, of the 2700 block of Broad Bay Road with possession of marijuana.

Roland reportedly stopped Waddington's auto for a traffic violation in the 2200 block of Great Neck Road and requested Waddington's drivers license and the vehicles' registration. As Waddington searched for his license, Roland observed a small tin-foil packet which allegedly contained a burnt substance and seeds resembling marijuana.

Tail

Mrs. Stelmets says that isn't her intent.

"My only interest is saving our trees. If enterprising people or organizations make money from the collection of paper, that's their business."

Her main problem, now that she realizes the people of Virginia Beach are concerned about conservation and pollution, is getting the project organized to function efficiently.

"There are a number of organizations collecting paper—Girls Scouts, St. Gregory's Catholic Church, for instance—but there is no central pick-up point or no certain time to collect papers." The project needs one organization to get it really going.

Meanwhile, until some group comes to the housewife's aid, she will continue to answer the telephone to "Are you the lady?" and try to give helpful information to those citizens interested in the project.

Murder Charged

Police officials say they have charged John Bland, 39, with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of his wife Ellarene, 35, at the couple's home in the 200 block of Sykes Avenue early Saturday.

Investigators said the shooting followed a domestic argument shortly after midnight. Bland has been released on bond pending the outcome of court proceedings. A preliminary hearing in Municipal Court has been set for Dec. 18.

Two Cities Agree On Water, Sewer System

City Council Monday gave its approval to development of a proposed two-city water and solid waste disposal authority between Norfolk and Virginia Beach, paving the way for an end to both city's pressing problems.

In presenting the proposal to council, City manager Roger M. Scott said the respective situations of Virginia Beach having to worry about where water would come from and Norfolk wondering where it could get rid of its trash were "thorns in the sides of the two cities," and got the needed approval.

Friday, Scott and Norfolk City Manager Thomas Maxwell announced that after months of negotiation they had reached agreement on establishment of the authority.

In a joint announcement, Scott said the cities have agreed to allow the authority to purchase the respective facilities held by both cities.

Scott said the authority would supply both cities the services at uniform rates under contract that would support revenue bonds necessary to purchase the facilities.

But each city would control and operate its own water distribution system and determine rates and policies for the services to customers within its jurisdiction, he said.

Each city would also be allowed to maintain its own solid waste collection system.

Scott said the two have agreed that water lines and equipment owned by Norfolk but located in Virginia Beach are worth $4,877,000, and that the city of Virginia Beach should be allowed to purchase the equipment and system.

Scott said the development of an authority such as the one proposed would be the only way the two cities could continue to develop smoothly and meet the constantly increasing needs of both cities.

"It would be mutually beneficial for the two cities to establish the proposed authority to provide economical solutions to providing these two essential services to the two cities," he said.

"The recent emphasis and public concern on the problems of pollution and ecology make it imperative that every metropolitan area devise some vehicle for the long term solution of these problems," Scott said.

The finalization of the agreement is some time off, Scott said, and would not speculate as to when the formal agreement would be ready for presentation.

Rev. Plonk Selected

The Rev. William McGuire Plonk, pastor of Bow Creek Presbyterian Church, has been chosen as a Tower Room Scholar at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, and will be in residence Nov. 30-Dec. 11.

The Tower Room Scholars plan, made possible by a foundation grant, was begun in the realization that pastors need not only to study at home but also to have occasional opportunity for extended research, a chance to reflect and interpret meanings, and expert guidance on a seminary campus.

The Tower Room program gets the pastors away from the schedules that make systematic study difficult to achieve. Each of the group of 12 to 15 engages in his own intensive study in a "Tower Room" of the Seminary library.

Seascape to help home

The nine guilds belonging to the Union of Guilds of St. Mary's Infant Home are organized to give the children of the home the "frills" not provided in the budget.

For instance, one guild, when the guilds were first started more than two years ago, donated a full length mirror when they found the home had no mirror. Another guild painted the inside of the home.

There are three guilds in Virginia Beach. St. Cecilia Guild is currently selling chances on a painting by Virginia Beach artist Ruth Laakso to raise money for the home.

Mrs. Laakso donated the painting, a colorful seascape, after discussing the home with Sister Ann Griffin of St. Nicholas Catholic Church while at a party. It is valued at $350. Second prize is two hair settings.

Chances are 25 cents or five for a dollar. Mrs. E. B. Cox is project chairman, and chances may be purchased from her or any guild member.

The drawing will be on Dec. 2 at the Union meeting.

Although the home was founded by nuns, children of all faiths and colors are accepted. The home now has a professional director, but it is still staffed by nuns as well as nurses and aides.

Many of the children at the home are infants who stay only a short time until they are adopted. Others are children who have been removed from their homes by the courts. Still others are brain-damaged "exceptional" children who are kept at the home until they are nine years old. There is no other such facility for them in the Tidewater area.

A licensed home, it is supported by agencies placing children, the United Communities Fund and some parents help pay for the care of their children. The number of children varies from 40 to 50.

"We spread good will for St. Mary's," said Mrs. W. H. Black, president of the Union of Guilds. "We want it to be a magic word. We don't want it to be money making."

Each month guild members bring articles they have made, such as dresses, pinafores, pajamas and bed pads, to the meeting. They are concerned with the year-round needs of the children rather than holidays when so much is done for them by service clubs. However, they say there is never enough individual attention from volunteers at the home, especially from men.

The home will have an open house from 1-4 p.m. Dec. 6 sponsored by the Auxiliary Board of St. Mary's. The public is invited.

"They've never refused a child," said Mrs. Black.

One windmill and 24 pictures later

The nine-year-old went on an all-day trip to Jamestown and Williamsburg with all the fourth grade classes last week.

When they got back at 6 p.m. (on the dot) after leaving at 8 a.m., I asked her what kind of trip they had.

"It was great. I got two colas."

She had been warned way in advance by her teacher and her parents that she was not to dare break out in the usual rash she has when she gets excited. She didn't, in fact, she didn't even get bus sick.

However, she said there was one little girl who couldn't go aboard the Susan Consonant (sic), the replica of one of the three sailing ships on which the settlers arrived, because she was afraid she might get seasick.

Before she left, the nine-year-old told me to be sure and pack plenty for her to eat. She had a sandwich, cheese sticks, raisins and a cream-filled cake plus the colas and two candy bars that one of the chaperones handed out. When she got home she announced she didn't want any supper. By the time we had driven the half mile to the house from the school she had changed her mind, however, and even asked for seconds.

She started out with two rolls of 12 pictures each and used them both up before she got to Williamsburg. I'm afraid to get them developed and find out what she took 24 pictures of.

What seemed to impress her most about the whole day, though, besides the colas, was a picture of Pocahontas she saw—that and the discovery that the buses had bathrooms on them.

Really, it's the bus drivers I feel sorry for. There's no telling how many loads of fourth graders they drive to Jamestown and Williamsburg each year. Could you stand a busload of some 30-40 nine-year-olds on a trip like that?

Never yet, how about chaperoning a bunch like that. Out nine-year-olds and some of the kids got lost in the maze behind the Governor's Palace at Williamsburg. How could you ever round up some kids once they were loose in a shrubby maze?

And the buses came yesterday morning. The nine-year-old was on one of them. "Mama, there's something I was supposed to tell you about the trip. I saw a windmill too." I still haven't figured out the significance of that.

Mrs. Tynes with a plate which she describes as being one of her most difficult pieces to paint. Behind her are some of the other pieces she has done.

Her days aren't long enough

Allie (Mrs. Robert) Tynes says she paints everything from portraits to picket fences.

"I paint things I like to live with."

Although she has been painting since she was a child in North Carolina, she said that many of her friends here are surprised to discover that she is an artist. That's because when she and her husband were operating a motel-apartment complex on 22nd Street she was too busy to paint.

Mrs. Tynes, who formerly taught art in the Suffolk schools, concentrates on oil painting and china painting now. The methods, however, are just opposite she said. With oil painting she starts with the dark colors and then paints the highlights. In china painting she starts with the light and goes to dark.

She has quite a collection of paintings, both oil and china. Last week, at her daughter-in-law's suggestion, she held an open house to display her work for some of her friends and fellow members of Princess Anne Woman's Club of Virginia Beach of which she is a past president. In addition to individual plates, cups and saucers, tea sets and vases and pitchers, she has completed several sets of eight-piece dinner services.

Her workshop is her kitchen. In addition to an easel for oil paintings, she has a kiln for firing her china. She is quick to point out that china painting is not related to ceramics. "Ceramics is a craft; this is an art."

China painting is a lengthy process. First Mrs. Tynes draws a design on the porcelain piece she is using. Some are made up and others are copied. Then a light coat of paint is applied, and it is fired. The paint is built up with another coat, and the background is fired. "It usually takes three firings." Accent colors are added last.

She added, though, that oil painting has one advantage over china painting. "You can always change a painting; you can't the china."

Mrs. Tynes, who has lived here some 30 years, said that one of her two sons told her he was glad she learned to paint early so she has something to keep her busy since she has retired. She says she feels sorry for retired persons who don't have enough to do.

"The days are not long enough for me," she said with conviction.

Sec. of Year to be named

The Virginia Beach Chapter, National Secretaries Association, will select its "Secretary of the Year" at a dinner meeting on December 1, 6:30 p.m., White Heron Restaurant on Laskin Road.

A. James De Belle, director of the Department of Economic Development for the City of Virginia Beach, will be the speaker for this special occasion.

Area secretaries and their guests are invited to attend. Please call 427-4541 or 428-6998 for reservations by Nov. 27.

Mrs. Gregg and Mrs. Liles watch to make sure Mrs. Robert Atherhold, left, signs in the right place for a Field Day committee.

Field Day plans made early

Everett School Parents believe in planning ahead.

Last week a coffee was held at the home of Mrs. Sherman Liles to plan the Field Day which is set for next May 8. Mrs. Liles is co-chairman, and Mrs. Forcher Gregg is chairman.

Although the general theme of the Field Day is a family-type picnic, complete with relay, sack races, etc., the public is welcome too. It will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Virginia Beach Junior High School. Proceeds will go to the school building fund.

Included at the Field Day will be a number of booths, a raffle and a clothesline art show. The art will be done by Everett School students and it will be judged then placed on sale.

There will be a printed program of events to show what is scheduled at what time during the day. All students and parents will participate.

Mr. and Mrs. Algy Cohen (he's president) with Mrs. Mason Gamage (he's on the board of directors) and Gretchen Pares, behind, at the Capes Beach and Cabana Club and Bay Harbour Club combined party last Saturday night. The dinner dance was the first event of the season for the two clubs and provided a good get acquainted evening for all.

Training table meals should gain extra points for cook

The snare drums begin their slow roll, battle pennants snap in the breeze, two rows of armored behemoths face one another. A small skirmish force moves forward to meet the enemy. Thermopylae? Agincourt? Verdun? No; it's NFL football, and more than 31 million Americans watch the pros battle it out every Sunday in 24 cities, on television or at the stadium.

During the official sixty minutes of playing time there will be brute force, incredible strategy and counter-strategy, and vicious choreography.... the June Taylor Dancers of crunch. But all the action won't be on the field. For whether at home or at the stadium, there will be mass observance of certain rituals which are as much a part of the game as the players themselves. Pre-game snacks and hors d'oeuvres will be set up on millions of coffee tables and tailgates. Half-time calls for another round of goodies, while post-game supper sustains armchair quarterbacks everywhere.

Since women enjoy the game as much as men, it's the wise hostess who prepares the victuals in advance—leaving playing time free for watching. From pre-game strategy snacks to post-game casseroles that only need heating, kitchen quarterbacks know all the new plays.

When you come off the bench, your culinary game plan should offer a few surprises, too. You'll score more points if you use NFL Training Table Foods—the same basics that the players eat for nutrition and energy. If you're making an afternoon of football-watching, you'll want two types of foods: snacks throughout the game, of course, plus one hearty meal, served at half-time or post-game, to revive flagging fans.

Build your menu around a buffet—everything prepared in advance. Your surefire specialty could be Ham with Purple Plum Sauce and a crowd-pleasing Cornerback Coffee Pie—or go the stew route, with Blarney Pie and Peanut Butter Ring. For a good go-together drink, try new Mocha Moo.

And if that doesn't make the skeptics decide that you really do dig football—well, you can always keep them quiet with another serving of post-game supper!

HAM WITH PURPLE PLUM SAUCE

1 Hormen Curl/ 81 Ham
1 can (1 lb. 13 oz.) purple plums
2 Tsp. cornstarch
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. cinnamon
1/8 tsp. allspice
1 Tsp. lemon juice
1 Tsp. Chiffon Soft-Type Margarine

Cook boneless ham according to package directions. May be served hot or cold. When ready to serve, drain plums and reserve syrup. Cut plums into small pieces. In a saucepan mix cornstarch, salt, cinnamon and allspice. Gradually stir in syrup. Boil one minute, stirring constantly. Stir in lemon juice, Chiffon and plums. Transfer sauce to gravy boat and spoon over slices of ham. Makes 3 1/2 cups.

CORNERBACK COFFEE PIE

1 frozen unbaked pie shell, 9"
1 Tsp. Soft margarine
1 Tsp. unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup cold double-strength Chase & Sanborn Electric Perk Coffee
3/4 cup hot double-strength Chase & Sanborn Electric Perk Coffee
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup heavy cream whipped

Defrost pie shell and coat with margarine. Prick crust well with a fork on bottom and sides and bake according to package directions. Cool thoroughly. Soften gelatin in cold Chase & Sanborn Electric Perk Coffee. Pour hot coffee into a bowl. Stir in gelatin mixture to dissolve. Stir in sugar. Set bowl of gelatin mixture firmly in bowl of ice. Beat until light and fluffy and mixture holds a soft peak. Fold in whipped cream. Pile mixture into cooled pastry shell. Chill until firm. If desired, garnish with sweetened whipped cream. Makes one 9" pie.

FOOD FOR FOOTBALL FANS is hot and hearty. New ideas, based on NFL Training Table Foods, include Blarney Pie and banana cream-filled Peanut Butter Ring.

BLARNEY PIE

6 cups shredded cabbage
7 Tsp. Chiffon Soft-Type Margarine
20 Krispy Crackers
2 cans (1 1/2 lbs. ea.) Dinty Moore Beef Stew
Salt and Pepper to taste

Cook cabbage in salted water until just tender. Drain. Toss with 3 Tsp. Chiffon. Season to taste. Sauté crushed crackers with remaining margarine. Ladle hot stew into a large, shallow casserole. Top with a cabbage border garnished with cracker crumbs. To prepare in advance, assemble in casserole without topping and refrigerate. Reheat 10 min. in 300 oven, add topping and serve. Serves 6.

PEANUT BUTTER RING

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 1/3 cups Domino or Spreeles Confectioners' 10x Powdered Sugar
3 Tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. ground cloves
1/2 tsp. powdered ginger
1 cup milk
1/2 cup Chiffon Soft-Type Margarine
1/2 cup Peter Pan smooth Peanut Butter
2 eggs

Blend dry ingredients thoroughly. Add milk, margarine and eggs. Mix at low speed with electric mixer until moistened, then mix for one minute or mix by hand with spoon until thoroughly blended. Pour batter into a two-quart ring mold brushed with margarine. Bake at 350 for 30-35 minutes. Cool slightly then remove from pan. When thoroughly cooled, frost top of cake with peanut butter frosting.* To serve, fill center with banana cream.* (*See recipe.)

The Welcome Wagon hostess can help you over the anxiety of getting acquainted in new surroundings and make you feel at "Home Sweet Home," again. She will bring gifts and vital information from your neighborhood business and civic leaders. Call 627-5685

PEANUT BUTTER FROSTING

3/4 cup Domino or Spreeles Confectioners' 10x Powdered Sugar, sifted
1/8 tsp. powdered ginger
1/2 Tsp. Chiffon Soft-Type Margarine
1/2 Tsp. Peter Pan Crunchy Peanut Butter
3 to 4 Tsp. light cream

Blend sugar and ginger. Add margarine and peanut butter. Add enough cream for spreading consistency. Sprinkle top of cake with crushed peanuts, if desired.

BANANA CREAM

1 large Chiquita Banana
1 Tsp. lemon juice
1/2 pint whipping cream
Domino or Spreeles Confectioners' 10x Powdered Sugar
Slice bananas and toss with lemon juice. Whip the cream and add sugar to taste. Fold banana into the whipped cream and fill the Peanut Butter Ring.

MOCHA MOO

4 cups hot Chase & Sanborn Electric Perk Coffee
2 Tsp. Chocolate Flavor Ovaltine
1/2 cup medium cream
4 Tsp. Domino or Spreeles Granulated Sugar
1 tsp. vanilla

Combine all ingredients and serve in NFL Hall of Fame mugs.

would work beautifully as a temporary college," Dr. McCoy said.
The city has appropriated a site in the Green Run Farm area for a community college to serve this city, but there are no funds for buildings.
"The last General Assembly provided operating funds for a college in Virginia Beach but failed to allocate money to build the necessary buildings to house the institution," McCoy explained.
This lack of financial support from the state has brought the community college program in this area to a virtual halt. The only community college-type facility presently available in the entire Tidewater area is the one McCoy represents. Formerly known as Frederick College, the Tidewater Community College is located just outside Portsmouth in Nansemond County. It is scheduled to consist of four campuses, one to serve each Tidewater city, but so far only one campus exists.
"Our complaint with the state is not so much that we are not getting enough money for our college, for believe me, no one is, but that Virginia Beach, and Tidewater, is not getting its fair share of appropriations from the Virginia Community College System," he points out that even though Virginia Beach is the third largest city in the state, "we have not a trace of college activity in the immediate area."
"We will have more than 2,000 graduating seniors in 1971 who are potentially college students. These people will have to leave the city if they are to continue their education," McCoy said.

He suggested that the city might get national coverage by giving away vacations in Virginia Beach as prizes on shows such as the Dating Game and other quiz programs.
The cost is low and the coverage high and wide, he said.
The primary areas for concentration in advertising are Canada and the Northeastern United States, according to the firm, Edmonds said the target market of 14 states contains 38 per cent of the country's population, the majority of them prone to travel.
With few exceptions, the presentation was well received. Said Robert H. Callis, Jr., "There are only one or two things. First, it's not the Danish lady but the Norwegian lady," referring to a radio advertisement mistake, and "second, I don't know if anybody has tried to eat a blue marlin steak, but I'd be a little reluctant to attempt it."
Red-faced but pleased, Edmonds explained later that the agency had only 17 days to put together a $7,000 speculative package, including the radio ads recorded in Memphis and television spots. The newspaper and magazine ads, he said, were done in the firm's offices.
Said one city official, "If this is what they can do in 17 days, think what they can accomplish when they have the time to work on the campaign."

Beach Golfer Competes

John D. Haralson of the Cavalier Golf and Yacht Club, Virginia Beach, will be among more than 150 top amateur golfers from throughout the United States who will compete during the Thanksgiving week-end in the 1970 St. Lucie Flamingo Country Club Amateur Invitational Championship.

The tournament is a 72-hole medal play event featuring nightly entertainment by many of Nashville, Tennessee's top recording stars.

Called "the tournament where everybody has fun," the competition is divided into men's and women's flights according to handicap, giving everyone a chance to win. In addition, a championship division will play from scratch.

Adding to the house party atmosphere at the resort will be singing star Bobby Goldsboro, plus Ronnie Prophet and his fabulous one-man show and the popular sounds of the Nashville Brass.

The tournament is played over the St. Lucie Country Club's two renowned 18-hole championship courses, the 6,547-yard Seaside and 7,010-yard Simms. This is the ninth consecutive year a top amateur tournament has been played here over the Thanksgiving weekend.

Patriots Close Season

With only 12 seconds left on the clock, First Colonial's Mike Branch lofted a 10-yard touchdown pass to Clinton Bradshaw to lift the Patriots to a 26-20 win over Granby in the last Virginia Beach football game of the season.

The game, played Saturday night because of wet grounds the night before, left the Patriots with an impressive 7-3 season and provided a happy ending to a season that started out slowly. Granby, 4-4-1, gets only four days' rest before meeting unbeaten, top-ranked Maury on Thanksgiving Day.

The Comets carried an 8-6 lead into the locker room at the half on a one-yard run by Pat Orem and a conversion pass caught by Dave Meyer. The Patriots' first half scoring was limited to a spectacular 38-yard gallop by Wilton Cowell. A conversion run failed.

First Colonial gained a 12-8 lead in the third quarter when Cowell returned a Granby punt 65 yards for paydirt. The Comets came back with a 15-yard dash by Buddy Walker and Jack Pickler hit Meyer for another six points after the Patriots had gone in front 20-14 on Bradshaw's two-yard plunge.

Other Virginia Beach high school football action ended a week earlier.

Over 104,700,000 motor vehicles were traveling U. S. streets and highways by the end of 1969. Of the total, some 86,560,000 were passenger cars, according to the Virginia Department of Highways.

Ricky Futrell, Freddie Evans, Steve Cur-rin, Richard Davis and Bobby Gimbroni.

Mike Raper & John Hargrove Kellam High Stadium was filled with happy, victorious and muddy seniors and saddened, defeated, but equally muddy juniors as the senior girls 12-6 in Kellam's Sixth Annual Powder Puff Gridiron Classic, Saturday.

The game started well for the seniors. After forcing the juniors to punt on a fourth down play, the seniors got the ball for the first down on their own 37 yard line. After the huddle, break and lining up, senior quarterback Wendy Howell suddenly stood up. Without calling time-out, Wendy asked center Roni Fecundo to hand her the ball, which Roni did in a hinking movement. Wendy then walked toward the sidelines shouting something about it being "the wrong ball", and suddenly she broke around the side for a 67 yard TD without any pursuit. Referee John Cooke ruled it legal, and the seniors had the first score. The next time Wendy handed the ball, she scored again, but a penalty nullified the play. Shortly after, Wendy broke off for a 47-yard run and the second senior touchdown.

Hobie Cats to Sail Fri.-Sat.

The First Annual Turkey Hobie Cat 14 Regatta will be held Friday and Saturday in Broad Bay, starting both days at noon.

The event is being sponsored by F. Ferebee Trafton of One Design Sailboats.

A skipper's meeting will be held at the Mariner Motel at 11 a.m. Friday and registration will be held prior to the meeting. Registrants will be charged a nominal fee.

After the early fireworks, the game resulted in a battle of juniors and seniors versus a common enemy—the huge mudhole in the middle of the field. Much of the spectator interest switched from the graceful plopping of the girls to the definitely un-feminine antics of the cheerleaders and Drill Team.

At half-time, the procession of queen hopefuls came onto the field. Craig "Bubbles" Davis, a senior, won the crown as the candidates wisely avoided the free-for-all that resulted among the members of the Drill Team and the cheerleaders. In the second half the seniors could not pull off another score as their game centered around the running of Wendy, Joella Caldwell and Bobette Beers. The juniors finally got going as their much publicized passing game materialized in the form of a touchdown pass from Terri Sawyer to Debbie Payne. An outside kick resulted in the juniors nearly pulling off a tie, but four passes later the clock ran with a final score, seniors 12 and juniors 6. The general consensus is that the N.F.L. has nothing to fear—yet.

If all printers were determined not to print anything till they were sure it would offend nobody, there would be very little printed. Benjamin Franklin

Quarterback Terri Sawyer carries the ball for the Juniors.

First Extramural Winners Announced

The Virginia Beach Public Schools, through the Department of Health and Physical Education, has announced the winner of the first extramurals for the school year.

The events were held at six schools Saturday. Each member of a winning team and each individual winner will be recognized at the individual school.

The girls soccer tournament was held at Kempsville Junior High with First Colonial defeating Kempsville Junior in the finals. Members of the First Colonial team were Viola Etheridge, Cheri Lorden, Nancy Mazzeo, Joan Jugo, Vanessa Moody, Vickie Hoggard, Sharon Adams, Mary Snyder, Laura Hauck, Tina Slagle, Charnel Etheridge, Chris Lemmon, and Lynn Stanton.

The beginning field hockey playoffs were held at Cox High School with the host school winning by beating Plaza Junior in the final game. Members of the winning Cox team were Valerie Brockett, Peggy Major, Carol Steiman, Kathy Rineker, Linda Hall, Jerri St. Ouge, Joanne Gilbert, Karen Garrett, Lucy Garcia, Sally Watson, Ann Guthrie, Ellen Sargent, Kim Opalio and Becky York.

The girls advanced field hockey tournament was held at First Colonial with Princess Anne defeating Cox in the finals by a score of 1-0. Members of the Princess Anne team were Lisa Grant, Karen Venable, Francis Badonsky, Kathy Kretz, Debbie Bulger, Debbie Clark, Gina Garcia, Vicki Teets, Laura Baker, Helena Nichols, Carolyn Williams, Debbie Vick, Debbie Moore, Donna Tignor, and Nan Dick.

The ninth grade boys soccer tournament was won by First Colonial over Cox in the final game being played at Kellam. The speedball results were held at Kempsville High with the winners from Cox defeating Princess Anne 7-4 in the finals. Members of the Cox team were David Brumfield, Jimmy Basnight, Billy Newell, Tom Hill, Randy Robinson, Luther Cuffee, Randy Latimer, Bill Bennett, Mike Cardwell, Robin Watson, Tom Dorey.

Steve Prevette, Ray White, and Howard Lewis.

The tenth grade touch football tournament was held at Princess Anne with the winners coming from Bayside High. The championship game was won in overtime by the score of 12-6 over the team from Princess Anne. The winning Bayside team players were Sylvester Carrington, John Mervet, James Edwards, Jeff Jeter, Rich Wilson, Herbie Hawkins, Bill Cooper, Kim Bassett, and Kenny Harrell.

Winners in the Tennis Tournament held at Princess Anne were as follows: Mike Skalt-sounds of Kempsville High in the singles and Brooks Williams and David Swingle of Cox in the doubles.

The next set of extramurals will be held at the completion of the first semester and will include the activities contained in the second unit of instruction.

Christmas Tree Planned

The Living Christmas Tree, so popular with Girl Scouts and their parents last year, will be held again at Princess Anne High School Stadium on Dec. 20 it was announced at the monthly meeting of Girl Scout leaders of Linkhorn Neighborhood.

Each Girl Scout and Brownie will bring a can of food which will go to needy families. Troops are donating food for Thanksgiving baskets also.

Two new Brownie troops and one new Junior troop have been formed in the Neighborhood. The troops are all holding their meetings at W.T. Cooke Elementary School. Any girls interested in joining should contact the Troop Organizer, Susie Scheer, at 428-6951. There is always a need for adult leaders too.

The next neighborhood meeting will be held at First Presbyterian Church on Dec. 10. Everyone is asked to bring a few of their favorite holiday snacks.

Skip the pity. It's your business they want.

They deserve it, too.

Not because the places that employ handicapped people are doing a good thing. (Which, of course, they are.)

But because they also do good work.

You see, "sheltered workshops" are establishments run for people with various kinds of disabilities.

However, a "disability" often hides a lot of other kinds of "ability." So sheltered workshops that create jobs for the handicapped do just as good work as the more usual places of business.

The State-Federal vocational rehabilitation program wants to let you know this. We call our program HURRAH—which stands for "Help Us Reach & Rehabilitate America's Handicapped."

The HURRAH program invites you to send us your name and address—without obligation, of course—if you might be interested in letting a sheltered workshop compete for work that your firm farms out.

What the sheltered workshops are asking from you as a businessman is simply a chance to bid on your work, along with other firms.

Naturally, you'll get a nice feeling if you give a sheltered workshop that chance.

But that's not the point. The point is, you'll find they do nice work. Send your name and address to: WORKSHOP, Box 1200, Washington, D.C. 20013.

A WEEKLY PICTORIAL

HAPPY THANKSGIVING

STORYBOOK CHARACTERS

GLIDER PILOT AT 14

Above

Trantwood Elementary School saw all kinds of story-book characters parading thru the halls last week. The occasion was Children's Book Week and the characters were students dressed in the costume of their favorite book character for a contest which was held at the school. CINDY BOWMAN was Meg, EILEEN COAKLEY was Gretel Brinker and JACKIE HASKILL was Jiminy Cricket. More pictures on pages 8 and 9.

Above Left

IN SIGHT wants to wish all of our readers a safe and happy Thanksgiving. This old Tom who makes his home on MR. CECIL FLANAGAN'S farm at Pungo, won't have a very happy one though, cause even though he probably won't be anyone's Thanksgiving dinner this year many of his girl friends will.

Left

DON VINSON, JR. made his first solo flight in a glider Sunday. DON, a freshman at Bayside High School, has been interested in sailplanes for about two years but could not solo until he became 14 years old. Here DON and his instructor JACK FULGHUM, wait for the tow plane to take up slack. See pages 2 and 3 for more pictures.

SOARING IS FOR THE BIRDS --

DONALD VINSON, JR., son of MR. & MRS. DONALD VINSON of N. Witchduck Road, is only 14 years old but he's doing something that only a handful of people, in this country, have ever done, DONALD is learning to fly sailplanes. The IN SIGHT photographer visited with DONALD and his friends in the Tidewater Soaring Society, Inc., at South Norfolk Airport Saturday to get these pictures.

Right

DONALD and his instructor, JACK FULGHUM, check over the clubs two place sailplane before going up for a lesson.

Here the sailplane is just leaving the ground and has left the "wing-man", MIKE ERICKSON, behind.

-AND SAILPLANES

The Diamant, even with her sleekness, looks ungainly and out of place being towed down the runway but---

The Tidewater Soaring Society's two sailplanes are in the foreground of this picture of South Norfolk Airport. There are only two other soaring clubs in Virginia, one in Roanoke and the other in Lexington. The Tidewater Club has thirty members who pay only for towing fees. To become a glider pilot requires the applicant to pass a written examination administered by the Federal Aviation Agency, a check ride by an F.A.A. inspector and ten hours of flying time. To solo a student must have made thirty-five glides. DON VINSON 14, made his first solo flight Sunday after these pictures were taken.

---In the air she assumes all the gracefulness of a huge bird and soars quietly with only the whoosh of wind over her airfoils to disturb the silence.

Press Facilities

Members of the Browne Scout Troop 280 toured the facilities of the Beach Publishing Corporation recently.

They were quite interested in the typesetting equipment which perforates computer tape for printing the text of the Virginia Beach Sun and Insight. At the machines are MELISSA JONES and KATHY SMITH. MRS. FRED HOCHMUTH is troop leader and MRS. JOHN HENDRIKSEN is Asst. Leader.

MIKE RAPER explains plates, rollers, fountains, ink and paper used on the offset press which is used to print six newspapers.

MEXICAN SHOP

SANDRA HOLLAND is a young lady who has faith in Virginia Beach. There is a move afoot to get more Beach merchants to stay open year round and bring shoppers to the beachfront. SANDRA has bought the Mexican Shop at 206 23rd Street and plans to keep the shop open year round. She has a fine line of native crafts and a pretty smile for everyone. We wish her well and hope that other merchants will follow her lead.

Second Annual Home Crafts Show

The Second Annual Home Crafts Show and Sale will be held at the Dome December 4, 5, and 6th. JIM MATHIAS, manager of the Dome, arranged for some of the exhibitors to set up their wares for the IN SIGHT photographer. MRS. GLADYS CADDY displays some of her handmade jewelry and lapidary work. MRS. CADDY cuts and polishes slab gem stone and also tumble polishes stones to leave them in their natural shapes.

CHIEF and MRS. H.D. STACY are shown here with daughter, KATHY, 18 months, and some of their home-crafted candles. The STACY'S make long burning scented candles in all shapes and sizes.

MARSHA CHENMAN is only 13 years old but she'll have her own booth at the Home Crafts show. MARSHA says she has a little bit of several things. Included in MARSHA'S booth will be articles imbedded in resin, key rings, beads and rings, 'modpodge', and decorated brandy snuffers.

MRS. JOHN E. CROCKFORD and her husband make leaded glass mobiles, candle holders and decorations. MRS. CROCKFORD explained that the glass is cut to the desired shape and edges smoothed. The lead is then molded around the glass and the joints soldered.

MRS. CHARLES TODD (PAULINE), Master Accredited Judge, presented a program before the Federation of Garden Clubs of Norfolk & Vicinity. The theme of her program, which featured Christmas design and flower arranging, was "Christmans All Through Your House".

Want an unusual pet? The Virginia Beach SPCA gets some unusual ones from time to time for which to find homes. At present, Pepl LaPew, a four month old deodorized skunk, is seeking a home. Pepl is very gentle, having been raised in a home, and will make a fine pet. Virginia law does not allow wild animals to be kept as pets but in Pepl's case, since he was raised as a pet, permission has been granted.

Creative Costumes Promote Book Fair

The students of Trantwood Elementary School proved last week that they have been doing their reading lessons. In conjunction with National Children's Book Week, they held a book fair and costume contest. The INSIGHT photographer visited the school and took pictures of some of the winners.

It took two youngsters, MARY ANNE STURTRIDGE and SHARON ELLIS to make up on of the alltime favorites to children's stories--Black Beauty. KAREN ST. ONGE is Molly Pitcher, ARLENE LAMB came as Pocohantas and ELIZABETH FUCELLA was a grandfather clock.

These three young men posed with a couple of other story-book characters. Blackbeard is really young MIKE KARANGALEN, BRUCE GORE is the Cat in Hat and CHRIS DE HART is Johnny Applesseed.

Even though the "Great Pumpkin" didn't show, again this year, for Charlie Brown he did come to the Trantwood book fair in the person of PAIGE SEARLE. PAULA COVILL was Old Mother Hubbard and TOMMY JORDAN was Captain Crook.

From Black Beard

Peter Pan flew in as DEBBIE DRISCOLL and Mrs. Piggy Wiggly as JULIA ANKENY, J.V. SCHNURBUSCH was Yankee Doodle and ANGELA KEEL was a pretty Raggedy Ann.

Promoted to Captain

COMMANDER VIRGIL J. LEMMON, who is presently the aircraft maintenance officer at Naval Air Station Oceana, started his career as a seaman and was recently selected for the rank of captain. His selection came two years ahead of the normally allotted time. CDR. LEMMON is the first man ever selected for captain from the aeronautical maintenance duty officer designator.

CDR. LEMMON has been associated with aviation maintenance since 1943 when he was an aviation mechanic. He made chief petty officer in less than four years and in 1953 received his commission. At age 35 he was the oldest ensign in the Navy.

LIEUTENANT COMMANDER JOSEPH H. CYR, JR., U.S. Navy, was recently awarded the Vietnamese Navy's Staff Service Medal First Class. The presentation was made on behalf of REAR ADMIRAL TRAN VAN CHON, Vietnamese Navy chief of naval operations, during ceremonies held at his Saigon headquarters. The 38-year-old Lieutenant commander was cited for his outstanding efforts while serving as an analyst of operational information on the staff of the commander of U.S. naval forces in Vietnam during the past year.

Jet Age Holds Attention of Fifth Graders

The fifth grades at W.T. Cook Elementary School are studying space. Last week some members of Squadron VC 4 at Oceana Naval Air Station took a movie about space to the school. While there they invited the classes to come to Oceana as their guests.

On Friday 120 fifth graders were guests of Squadron VC 4 in hanger 200. The students were treated to cookies and punch and were told about space travel and jet planes and "G" suits.

Assembled in hanger 200 the students listened to a lecture on jets and jet travel.

NORMAN QUEEN, AN, serves punch to BONNIE CAMPBELL.

Pig Parlor???

Ever heard of a "pig parlor"? MR. R. LEE CAREY has a "pig parlor" at his farm on Indian River Road. Actually we could say it's a maternity ward for sows. Because when one of MR. CAREY'S sows is going to give birth to some little pigs she goes to the "pig parlor".

Each pen in the pig parlor has steel rails running the length of the pen in the center. This allows the sow, or mother hog, to lay down on either side but not in a corner or next to a side of the pen. By forcing her to lay down in the middle of the pen the young pigs can nurse without the danger of being smothered.

Just as you've always heard, hogs like to eat and feeding time is a noisy time as they all come running and fight over the troughs.

JIMMIE WELLS, caretaker of the pig parlor, holds a 17 day old Duroc pig which he said will weigh about twenty pounds.
